HUMAN RIGHTS CHIEF

Hood Claims 'Ping Pong'

The executive director of the Marin County Human Rights Department responded yesterday to grand jury criticism of his department, saying deficiencies are the result of being "ping ponged" between political forces at Civic Center.

Gerald J. Hood, who resigned his position prior to the grand jury report, said criticism that his department lacked direction was in part due to failure by the board of supervisors to establish clear and firm policy guidelines for the department and commission.

His letter, along with the grand jury report, will be considered Tuesday by county supervisors.

"Repeatedly, the commission and staff have attempted to make recommendations and act responsibly in areas normally considered within its purview," he wrote.

Those areas, he continued, included recommendations and findings on equal employment practices in county government, policy and practices in public housing, particularly in Marin City, and charges dealing with alleged abuse of senior citizens in convalescent homes.

"Repeatedly, we have been warned by representatives of county government that the issue was too political, or not a proper concern for the commission and staff," he said.

"A danger to society today, to Marin County, is to give the appearance of governmental response and authority, without, in fact, allowing it to function," Hood said.

The executive director, whose resignation takes effect June 30, said grand jury findings of "shortcomings in administrative capabilities" were the result of not being given authority to function as a department head.

"Almost every administrative action is subject to review by the county administrator's office before it can be carried out. "This leads to uncertainty, anxiety and ambivalence in the decision-making process and makes true accountability an impossibility," Hood said.

He said differences of opinion between his commission and the board of sspervisors have occurred, "creating a ping pong effect on the executive director. . ."

"It is not my intent to be vindictive or defensive or to scapegoat anyone for the absence of policy guidelines," he concluded. "Rather I hope to state as clearly and concisely as possible the precise nature of the problem, which has existed over the entire history of the dpeartment since it was established in 1968."

The human rights department has had six directors in as many years. Hood, who has served longest, was hired in 1971.

County Administrator John F. Barrows has recommended the department not be refunded by supervisors during June budget hearings.

Ex-Mental Patient Slays Family

CARSON, Calif. (UPI) — A man released from a state mental hospital two weeks ago shot and killed his wife and three young children, then killed himself Friday evening at their home in this Los Angeles Suburb, officials said.

Sheriff's deputies said a .22-caliber pump action rifle was found beside the body of the father, Charles R. Soper, 36, who was discovered lying in the bedroom of his dead son, Roy, 10.

The other victims included the mother, May, 35, and two other children, Diane Marie, 11, and Teresa Bernise, 7.

Investigators said Soper was released two weeks ago from Acamarillo State Hospital and had a history of mental illness since 1971.

Deputies said Soper had called his mother Thursday saying that he was depressed. The mother tried to call the home Friday, got no answer, then called a social worker who notified authorities.

The children were last seen alive when they came home from school earlier in the day.

$600,000 Tax Loss Seen In Redeveloping

The controversial Corte Madera redevelopment project would siphon off nearly $600,000 from local taxing agencies over the next eight years, County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell reported yesterday.

Mitchell said his projection was based on a continued 5 per cent increase in the assessed valuation of the area planned from for redevelopment.

Under state law, local redevelopment can be financed through a process that allows cities to freeze assessed valuation levels in its redevelopment area.

County, city, school and special district taxes, based on the assessed valuation of the redevelopment area, would stay at their current level, and taxes from any increase in assessed valuation would go into redevelopment coffers until redevelopment projects are paid off.

Over the eight years, Mitchell said, the County of Marin would lose abut $131,000; the Marin Community College District, $51,000; the Town of Corte Madera, $65,000; the Tamalpais High School District, $107,000; the Larkspur School District, $125,000; special districts, $23,000, and "others", $63,000.

The redevelopment project, intended to finance off-site improvements for a regional shopping center east of Highway 101, is opposed by residents who have threatened to recall three councilmen.

The county board of supervisors, slated to discuss Mitchell's figures at Tuesday's board meeting, is negotiating with the town to reduce the size of the multimillion dollar redevelopment proposal.

Showdown Seen On Privilege

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., predicted today the congressional inquiry into CIA connections with the Watergate scandal will trigger a constitutional confrontation with the White House over the doctrine of executive privilege.

Jackson, in a telephone interview, said he expected former presidential aides John D. Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman would claim executive privilege when called to testify in the burgeoning investigation that now involves four congressional committees.

"It's headed for a showdown," Jackson said. He suggested the whole issue could wind up in the courts for a ruling on contempt citations if the aides decline to testify on matters involving their contacts with the President.

Hijackers Pledge To Blow Up Plane

Audience Demanded With High Officials

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Four leftist guerrillas who hijacked a Venezuelan airliner over the Andes and commandeered it to four airports during the nightsaid today they would blow up the craft and the 37 persons aboard unless Mexican and Venezuelan government officials talked to them.

The guerrillas were armed with grenades and guns.

A spokesman for the Venezuelan government here said earlier that the guerrillas' demands for the release of 79 Venezuelan political prisoners would not be met.

The official said, "My government will not accede to the cowardly demand of the terrorists. In Venezuela we don't have political prisoners..."

He said he had received demands from the hijackers that the 79 political prisoners be landed at Jose Marti airport in Havana within 48 hours but repeated the Venezuelan government would not comply.

Federico Botines, one of the hijackers, left the plane for a 10-minute talk with Mexico City International Airport inspector Sergio Juarez and a Mexican news reporter this morning and said the plane would be blown up at 1:35 p.m. (3:35 p.m. EDT) unless government representatives came to the plane to talk to them.

"If we go up, it will be the Venezuelan government's fault," he was quoted as saying.

Juarez said, "The passengers look terrible. They are certain the plane will be blown up. The guerrilla was calm, polite, without a sign of worry on his face." In Caracas, Venezuela's President Rafael Caldera called in his top aides to confer on the hijackers' demands.

The guerrillas, who had said earlier they would eventually force the plane to Cuba, asked that Mexican and Venezuelan newsmen be allowed to talk to them at the door of the plane.

The four hijackers seized control of the plane Friday over Venezuela and forced the pilot to fly first to Curacao, then to Panama, Merida and Mexico City.

In Panama, they allowed three women and two children to disembark and gave UPI correspondent J. Paul Wyatt, who was permitted aboard briefly, a list of 79 "political prisoners" in Venezuela they wanted released. They said they would blow up the airliner unless their demands were met.

The twin-engined Convair 580, owned by the state-run Avensa Airlines of Venezuela, spent 4 ½ hours in Merida. During that time, the pirates, armed with grenades and revolvers, refused to allow the 32 passengers and five crew members to leave.

"We'll blow the plane sky high if the police come near," they warned over the radio.

The guerrilla group, identified by the Venezuelan political police as members of the left-wing "Point Zero" group, freed five passengers during a stopover in Panama City, leaving 32 passengers and a crew of five on the plane.

The plane sat isolated at the international airport here as officials awaited the guerrillas's next move.

"They have refused to answer our requests for the passengers to be released," Yucatan state governor Carlos Loret De Mola said in Merida shortly after the plane landed.

In Mexico City, Venezuelan Embassy spokesman Humberto Rumbos said, "We hope there is no tragedy in Merida, but if there is it will be the guerrillas' fault."

"We do not accept their petition," Rumbos said.

He said he had informed Mexican Foreign Minister Emilio Rabasa of the Venezuelan decision and said the "ball is now in Mexico's court."

Caulfield Says He Never Mentioned Nixon's Name

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former White House aide John Caulfield claims he did not invoke President Nixon's name when he offered Watergate conspirator James W. McCord executive clemency and other help to keep his mouth shut, the Washington Star-News said today.

McCord, testifying at Friday's nationally televised hearing of the Senate Watergate Committee, claimed Caulfield told him Nixon was aware that Caulfield and McCord were holding clandestine meetings, and said he might bring McCord a personal message from the President.

The White House Friday denied Nixon had any knowledge of the McCord-Caulfield meetings, and the Star-News said today that Caulfield backed up that position in secret testimony already given to the grand jury investigating the break-in and bugging of Democratic headquarters in the Watergate.

After McCord's testimony Friday Caulfield admitted meeting with McCord but said his recollection did not jibe with the testimony in all respects. And he did not say whether the President knew of or authorized the meetings.

Caulfield, 44, a former New York City policeman now with the Treasury Department, said he is eager to tell his own version when he takes the stand Tuesday at the Senate Watergate hearing.

But legal experts say that Caulfield risks criminal indictment if he swears—as McCord insisted—that he sought to obstruct justice by promising McCord executive clemency in exchange for silence on the bugging conspiracy.

McCord, already convicted in the plot, testified Friday he rejected the entreaties he received during secret meetings with Caulfield in a parked car overlooking the Potomac last January—the same time he was on trial for the June 17 burglary at the Watergate offices of the Democratic national committee. He said Caulfield told him:

"The President's ability to govern is at stake. Another Teapot Dome scandal is possible and the government may fall. Everybody else is on track but you.

"You are not following the game plan. Get closer to your attorney. You seem to be pursuing your own course of action. Don't talk if called before a congressional committee."

At the White House, Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said President Nixon "at no time authorized anyone" to offer clemency to anyone involved in the scandal. He said Nixon had no advance knowledge of the wiretappings at Democratic headquarters or "activities relating to the cover-up."

In a statement to reporters, Caulfield admitted he met with McCord on three occasions in January and "conveyed to him certain messages from a high White House official." Some news reports said the official was John W. Dean III, presidential counsel and Caulfield's former boss.

Caulfield added, however, that McCord's testimony did not "fully reflect my best recollection." Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., a member of the Senate panel, rejected McCord's testimony as "hearsay of the worst kind."

President Raps Peace Violations

NORFOLK, VA. (UPI) — President Nixon Saturday accused North Vietnam of persistent violations of the Indochina peace settlement, and said Hanoi had been far from cooperative in accounting for American soldiers still listed as missing in action.

Nixon made the remarks in an Armed Forces Day speech from the deck of the aircraft carrier USS Independence. His prepared remarks dealt almost entirely with the nation's role in world affairs, with no reference to the Watergate scandal.

"The cooperation which North Vietnam promised to give us is making a full accounting for Americans listed as missing in action has been far from satisfactory," Nixon said. "We must and will insist that this promise be kept.

"North Vietnam has also persisted in violations of the Paris Agreements," he added. "They have, for example, refused to withdraw the thousands of troops which they still maintain Laos and Cambodia. They have poured huge amounts of military equipment into these areas of South Vietnam."

Nixon said it would be a "crime" against the memory of those who died in Vietnam " ability to lead constructively elsewhere in the world, for us to stand by and permit the settlement reached in Paris to be systematically destroyed by violations such as these."

Referring to the colors of the flag, he added:

"We can be proud today that all during the long struggle in Vietnam these colors didn't run from America's comitment to freedom and peace in the world. And we can resolve today that they are not going to start running now — not in Southeast Asia, not anywhere around the globe, wherever people put their trust in America."

Nixon was accompanied by the First Lady, several aides and Republican senators for the in-and-out visit to the Norfolk Navy station.

Appeal Eyed On Welfare Work Plan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Reagan administration, staunchly defending its "work or else" welfare program, has said it will appeal a tentative federal court order declaring the effort illegal.

The 16-county program, a Reagan spokesman said yesterday, has proven "workable and is producing substantial welfare savings for California and its taxpayers."

But U.S. District Court Judge Warren J. Ferguson of Los Angeles declared, however, the controversial project violated due process guarantees. His statement was contained in a notice of intended decision distributed to lawyers in a case challenging the program.

Ferguson set a hearing for June 6 preparatory to making the preliminary finding permanent. The challenge to the so-called "Work Experience Program" was brought by Gov. Ronald Reagan's old court foe, the California Welfare Rights Organization.

Three Hurt In Blazing Auto Crash

Three persons were hospitalized today after a fiery, two-car crash on Highway 101 north of Novato.

While the California Highway Patrol had few details of the accident, the Novato Fire Department said one of the autos, a small foreign car, caught fire and that firemen helped pull victims from the wreckage.

One victim, Christopher Musser, 23, of 749 Atherton Avenue, Novato, was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hosital with possible head and internal injuries.

Lowell Carpenter, 23, of Novato, reportedly underwent surgery at Novato General Hospital. No information was available on the extent of his injuries or his condition.

Driver of one of the autos, Manuel A. Chavarria, 22, of 5 San Carlos Way, Novato, was reported being held under observation at Novato General after complaining of pain in the ribs.

Carpenter and Musser were passengers in the car driven by Chavarria which collided at about 12:01 a.m. with an auto driven by Clifford L. McCall, 32, of 52 Scenic Road, Fairfax, the CHP siad.

McCall and his wife, Delores, 29, suffered only minor injuries and were not hospitalized, Kaiser Foundation Hospital reported.

Jackson, in a telephone interview, said he expected former presidential aides John D. Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman would claim executive privilege when called to testify in the burgeoning investigation that now involves four congressional committees.

"It's headed for a showdown," Jackson said. He suggested the whole issue could wind up in the courts for a ruling on contempt citations if the aides decline to testify on matters involving their contacts with the President.

Three Hurt In Blazing Auto Crash

Three persons were hospitalized today after a fiery, two-car crash on Highway 101 north of Novato.

While the California Highway Patrol had few details of the accident, the Novato Fire Department said one of the autos, a small foreign car, caught fire and that firemen helped pull victims from the wreckage.

One victim, Christopher Musser, 23, of 749 Atherton Avenue, Novato, was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hosital with possible head and internal injuries.

Lowell Carpenter, 23, of Novato, reportedly underwent surgery at Novato General Hospital. No information was available on the extent of his injuries or his condition.

Driver of one of the autos, Manuel A. Chavarria, 22, of 5 San Carlos Way, Novato, was reported being held under observation at Novato General after complaining of pain in the ribs.

Carpenter and Musser were passengers in the car driven by Chavarria which collided at about 12:01 a.m. with an auto driven by Clifford L. McCall, 32, of 52 Scenic Road, Fairfax, the CHP siad.

McCall and his wife, Delores, 29, suffered only minor injuries and were not hospitalized, Kaiser Foundation Hospital reported.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Troops Out

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI) — President Hugo Banzer ordered troops into the streets of La Paz last night in a political crisis touched off by the killing of a former interior minister.

Heavily armed army vehicles and troops took up positions in the capital, guarding all principal intersections and putting on a display of power around the downtown natinal palace.

The government said the former official, Gen. Andres Selich, had been killed by police officers who suspected him of plotting against the Banzer regime.

Bomb Boast

BELFAST (UPI) — The outlawed Irish Republican Army boasted today of the "skill" it used in yesterday's car bomb blast that killed four British troops in one of Northern Ireland's bloodiest days.

The British army said it is supplying some of its off-duty soldiers with armed escorts in the event of more attacks.

The army was placed on full alert and low-flying army helicopters lit the alleyways of the province's main cities early today seeking the gunmen and bombers who killed eight persons in what British officials said was the worst day of bloodletting in 10 months.

A ninth person died Friday as a result of earlier violence.

Paris Talks

PARIS (UPI) — Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi negotiator Le Duc Tho meet again today in their third session of talks, searching for ways to end violations of the fragile Vietnam cease-fire.

The two sides said the talks would resume at an American-owned villa in suburban Saint-Nom-la-Bretche, site of Thursday's first round of negotiations.

The presidential adviser and Tho met for about four hours yesterday.

"I cannot say if any progress has been achieved," said Nguyen Co Thach, second-ranking member of the North Vietnamese delegation. "It is too early to say so.

Gold Price

LONDON (UPI) — The price of gold, which skyrocketed to the highest level in history early in the week, closed only a slightly ahead. The dollar lost a little ground.

The price of gold closed in London at $104.50-$106.50 an ounce in what dealers described as "the quietest day of the week."

The London price was $2.25 higher than Thursday's $102.25-104.25 and a rise of $8.55 for the entire week.

Last Friday, before two days of hectic trading shot it as high as $114, gold was selling at $97.20.

Pact Signed

BONN (UPI) — Soviet and West German leaders signed a far-reaching agreement on economic cooperation today while outside, police held back a crowd of men and women demanding that Moscow also grant "peaceful coexistence" to Christians in Russia.

Chancellor Willy Brandt and Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev began the second of their five days of talks by signing the agreement in the Foreign Ministry treaty room.

Lesser officials signed agreements calling for more intensive cultural exchanges, and permitting West Germany's commercial airline, Lufthansa, to overfly Siberia to and from Japan.

Army Warned

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — President Alejandro Lanusse ordered martial law lifted in Argentina today and warned the army against staging any military coups.

The president declared martial law May 1 in Buenos Aires and five provinces in response to a wave of leftist guerrilla killings and kidnapings of ranking military men. No such attack was reported during the martial law period, which covered more than two thirds of the country's population.

Lanusse, head of the latest in a series of military governments that have ruled the country since 1966, will step down Friday in favor of President-elect Hector J. Campora, the handpicked substitute for former President Juan D. Peron.

Five Kidnaped

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Five people, including two schoolchildren, were kidnaped yesterday, police sources said.

The abductions raised to 12 the number of persons being held by kidnapers, and to 46 the number of such incidents reported this year.

The schoolchildren, whose names were not disclosed, were taken by four men from their school cafeteria in Cordoba, 441 miles northwest of Buenos Aires. The men forced the children into a car and drove off.

Three middle-aged business executives were kidnaped in separate incidents in or near the federal capital Friday, the sources said. Ransom was demanded in each case, but the names of the men have not been disclosed.

Ships Collide

RECIFE, Brazil (UPI) — A Brazilain passenger ship carrying 480 tourist collide with an American freighter off this northeast Brazilian port yesterday but no one was injured, authorities said.

Police and coast guard spokesmen said the collision between the Brazilian steamer Rosa Da Fonseca and the American Freighter Mormacdraco both docked at Recife today for repairs. Neither needed assistance to get to port.

Reply To Nixon

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath and French President Georges Pompidou will seek agreement next week on a possible joint European reply to President Nixon's "new Atlantic charter" blueprint, government sources said today.

Heath flies to Paris tomorrow afternoon for two days of talks with the French president — their first meeting alone since they met in March, 1972, at Chequers, Heath's official country residence.

Jackson Orders Probe Of Russian Wheat Deal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Permanent Investigations subcommittee, says he has ordered a "top to bottom" investigation of last year's billion-dollar sale of U.S. grain to Russia.

Jackson said yesterday that particular attention will be focused on whether firms used advance information to reap big profits.

"What concerns me greatly," Jackson said, "is how this massive grain deal was accomplished in almost total secrecy with knowledge apparently being vested in only a few large grain companies and with the Agriculture Department pleading ignorance and in fact taking the position that it had no obligation to obtain and disseminate information because of the private nature of the transaction."

Jackson said that "the interested governmental agencies sat on the sidelines while the biggest grain deal in history was being consummated to the detriment of many segments of th population."

Howard J. Feldman, the subcommittee's chief counsel, said the panel hoped to begin hearings next month. He said key witnesses connected with the grain sale, both inside and outside the government, would be called.

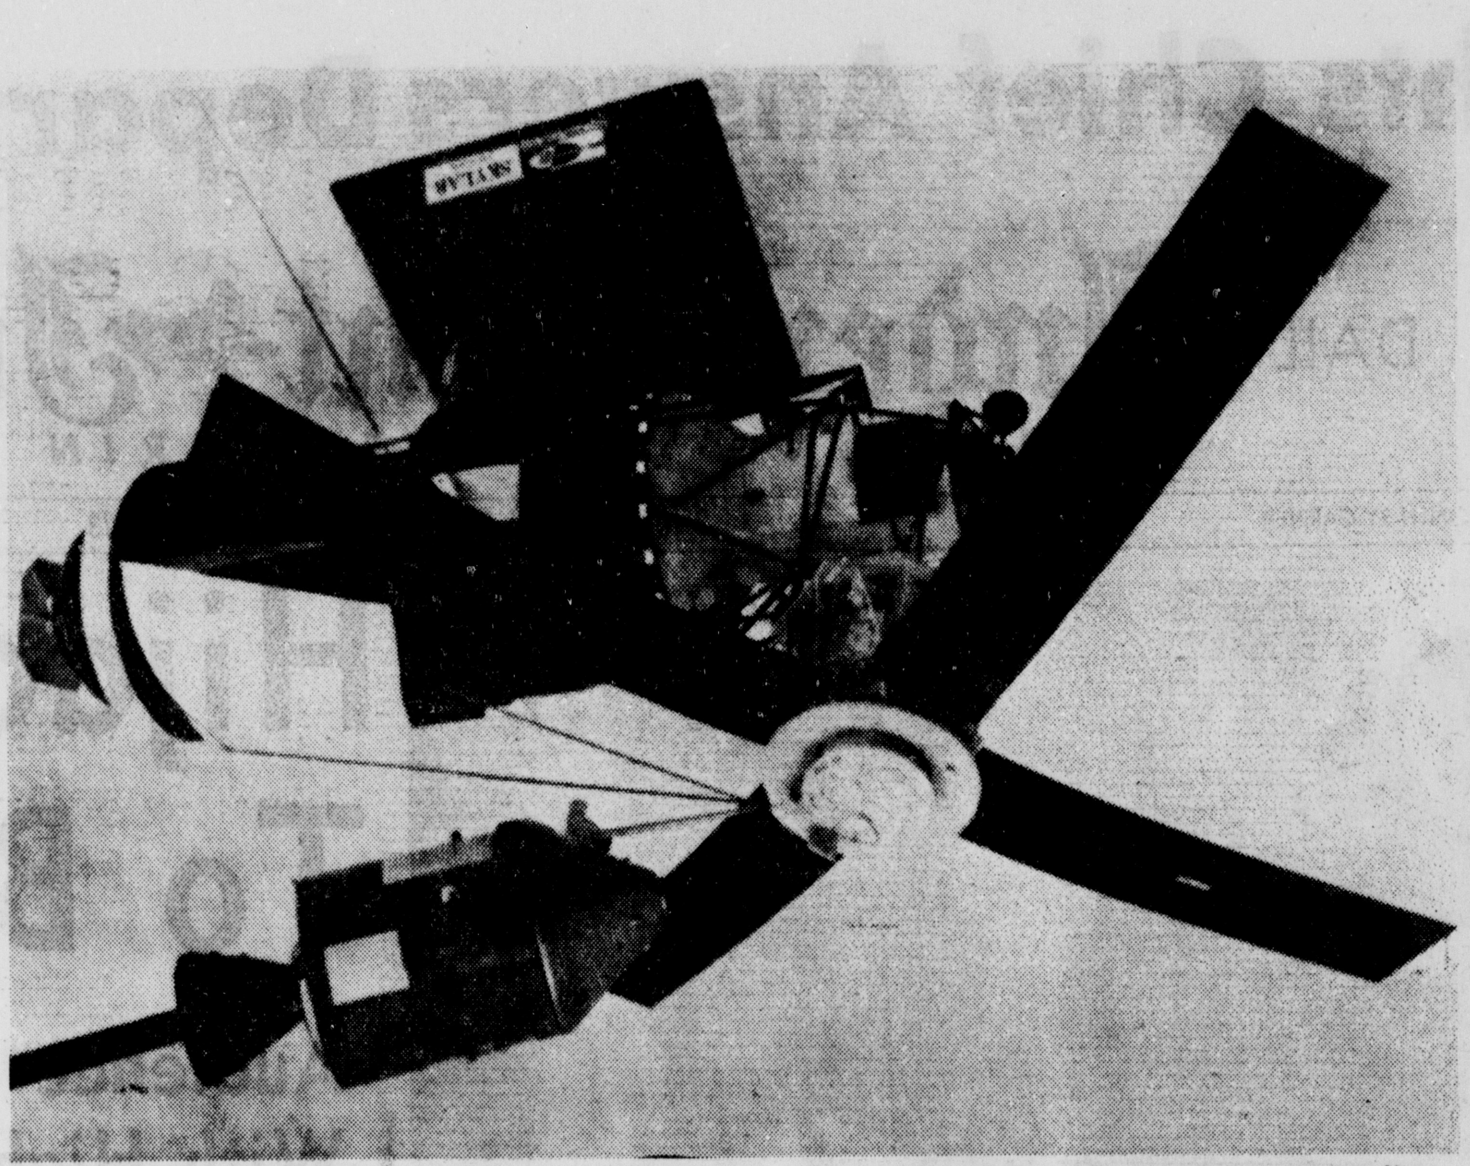
Payments Made In Blast Wake

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Southern Pacific said yesterday it has made more than $1.1 million worth of cash advances and claim settlements as a result of the April 28 munitions train explosions at Roseville.

Burton R. Howard, general claims manager, said in a statement the responsibility for the blasts is still to be determined. He said the payments are being made, without assuming legal responsibility, in order to "alleviate as much personal hardship as possible."

He said investigators are still trying to discover the cause of the blasts, and it may take "months, if not two or three years," for the liability issue to be decided.

"Settlements have been made for business and personal losses as well as a prompt commitment to restore completely the two public schools and the Antelope fire station," Howard said.



PROJECT SUNSHADE — A Skylab model is used to show how the sun shade will be deployed by astronauts to cool the overheated space station. The Apollo command module (upper right), with an astronaut standing in the hatch, will use a rope to pull the shade over the orbit Skylab.

(UPI Telephoto)

Astronauts Testing Skylab Tools

HOUSTON (UPI) — With their disabled space station awaiting an in-orbit service call, Skylab's astronauts today try out hastily-built tools they will use Friday in a bold attempt to fix overheating and power problems.

After working with the new-fangled sunshade apparatus and associated tools here, the pilots will fly to Huntsville, Ala., tomorrow to practice under water where they float as if they were in weightless space.

The plan calls for Charles "Pete" Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz to take off from Cape Kennedy in six days at 9 a.m. EDT Friday in an Apollo loaded with 90 pounds of repair and replacement equipment. They will intercept their space home at 4:32 p.m. with live television back to Earth 271 miles away.

With moonflight veteran Conrad at the controls, the astronauts will circle the 118-foot Skylab and survey the damage resulting from an unexplained accident 63 seconds after launch last Monday that ripped off its meteoroid and sun shield and jammed two solar wing generators. Then they will start the first major repairs ever made in space.

Project officials were more optimistic late yesterday than they have been since Skylab's problems. The engineers now believe Skylab will be able to serve as home for nine men—three crews—for a total of 140 days in orbit as originally planned.

The wives of the fliers scheduled to fix the space station are confident their husbands can do the job.

"Pete's always been a good fixer," said Jane Conrad. "He usually has something around the house that he can make work in jury-rigging things together.

"I figure they'll really give it the old college try and if anyone can fix it, I figure they can."

The astronauts will nudge their command ship to a gentle link up with one of two docking ports on Skylab to give them time to prepare for the repair work.

Conrad then will unlatch from Skylab and fly within 10 feet of one of the station's jammed solar wings. If possible, Kerwin or Weitz standing in the open Apollo hatch will use a long "shepherd's crook" rod to nudge open the folded wing and expose its glassy solar cells to sunlight so they can convert radiation into electricity.

Then one of the pilots will snag two nylon ropes to the end of Skylab and unfurl a silver and white sail to shade a 24 by 20 foot side of the cylindrical lab. If that shade doesn't work, the pilots will have another awning that can be unrolled during a spacewalk.

Engineers also are considering two shades that can be extended through a small air-lock in the main body of Skylab if the opening is not obstructed by debris from the meteoroid shield.

Flight Director Donald R. Puddy said in a briefing at Houston last night that the air temperatures inside Skylab remained stabilized at around 105 degrees. He said the astronauts probably would be able to start living in Skylab five days after launch and conduct nearly all the originally planned experiments for 28 days.

Innocent Is Verdict In Santa Rosa

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Herbert Richard Miller, 50, former Cotati planning commissioner, has been found innocent by a Sonoma Superior Court jury of assault with a deadly weapon.

Miller was arrested Oct. 20 on suspicion of firing a gun at two girls in Rohnert Park and again during an auto chase on Highway 101 south of Cotati.

Miller, a private investigator, said he chased the girls out of the parking lot of Holt's Marine in Rohnert Park because he thought a burglary attempt had been made. He chased one of the girls, a 16-year-old from Petaluma, south on the freeway until both cars crashed in a redwood grove.

The girls said they had merely stopped to chat in the parking lot to decide what restaurant to go to for a snack. Police said no burglary attempt had been made.

The jury deliberated for only an hour before returning with the innocent verdict. Judge John Moskowitz had told jurors that a private citizen does not have the right to use deadly force in the apprehension of suspects but that firing a weapon is not necessarily unwarranted or unreasonable.

Utilities Board To Eye Sewage

A special meeting of the Bolinas Community Public Utilities District board has been called for 10:30 a.m. Monday in the district office, according to Lyman Robinson, district secretary-manager.

The board s to discuss revised plans for a new sewage pond, to be located at Bolinas Mesa. Edward L. Spira of the engineering firm Kirker Chapman and Associates is expected to present new designs for the project, Robinson said.

Antique Stolen

An antique wine corker valued at $300 was taken Saturday from the entrance of Dominic's Restaurant on Francisco Boulevard in San Rafael, police reported yesterday.

Planes Fly Support For Cambodians

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Thailand-based U.S. jet fighters today flew strikes in support of embattled Cambodian troops south of Phnom Penh and escorted a convoy of 10 ships safely down the Mekong River to the South Vietnamese border.

Military sources here reported the crash of a commercial DC3 transport plane with as many as 11 persons aboard shortly after taking off from the provincial capital of Svay Rieng. The plane was likely downed by enemy fire and crashed in rebel-controlled territory with no word on the fate of those aboard, the sources said.

U.S. Air Force jets flew bombing strikes in aid of government troops encircled in the former market town of Tram Khnar, about 25 miles southwest of the capital, field reports said.

At the same time three miles to the south, Cambodian soldiers trying to clear Highway 3 met heavy resistance from entrenched Communist troops. At least 24 wounded government troops were brought back to the road as American OV10 "Bronco" spotter planes called in jets around Tram Khnar, the reports said.

Other Broncos escorted the convoy of tankers and cargo ships downriver and called in flights of A7 Corsair jets when Communist gunners opened fire about 12 miles east of Phnom Penh.

U.S. spotter pilots reported three of the cargo vessels and one accompanying gunboat hit but sai2there was no serious damage as the convoy crossed into South Vietnamese territory shortly before dusk. The pilots reported American planes bombed Communist troops at three locations along the rivebanks inside Cambodia.

WATER PROJECT FINISHED

Just minutes after the dedication ceremonies for the Perris Dam near Riverside, which marks the completion of the massive State Water Project, youngsters went for a swim in the water which came from 685 miles away in Northern California. Governor Ronald Reagan and a host of other state officials presided at the dedication. (UPI Telephoto)

Use Permit On Planning Unit Agenda

The San Rafael Planning Commission is scheduled to consider a use permit under the city's building moratorium for a massive, $40 million development proposed for the eastern tip of the city when it meets at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in city hall.

Although Carlos E. Gonzalez of Smith, Gonzalez and Associates has asked the commission to postpone consideration of a proposal for 781 units and 26.6 acres of commercial development on the Smith Ranch parcel, the agency has the option of acting on the proposal Tuesday regardless of his wishes.

Approval of the use permit would allow development plans to proceed.

Gonzalez, in clarifying a statement made earlier, said that neither he nor his associate, Smith Ranch heir Michael J. Smith, will seek to use a permit approved last year which allows the grading of 1.4 million cubic yards of earth from the hill that fills much of the parcel bounded by Highway 101, the Northgate Industrial Park, and the northeastern city limits.

Smith obtained the permit on behalf of Edward and Jordan Smith, owners of the land, Gonzalez said. Should Smith, Gonzalez and Associates relinquish a long-term option to buy the land, the Smith brothers might decide to proceed with grading, he added.

Plans For Radio Tower Are Told

The Pacific and American telephone and telegraph companies have announced plans to erect a temporary radio transmission tower on Mount Burdell north of Novato.

Construction of the 200-foot-high structure, planned alongside an existing microwave station and tower, is expected to begin Tuesday, pending approval by city officials. Approval by the Federal Communication Commission and the Federal Aviation Administration already has been obtained, according to AT&T.

Testing should be completed and the tower removed within two to three days after it is erected, said R. L. Powers, AT&T transmission engineer.

Supervisors Request $946 For Expenses

Marin County supervisors filed reimbursement claims totaling $946 during the month of April, according to county auditor-controller records.

Of that, some $773 was filed by Supervisor Michael Wornum for the months of September through March.

About $113 of Wornum's claim was for meals, bridge tolls and parking while on county business. The remaining $660 was for mileage reimbursement at 13 cents per mile.

Wornum, as well as Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Arnold M. Baptiste, also receives a flat $25 per month as a county road commissioner to cover mileage expenses.

Arrigoni and Baptiste each turned in mileage claims of less than $2 during April. They also received $25 each for serving on the Local Agency Formation Commission.

Supervisors Gary T. Giacomini and Robert A. Roumiguiere filed no claims for mileage because both are assigned their own county cars for official use.

Roumiguiere, however, filed a $144 claim for meals and lodging during April and $25 for compensation as a member of the county retirement board.

His travels included a trip to Sacramento for meetings with Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, and his staff, and a meeting of the California Supervisors' Association in Eureka.

According to Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell, reimbursement claims need only be filed once a year by supervisors.

Rabid Bat Is Found In Hedge

A bat discovered "sick and squeaking" in a Corte Madera hedge May 9 has been found to be rabid.

Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer, said laboratory analysis was conducted on the animal after it was found outside 18 Willow Avenue. Dr. Albrecht said it was reported the bat had been seen in the hedge for two days before county humane society officials removed it and put it to death.

The finding brought to nine the number or rabid animals found in Marin this year. Dr. Albrecht said the numzer is higher than usual.

"Rabies run in cycles and we seem to be on the upswing," she said.

Dr. Albrecht reminded parents to warn children not to touch bats, especially those appearing dead.

Highway Project To Alter Traffic

A project in progress on Highway 101 which will alter traffic patterns or affect the flow of traffic tomorrow and Monday was announced today by the state Division of Highways.

Northbound traffic will be routed into two lanes in the vicinity of the Civic Center from San Pedro Road undercrossing to Forbes overpass near Terra Linda from 6 a.m. to 1 p.m. during paving.

Man Denies Guilt On Arms Count

Thomas Roger Lescohier, 20, who held police at bay with a pistol from a Mill Valley rooftop after threatening suicide on Sunday, pleaded innocent yesterday to charges of assault with a deadly weapon and of shooting on a public road.

Marin Municipal Court Judge Gary W. Thomas ordered Lescohier to appear Friday for preliminary hearing, and on Monday for hearing on a motion to release him on his own recognizance.

Mill Valley police booked Lescohier into Marin County Jail on the carges Thursday after he had been held at the Marin Community Mental Health Center following the fracas Sunday.

During the episode, Police Chief William A. Walsh said, the youth shot out a window of his mother's auto and threatened her with a pistol, fired at a coin laundry and went home where he stood off police for nearly two hours despite tear gas volleys. He finally surrendered to Walsh.

Transit Staff Supporting Fare Hike On Golden Gate

The Marin County Transit District staff recommended yesterday that the district board endorse a proposed toll hike on the Golden Gate Bridge.

The increase, to be considered by the board Tuesday at 8:30 a.m. at the Civic Center, has been proposed by the Golden Gate Bridge District and would up the 50-cent auto fare to 75 cents.

The special meeting of the district board was requested by Michael Wornum, who sits on both the transit and bridge district boards.

He is in support of the increase, supposedly to help offset costs of the bridge district's transit program.

The bridge district's proposal also would eliminate the discount on commuter convenience books.

Ray W. Foreaker Jr., general manager of the transit district, recommended that the county support the toll hike and ask that a portion of the new revenues be used for intracounty bus service.

Poster Contest Winners Named

Four Terra Linda High School students have been named winners of the "Why Study Foreign Languages?" poster contest sponsored by the school foreign language department.

They are Joseph Jenkins, first place; Chris Gesior, second place, and Isabellle Gamero and Kathleen O'Leary, tied for third place.

Novato Mayor Requests Marriage Dissolution

Novato Mayor Fred F. Ruegg has filed for dissolution of his 39-year marriage to Constance Marie Ruegg.

The petition for dissolution filed in Marin Superior Courts asks settlement of property division between the couple, but does not list any community property.

Ruegg, 61, is a retired vice president of the Columbia Broadcasting System who has lived in Novato for five years. The Rueggs have two grown children, both married.

Ruegg and his wife married in Boise, Idaho, on July 1, 1933. They separated May 1, according to the petition.

Ruegg was elected to the city council 13 months ago.

Cycle Riders Face Citations By Police

Motorcycle riding is allowed on the fire road at San Rafael Hill but the San Rafael Police Department will issue citations to motorcyclists riding off the road, according to Thomas Stephenson, deputy chief.

An article in the Independent-Journal Thursday said citations are not being issued to motorcyclists riding in the San Rafael Hill area.

Caulfield Says He Never Mentioned Nixon's Name

cism about McCord's testimony.

He drew from McCord the admission that he never personally asked John N. Mitchell, then director of Nixon's reelection campaign, if he approved of the wiretapping operation—. even though he met in person with Mitchell at least 15 times. McCord said he simply assumed that fellow Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy, who planned the espionage, acted on Mitchell's behalf.

As Gurney examined the witness, this exchange occurred:

Gurney: Well, don't you think at some time it might have occurred to you that perhaps these were illegal things and didn't really have anything to do with national security?

McCord: Oh, yes, it occurred to me at the time the matters were being planned and being discussed and it's occurred to me since. Yes.

Gurney: Then why did you go ahead with it?

McCord: For the reasons, basically the reasons I have stated, but those are not the only reasons. The fact that the attorney general, the White House itself, and in my personal opinion, the President of the United States, I felt, that set into motion this operation.

Gurney: Why the lateness of this? Why did you not inform us before this?

McCord: I believe I stated the reasons, because it involved directly, in my opinion, the President of the United States. It also involved an individual I considered a personal friend, Mr. Jack Caulfield.

McCord also testified:

—He had been hired as the $3,000 a month security director for the Committee to Re-elect the President (CRP) after 25 years with the FBI and the CIA by Robert C. Odle, the youthful office manager who testified at Thursday's opening hearing. While Odle said he fired McCord "within a minute" of hearing of his complicity in the Watergate break-in, McCord said he remained on the CRP payroll and received $25,000 from the Republicans to pay his legal fees.

—He received telephone calls at his home last January instructing him to go to a pay telephone on Rt. 355 in Maryland, where he received other phone messages—some from a voice with a New York accent. He said the first clemency offer reached him in that manner.

—That CRP budgeted $350,000 for the bugging and other clandestine acts against the Democrats in Washington and at their Miami Beach convention.

—That he sought but failed to bug the telephones at Democrat George W. McGovern's campaign headquarters and that he leased an office in the building next to Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's headquarters for spying —purposes.

Confrontation Looms On Farm Labor Bills

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Senate confrontation is shaping up between a Reagan administration farm labor bill and one authored by a Democratic lawmaker from California's agricultural heartland —the Central Valley.

Sen. George N. Zenovich, D-Fresno, announced Friday he has prepared a farm labor bill (SB493) which he declared "does nothing more than give a quarter of a million workers the same rights and privileges as other working citizens."

The rival measure (SB1094) was introduced last month by Sen. Fred W. Marler Jr. of Redding, Republican floor leader.

The key difference between the two is that Zenovich's would permit harvest-time strikes while Marler's would not. And the Democrat's proposal would restrict secondary boycotts, such as those used by Cesar Chavez, while Marler's would ban such activity outright.

Both provide for secret ballot elections to determine union representation. But Zenovich's would also extend unemployment benefits coverage to farmworkers at an estimated cost of $68 million, $38 million of which would be borne by employers.

Zenovich characterizes his measure as "not a grower bill and not a union bill."

He said his legislation would allow farm workers unions to urge consumer boycotts of supermarkets or boycotts of certain grocery products, but they could not call for markets to boycott farm products.

Both Marler's and Zenovich's bills would create a five-man board to oversee farm labor activities.

No committee hearings have been scheduled yet for the proposals.

Larkspur Doctor Arrested On Pair Of Charges

A Larkspur physician was arrested today on suspicion of driving under the influence of drugs and carrying a loaded concealed revolver, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Michael E. Lupo, 29, of 127 Madrone Avenue, was booked into San Francisco Jail after his arrest at 12:35 a.m. A toll taker on the Golden Gate Bridge alerted the highway patrol that he was driving his car erratically at the bridge toll plaza, the patrol said.

A search of Lupo revealed a loaded .38 caliber revolver carried in a shoulder holster, arresting officers said.

The patrol said Lupo, who reportedly works for several free clinics in the Bay Area, told them he was on an emergency call to assist a patient suffering alcohol withdrawal.

Lupo said he works at the New Start Center in San Francisco, a clinic that treats persons with alcoholic problems, the patrol said.

Youth Arrested When Found In Liquor Store

An 18-year-old Marinwood youth was arrested on suspicion of burglary today after police said they found him hiding in the storeroom of a liquor store in the Marinwood Shopping Center, sheriff's deputies reported.

Joseph W. Corbelli, of 340 Peachstone Terrace, was being held at Marin County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bail.

Deputies said they responded to an alarm at the shopping center and found Corbelli hiding behind paint cans at the Bourbon Shop at about 3:15 a.m.

Sonoma Planners Approve Change

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Planning Commission Thursday approved an eight-acre rezoning nearPetaluma to permit an apartment house.

The commission granted the request of Sam M. Imoto to change his unclassified property on the southside of Eastman Lane to agricultural. A reduction in minimum lot size was also approved to accomodate an existing four-unit apartment.

Planners said the four-plex was built before zoning regulations were changed and said the new zoning would bring the land into conformity with the ordinance.

Next Stop For Rogers Is Brazil

BOGOTA (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers leaves for Brazil on the sixth leg of an 18-day Latin American visit today convinced that his tour will have "many beneficial effects" on future relations between the United States and its southern neighbors.

After a weekend of rest in Rio de Janeiro, Rogers will go on to Brasilia, the Brazilian capital, for meetings with President Emilio Garrastazu Medici and Foreign Minister Mario Gibson Barbosa.

His goodwill Latin American tour, which began Sunday, has already taken him to Mexico, Nicaragua, Venezuela, Colombia and Peru. Following his Brazilian visit, he travels to Argentina and Jamaica.

"I think it's in our mutual interest to have this kind of active dialogue on common problems," Rogers said Friday in a news conference at the residence of U.S. Ambassador Leonard J. Saccio.

"I have found that sensible discussion can solve many delicate problems...and that is why I think that this kind of trip is very useful. I have no doubt that many beneficial effects will flow from this trip," he said.

Earlier in the day, Rogers said the United States welcomes and supports the growing nationalism sweeping Latin America.

"In the reality of today's world it may be said that the paternalism of the past has been replaced by nationalism and a growing sense of fraternalism," he said in a major policy speech on the Nixon administration's attitudes toward South and Central American countries.

"The United States strongly supports this change," he said.

San Anselman And Three Others Are Indicted For Embezzlement

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A bank trust officer from San Anselmo and three others were indicted by a federal grand jury yesterday on charges of embezzling $107,590 from the Bank of California.

The four, using trust accounts in the bank and three false accounts they set up, transferred funds and played the stock market, the 45-count indictment said.

Charged were George Thomas McIntosh, 32, of 282 Butterfield Road, an assistant trust officer at the bank; Jorge S. Rivas, 34, of San Francisco, also a trust officer; Wallace J. Von Eisiminger, 43, a Los Angeles public relations man, and Jerry T. Nomura, 40, of Berkeley, a stockbroker.

Paul Fitzpatrick, an assistant United States attorney said, "They used seven different schemes to get money from the bank." He also said at least two of those charged have said they are attempting to pay back the stolen funds.

One phony trust account was in Von Eisiminger's name, the indictment said. It also said Rivas and McIntosh, bought and sold stocks in the name of the false accounts, paying for them with bank money or by using credit obtained from Nomura in the bank's name.

According to the indictment, the manipulations lasted from last June 1 to March 12, 1973.

Each of the four was released on $10,000 bail. They are to appear on June 15 before U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter.

Marin City Woman To Appear In Court

Marie Coleman, 36, of 253 Drake Avenue, Marin City, is to appear Thursday in Marin Superior Court for probation report and sentencing, following her plea of guilty to fraudulently receiving $4,187.50 in welfare funds between November 1970 and January 1972.

OBITUARIES

Jagow Funeral At Sea

Private funeral has been held at sea for Herbert A. Jagow of San Anselmo, decorated war veteran, former San Quentin correctional officer and commercial fisherman.

Jagow, 47, of 166 Camino de Herrera, died of an apparent heart attack Wednesday while inspecting a fishing boat for possible purchase in Fort Bragg.

Born and reared in San Francisco, Jagow served in the Coast Guard in the Pacific during World War II and received numerous decorations. Later, while a member of the Army Reserve, he was called up during the Korean War, retiring as a captain after 20 years' military service.

Jagow was a former member of the San Francisco Police Department and later worked at San Quentin Prison as an identification officer. He left that job in March in favor of commercial fishing.

Jagow was a 32nd-degree Mason, having joined the organization in Okinawa in 1952. He later became master of Tou Lodge, Free and Accepted Masons; grand orator of Grand Lodge in Austraise, France, (while serving in the Army), and past master by affiliation of Marin Lodge 191, F&AM.

He was immediate past commodore of the San Rafael Yacht Club and a member of the Predicted Log Racing Association of Northern California.

Survivors are his wife, Beverly, and a sister, Loraine Weldon of Alameda.

The family asks memorial contributions to the Shriner's Childrens Hospital, San Francisco.

Caulfield Says He Never Mentioned Nixon's Name

cism about McCord's testimony.

He drew from McCord the admission that he never personally asked John N. Mitchell, then director of Nixon's reelection campaign, if he approved of the wiretapping operation—even though he met in person with Mitchell at least 15 times. McCord said he simply assumed that fellow Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy, who planned the espionage, acted on Mitchell's behalf.

As Gurney examined the witness, this exchange occurred:

Gurney: Well, don't you think at some time it might have occurred to you that perhaps these were illegal things and didn't really have anything to do with national security?

McCord: Oh, yes, it occurred to me at the time the matters were being planned and being discussed and it's occurred to me since. Yes.

Gurney: Then why did you go ahead with it?

McCord: For the reasons, basically the reasons I have stated, but those are not the only reasons. The fact that the attorney general, the White House itself, and in my personal opinion, the President of the United States, I felt, that set into motion this operation.

Gurney: Why the lateness of this? Why did you not inform us before this?

McCord: I believe I stated the reasons, because it involved directly, in my opinion, the President of the United States. It also involved an individual I considered a personal friend, Mr. Jack Caulfield.

McCord also testified:

—He had been hired as the $3,000 a month security director for the Committee to Re-elect the President (CRP) after 25 years with the FBI and the CIA by Robert C. Odle, the youthful office manager who testified at Thursday's opening hearing. While Odle said he fired McCord "within a minute" of hearing of his complicity in the Watergate break-in, McCord said he remained on the CRP payroll and received $25,000 from the Republicans to pay his legal fees.

—He received telephone calls at his home last January instructing him to go to a pay telephone on Rt. 355 in Maryland, where he received other phone messages—some from a voice with a New York accent. He said the first clemency offer reached him in that manner.

—That CRP budgeted $350,000 for the bugging and other clandestine acts against the Democrats in Washington and at their Miami Beach convention.

—That he sought but failed to bug the telephones at Democrat George W. McGovern's campaign headquarters and that he leased an office in the building next to Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's headquarters for spying —purposes.

Confrontation Looms On Farm Labor Bills

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Senate confrontation is shaping up between a Reagan administration farm labor bill and one authored by a Democratic lawmaker from California's agricultural heartland —the Central Valley.

Sen. George N. Zenovich, D-Fresno, announced Friday he has prepared a farm labor bill (SB493) which he declared "does nothing more than give a quarter of a million workers the same rights and privileges as other working citizens."

The rival measure (SB1094) was introduced last month by Sen. Fred W. Marler Jr. of Redding, Republican floor leader.

The key difference between the two is that Zenovich's would permit harvest-time strikes while Marler's would not. And the Democrat's proposal would restrict secondary boycotts, such as those used by Cesar Chavez, while Marler's would ban such activity outright.

Both provide for secret ballot elections to determine union representation. But Zenovich's would also extend unemployment benefits coverage to farmworkers at an estimated cost of $68 million, $38 million of which would be borne by employers.

Zenovich characterizes his measure as "not a grower bill and not a union bill."

He said his legislation would allow farm workers unions to urge consumer boycotts of supermarkets or boycotts of certain grocery products, but they could not call for markets to boycott farm products.

Both Marler's and Zenovich's bills would create a five-man board to oversee farm labor activities.

No committee hearings have been scheduled yet for the proposals.

Larkspur Doctor Arrested On Pair Of Charges

A Larkspur physician was arrested today on suspicion of driving under the influence of drugs and carrying a loaded concealed revolver, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Michael E. Lupo, 29, of 127 Madrone Avenue, was booked into San Francisco Jail after his arrest at 12:35 a.m. A toll taker on the Golden Gate Bridge alerted the highway patrol that he was driving his car erratically at the bridge toll plaza, the patrol said.

A search of Lupo revealed a loaded .38 caliber revolver carried in a shoulder holster, arresting officers said.

The patrol said Lupo, who reportedly works for several free clinics in the Bay Area, told them he was on an emergency call to assist a patient suffering alcohol withdrawal.

Lupo said he works at the New Start Center in San Francisco, a clinic that treats persons with alcoholic problems, the patrol said.

Youth Arrested When Found In Liquor Store

An 18-year-old Marinwood youth was arrested on suspicion of burglary today after police said they found him hiding in the storeroom of a liquor store in the Marinwood Shopping Center, sheriff's deputies reported.

Joseph W. Corbelli, of 340 Peachstone Terrace, was being held at Marin County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bail.

Deputies said they responded to an alarm at the shopping center and found Corbelli hiding behind paint cans at the Bourbon Shop at about 3:15 a.m.

Next Stop For Rogers Is Brazil

BOGOTA (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers leaves for Brazil on the sixth leg of an 18-day Latin American visit today convinced that his tour will have "many beneficial effects" on future relations between the United States and its southern neighbors.

After a weekend of rest in Rio de Janeiro, Rogers will go on to Brasilia, the Brazilian capital, for meetings with President Emilio Garrastazu Medici and Foreign Minister Mario Gibson Barbosa.

His goodwill Latin American tour, which began Sunday, has already taken him to Mexico, Nicaragua, Venezuela, Colombia and Peru. Following his Brazilian visit, he travels to Argentina and Jamaica.

"I think it's in our mutual interest to have this kind of active dialogue on common problems," Rogers said Friday in a news conference at the residence of U.S. Ambassador Leonard J. Saccio.

"I have found that sensible discussion can solve many delicate problems...and that is why I think that this kind of trip is very useful. I have no doubt that many beneficial effects will flow from this trip," he said.

Earlier in the day, Rogers said the United States welcomes and supports the growing nationalism sweeping Latin America.

"In the reality of today's world it may be said that the paternalism of the past has been replaced by nationalism and a growing sense of fraternalism," he said in a major policy speech on the Nixon administration's attitudes toward South and Central American countries.

"The United States strongly supports this change," he said.

Sonoma Planners Approve Change

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Planning Commission Thursday approved an eight-acre rezoning nearPetaluma to permit an apartment house.

The commission granted the request of Sam M. Imoto to change his unclassified property on the southside of Eastman Lane to agricultural. A reduction in minimum lot size was also approved to accomodate an existing four-unit apartment.

Planners said the four-plex was built before zoning regulations were changed and said the new zoning would bring the land into conformity with the ordinance.

Churches Lagging Badly In Integration Struggle

By LOUIS CASSELS
U.P. International

Twenty years ago, an observer noted (more in sorrow than cynicism), that "eleven o'clock on Sunday morning is the most segregated hour of the week."

It's still true.

Some religious denominations and many individual Christians have played active, courageous, self-sacrificing roles in the battle to eliminate racial barriers from American society.

But the church as a whole remains the least integrated public institution in this country.

The 1973 edition of the Yearbook of American Churches, most authoritative source of religious statistics, reports that 90 per cent of America's 14.4 million black Christians are members of predominantly black denominations.

Many of the remaining 10 per cent, while affiliated with racially mixed denominations, attend local churches that are exclusively or overwhelmingly black in membership.

At the most optimistic estimate, fewer than one million black Christians worship regularly in congregations that are geuninely integrated (as opposed to having a token membership of one or two black families).

"The church is still divided mainly into black churches and white churches," says the Rev. W. Sterling Cary of New York, first Negro president of the National Council of Churches.

"The only churches that are truly integrated are those in transition from white to black. We are self-righteous at the national level of church life about prodding secular institutions into becoming more racially open.

"But in my view, the political, educational and business structures of this nation are in fact reflecting far more racial inclusiveness than the churches."

Some who have worked long and hard for integration of the church might argue that white racism —overt or subtle —is by no means the only factor involved in continued segregation of religious life in America.

Many white congregations are not only ready to welcome black members they are actively seeking them. But they find the majority of black Christians reluctant or unwilling to venture into interracial worship.

Black Christians acknowledge this. They say it is an attitude compounded partly of doubt about the kind of welcome they'd receive, and partly of a desire to avoid being conspicuous exceptions in a sea of white faces. Worship is a personal and private area of a person's life, and it is easy to understand why most people tend to choose a church in which they feel completely at home.

Given these facts of human psychology, it seems unlikely that racial integration will become widespread in churches until it has become a routine, matter-of-fact reality in other sectors of American life.

In particular, desegregation of churches may have to wait on desegregation of housing. People who live together as neighbors seven days a week shouldn't feel strange coming together for worship at eleven o'clock on Sunday morning.

TO PRESENT RECITAL — Lina Meentemeyer (left) and Dalene Hitzeman go over some of the works they will play tomorrow when they present a double organ recital at Trinity Lutheran Church, 333 Woodland Avenue, San Rafael. The public recital will be at 4 p.m.

Double Organ Recital Scheduled

Trinity Lutheran Church in San Rafael will host a double organ recital tomorrow at 4 p.m. in the church sanctuary. The featured organists will be Dalene J. Hitzeman, who is director of music at Trinity and Linda Meentemeyer, who will be performing her first formal program in Marin.

Miss Hitzeman, a resident of Novato, studied organ with Professor Hugo Gehrke when she was a student at California Concordia High School in Oakland. She attended Concordia Teachers College in River Forest, Ill. and College of Marin. She was graduated from California State University, San Francisco with a bachelor of music degree in music education and also received her secondary teaching credential at CSUSF.

In addition to her post as director of music at Trinity, Miss Hitzeman is employed by the San Rafael City School District as a classroom music specialit and also teaches piano at San Rafael High School. She gives private piano and organ instructions as well. During her college years she studied organ with Wilbur Russell of San Anselmo; Sandra Soderlund and Alex Post of San Francisco. She has presented several organ recitals in Marin and San Francisco.

Miss Meentemeyer, who is 14 and a freshman at San Rafael High School, is a student of Miss Hitzeman's. She previously studied with Gertrude Darman. She has assisted Miss Hitzeman with organist duties at Trinity for the past year and a half, as well as participating in Trinity choral groups and various choral concerts in the county. She was recently named a member of the California Scholarship Federation.

The program will consist of a variety of works by J.S. Bach including "The Cathedral" Prelude and Fugue in E Minor and "The Great" A Minor Prelude and Fugue. Other works on the program are the Prelude and Fugue in F-sharp Minor by Buxtehude, Prelude, Fugue and Variation by Cesar Franck, Trumpet Voluntary by Henry Purcell, Chorale Preludes by Brahms and Bach and several contemporary works by Jan Bender and Paul Manz.

The church is located at 333 Woodland Avenue in San Rafael. An informal reception in the Fellowship Hall will follow the performance. The public is invited.

Spring Concert Set By Seminary Choir

Residents from Bay Area communities will join the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary Oratorio Choir for their spring presentation, May 22, at 8 p.m., in John A. Broadus Hall Chapel on the Strawberry Point campus, five miles north of the Golden Gate Bridge.

The public concert will feature "Cantata 78," by J. S. Bach, and "Gloria," by Antonio Vivaldi.

John P. Johnson, assistant professor of church music at the seminary, will direct the concert. Orine Suffern, seminary instructor in organ, piano and music history will be organist. Additional accompaniment will be provided by a chamber orchestra.

Soloists include Robin Miler, soprano from Novato, and Florence Bierman, alto from San Anselmo, both graduate students at Dominican College in San Rafael.

Daniel Parkerson, soloist at Calvary Presbyterian Church in San Francisco and choir director at Pinole High School, will be the tenor soloist. He holds the doctor of musical arts degree from the University of Arizona and has performed with the San Francisco, Oakland, Marin and Santa Rosa Symphonies and the San Francisco Chorale.

Joshua Law, director of music at Chinese Cumberland Presbyterian Church in San Francisco, will sing the bass solos. He holds the master of music degree from the University of Southern California and has also performed with the San Francisco Chorale.

Law and Bierman were soloists in the seminary's winter production of Handel's "The Messiah."

Tam High Choir Will Sing At Church Service

The Tamalpais High School Choir will sing for worship at the Community Congregational Church of Belvedere-Tiburon at 10:00 a.m. tomorrow.

The choir will sing the Schubert Mass in G, accompanied by a string quartet. The choir will be under the direction of Larry Nelsen of the high school faculty. The choir will also sing "Salve Regina" by Alfred Desenclos.

The church is located at the top of Rock Hill Drive in Tiburon.

Missionaries To Speak Tomorrow

The Bethel Baptist Church in Novato, 1929 Novato Boulevard, at their 11 a.m. worship services, will have Bob and Marge Gilman, members of the New Tribes Mission, who will tell of their experiences in Australia.

At the evening service, 7 p.m., they will present a film "Arrows of God," made in New Guinea by Rev. Gilman.

New Church Is Being Formed In The County

A new Marin County church, the United Church of Religious Sciences, is now being established in Corte Madera under the direction of Dr. Kindall Bryson.

The United Church of Religious Sciences is a worldwide metaphysical religion based on the philosophy of its founder, Dr. Ernest Holmes, "Science of the Mind."

Dr. Bryson became minister with the church in Pomona in 1954 and has also headed the church in Beverly Hills before coming to Marin.

He is a member of the International Board of United Church of Religious Sciences and a chairman of the church council, a member of the board of regents for the graduate school in Los Angeles and a first chancellor of the United Church of Religious Sciences.

His wife, Virginia, has long been active in the fine arts as an interior designer. Both his children, Greg, 16, and Karen, 14, will be attending San Rafael High School.

The United Church of Religious Sciences is located at 498 Tamalpais Drive, Corte Madera. Information about church activities may be obtained by calling 924-2818.

Philpott To Speak Tomorrow

The Rev. Kent Philpott will be guest speaker at the Lucas Valley Community Church tomorrow at 10:30 a.m. Rev. Philpott has been engaged in street-house ministries in the bay area since 1967. In Marin he is the director of some rehabilitation homes and ranches for drug addicts, juvenile delinquents, and operator of the Christian Book Store in San Anselmo.

His ministries with your people have prompted articles about him in Time magazine and made him a speaker of national appeal. He has authored a book on the occult which is currently under publication, entitled "Demonology and the Occult." He is a graduate of the Golden Gate Seminary, and has a master's degree in psychology.

Rev. Philpott will bring a musical group with him Sunday morning called "The Immanuel Singers." Coffee and donuts will be served on the church patio at the close of the service.

Foundations Of Biblical Third Wall Are Unearthed

By KENNETH L. LUCOFF

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli archeologists have unearthed the foundations of a biblical wall destroyed when this holy city was leveled by the Romans in the year 70.

The so-called third wall, one of three built in different parts of the city to protect it from invasion, was exposed during a four-month dig by archeologists from the government's Antiquities Department and Hebrew University.

The wall first was discovered in 1926 by two professors from the university, but the find was contested by other scientists who claimed the foundations actually were part of the defenses of the 10th Roman Legion which attacked the city, and not part of the city's protective walls.

"We know now that this was actually the third wall of the city because of the direction it is facing and the buildings we found attached to it," said Mrs. Sara ben-Arieh, chief archeologist of the dig.

The head of the Antiquities Department, Dr. Avraham Biran, said the wall, more than 13 feet thick, was built by Agrippa I, the Roman governor of Jerusalem and a grandson of King Herod.

He said, "Agrippa didn't have much time to build the wall because the Romans were becoming suspicious that he was trying to fortify the city as an act of rebellion against them.

"They were right. As we know, the rebellion did take place — some 45 years later."

The archelogists have uncovered about 150 feet of the wall, which is believed to have encircled much of what today is the eastern part of the city.

Biran said not much more of the wall, estimated to be several miles long, could be unearthed because of the expense and because most of it is buried under apartment houses and city streets that would have to be torn up.

Mrs. Ben-Arieh said her team dated some of the artifacts found at the dig to the time of the second temple left burning and in rubble during the Roman siege.

Churches Lagging Badly In Integration Struggle

By LOUIS CASSELS
U.P. International

Twenty years ago, an observer noted (more in sorrow than cynicism), that "eleven o'clock on Sunday morning is the most segregated hour of the week."

It's still true.

Some religious denominations and many individual Christians have played active, courageous, self-sacrificing roles in the battle to eliminate racial barriers from American society.

But the church as a whole remains the least integrated public institution in this country.

The 1973 edition of the Yearbook of American Churches, most authoritative source of religious statistics, reports that 90 per cent of America's 14.4 million black Christians are members of predominantly black denominations.

Many of the remaining 10 per cent, while affiliated with racially mixed denominations, attend local churches that are exclusively or overwhelmingly black in membership.

At the most optimistic estimate, fewer than one million black Christians worship regularly in congregations that are geuninely integrated (as opposed to having a token membership of one or two black families).

"The church is still divided mainly into black churches and white churches," says the Rev. W. Sterling Cary of New York, first Negro president of the National Council of Churches.

"The only churches that are truly integrated are those in transition from white to black. We are self-righteous at the national level of church life about prodding secular institutions into becoming more racially open.

"But in my view, the political, educational and business structures of this nation are in fact reflecting far more racial inclusiveness than the churches."

Some who have worked long and hard for integration of the church might argue that white racism —overt or subtle —is by no means the only factor involved in continued segregation of religious life in America.

Many white congregations are not only ready to welcome black members they are actively seeking them. But they find the majority of black Christians reluctant or unwilling to venture into interracial worship.

Black Christians acknowledge this. They say it is an attitude compounded partly of doubt about the kind of welcome they'd receive, and partly of a desire to avoid being conspicuous exceptions in a sea of white faces. Worship is a personal and private area of a person's life, and it is easy to understand why most people tend to choose a church in which they feel completely at home.

Given these facts of human psychology, it seems unlikely that racial integration will become widespread in churches until it has become a routine, matter-of-fact reality in other sectors of American life.

In particular, desegregation of churches may have to wait on desegregation of housing. People who live together as neighbors seven days a week shouldn't feel strange coming together for worship at eleven o'clock on Sunday morning.

Smog Law Stops European Autos

WASHINGTON (UPI) — European auto manufacturers, like their American counterparts, said yesterday that they cannot meet tough American emission standards for 1976.

Testifying before the Senate air and water pollution subcommittee, German and French manufacturers said their diesel cars would come closer to meeting the standards than gasoline-powered automobiles.

But top officials of Daimler-Benz of Germany, Peugeot of France, and a German subsidiary of General Motors said there was practically no hope of even diesels meeting the tough new standards.

The response prompted Chairman Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, to accuse the European manufacturers of following the lead of the American auto industry in not trying to meet the standards.

"There seems to be this love affair with the gasoline engine because of the large market," Muskie said. He said this was "standing in the way" of the development of other types of engines that might have fewer pollution problems.

But the foreign auto manufacturers disagreed, saying they were trying to improve both gasoline and diesel engines.

"We're working hard at it," said Friedrich van Winsen, director of passenger car design and development for Daimler-Benz, the producer of Mercedes-Benz autos.

Van Winsen said the 6,000 Mercedes diesel cars sold in the U.S. market represents only 15 per cent of sales but that his company was working to reduce its emissions.

The diesel, he said, could meet U.S. 1975 standards for gasoline-powered cars "with relative ease" but that 1976 standards on nitrogen oxide emissions "may be beyond the reach of the diesel."

To develop an entirely new diesel engine, he said, would take "at least five and probably six years."

Pierre de Montmarin, president of Peugeot Inc., the U.S. subsidiary of the French firm, said the company had just recently decided to sell diesel cars in the United States because of their greater economy of operation and reduced air pollution.

De Montmarin said the lower power of diesel engined cars had made them unsuited for the American market until emission control devices lowered the performance of gasoline-powered cars.

"Suddenly, our diesel engine automobile became a very realistic contender on this market with performances similar to many gasoline automobiles which will be built to meet the 1975 and 1976 standards," de Montmarin said.

Charles S. Chapman, chief engineer for the GM German subsidiary, Adam Opel AG, said his company's diesel engine also could meet 1975 U.S. emission standards. But Chapman said there was "not much hope" of meeting the 1976 standards.

Insecticide Blamed For Bug Epidemic

FALLS RIVER MILLS (UPI) — Insecticides used to kill mosquitos in this Sierra region apparently also have killed the predators of another harmful insect, resulting in an epidemic of tree-attacking bugs.

California staff Forester Robert Malain said a number of ponderosa pines in the region are now infested with black pine-leaf scale, turning them a sickly yellow color. He said a few of the pines have died and the others, although they look "pretty doggone bad," will probably suffer only some slowing of growth.

Malain said the epidemic was limited to two one-mile stretches of road that had been treated by the Pine Grove Mosquito Abatement District. He said it was difficult to estimate how many trees were involved, but added that the blight extended 100 feet in either direction from the road.

He said the district, when informed of the problem, agreed to alter its mosquito control program in pine tree groves.

Little Electric Box Provides Pain Relief

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Some patients here are finding relief from pain with a little box that sends electrical charges into their skin, researchers report.

The battery-operated device, with dials to control the frequency and strength of the impulse, reduced pain temporarily in almost all patients who use it, and about 20 per cent get relief for as long as a week. Dr. Burton Wise, chief of neurosurgery at Mt. Zion Hospital, said Thursday.

"We don't know why it works — just that it does wonders for some patients," Wise said.

The pulse generator — about the size of a cigarette pack — is connected to two electrodes which are taped to the patients' skin over the area of pain. The patients themselves perform the treatment, formally known as transcutaneous nerve stimulation, by turning the dials until they feel a strong tingling sensation. The pulse can be varied from 20 to 600 cycles per second and up to 40 volts in strength.

Dr. Curtis Gleason, who built the device, said the treatment causes no nerve damage and maintains its effectiveness through repeated use.

"We have several patients who, after suffering chronic pain for years, can now go without pain for more than a week after each 15-minute treatment," Gleason said.

Of 29 patients who have used the box here, Gleason said, 12 got relief for less than an hour, 11 for more than an hour but less than a day, and six for from one to nine days. One man's pain got worse, but only while the machine was turned on.

Gleason said a similar device has been used on about 500 patients at the University of Minnesota's Pain Clinic, with 60 per cent reporting "good to excellent" results.

The most promising use of the technique, Gleason said, is helping patients recover from surgery without pain-killing drugs. He said it also could provide a possible remedy for common complaints such as headache and arthritis.

But Gleason warned that the device also contains "a lot of potential for abuse," and said one patient who took a generator home decided to "treat everyone on the block for pain."

"People may get hold of these things and block pain that's warning them of some real problem," he said.

I-J Is Winner In Promotion Competition

The Independent-Journal has been named a first place winner promotion on radio in the 38th annual Editor and Publisher magazine promotion awards.

The I-J, previously honored numerous times for promotional work, was among four daily newspapers picked in the category. The paper will be one of 27 Editor and Publisher winners honored Wednesday during the International Newspaper Promotion Association Conference in San Diego.

A total of 43 newspapers were prize winners in 17 classifications and two circulation groups from a field of 700 entries.

WINNING ART

This stoneware lamp base in tones of red, brown and gray by Eric Norstad of Corte Madera captured one of three top honors in the educational television station KQED auction and art competition. A photograph of the work will be among 57 pieces of auction art on exhibit through May 26 in the lobby of the Crown Zellerbach building in San Francisco. The lamp base will be sold during the station's fund-raising auction June 1 through June 10. A half-hour special on Norstad and the other winning artists will be aired following the auction.

14-Year-Old Genius Granted Scholarship

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Responding to public pressure, the University of Michigan today announced a scholarship to a 14-year-old genius who was denied financial aid earlier.

Greg Wellman, a freshman in the general studies program, was granted $400 per semester outright. In addition, the university said it would loan him $500 per semester at a nominal 3 per cent interest.

Allan F. Smith, vice president of academic affairs, said financial aid scholarships normally are decided in midsummer.

"However," he said, "because of the widespread interest in the situation involving Greg Wellman, an early evaluation has been made of his financial needs."

Wellman, described as a "bona fide genius," achieved national attention last month when it was reported that the U-M had told his parents that he would be denied assistance because the family's financial need was not great enough.

Wellman's father, Darrell, makes $13,500 as a state police trooper but last year suffered a heart attack and accumulated large medical bills.

Last week, the College of Literature, Science and Arts refused to renew the one scholarship the boy held.

A number of angry alumni canceled pledges of gifts to the school, and letters critical of the university poured in from across the country..

Wellman enrolled in two courses at the U-M last fall while still a senior in high school, and last semester he took 16 hours in an honors program in which his parents say he has earned all A's.

Brown Blast At Reagan Is Rebutted

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Senate Republican leader today defended Gov. Ronald Reagan against Democratic charges that he has used "big-lie" economics in state finances.

The assertion was leveled against Reagan by Democratic Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. in a speech Tuesday to the Town Hall in Los Angeles.

Sen. John Harmer of Glendale, GOP caucus chairman, issued a statement charging Brown with "manipulating tax figures to show that taxes have risen since Gov. Reagan took office."

He said taxes would "have risen no matter" who was governor "but they have risen at a slower rate under this administration than previous ones. Such deceit by Brown leaves the implication that the governor is responsible entirely, and that is false."

Brown, a contender for the 1974 Democratic gubernatorial nomination, said in his speech that public distrust of government in California is fed by what he called Reagan's "big-lie economics."

"The truth is that our state budget has more than doubled since Reagan took office and his plan to return the tax surplus is only a public relations sham," Brown said.

Jazz Group To Present Spring Show

The Sonoma State College Jazz Ensemble will present a tribute to George Gershin at its spring concert Monday and Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Ives Hall.

Music will include songs from "Porgy and Bess," and show tunes "The Man I Love," "Embraceable You," "A Foggy Day" and "Rhapsody in Blue."

Sandy Sadler, a member of the Santa Rosa Players, will narrate the program, which features vocalists Bertha Wims, Jeff Oster, David Tigner, Barbara Downey and pianist Robert Ramos.

Original arrangements by Ramos, Daniel Chambers, Frank Bigoski and Timothy Haggerty will be featured in the first part of the program. Walter Oster directs the ensemble and will produce the program.

Subject, Not Film, Will Make 'Hitler' A Success

By LOUSE SWEENEY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Just after I'd seen "Hitler: The Last Ten Days," a friend told me about a 10-year-old boy in Connecticut who asked his parents if he and his friends could throw a birthday party. The party was for their current folk hero, Adolf Hitler. And they were allowed to throw it.

We are going through a period of morbid fascination with the man who was responsible for the European holocaust of World War II and the death of six million Jews. And films like this one, as good as its intentions may be, do little to dispel the mythology which has begun to cloud the picture of the madman who masterminded Auschwitz and Buchenwald.

The last 10 days in the life of Adolf Hitler is a subject with built-in drama and historical import, but this "John Heyman presentation of a Wolfgang Reinhardt Production" captures neither drama nor history. Take for example, the final scene in the film.

We have been told several times in the picture that Hitler abhorred smoking and forbade it in his presence.

Director Ennio de Concini would have us believe that the final, climactic moment in the death of Hitler and the toppling of his dictatorship is reached after his suicide when the entire Nazi high command gathers round to light up and puff. That last — and most ludicrous — scene in the film looks more like a TV commercial than a tragedy about the man who brought Europe down around his ears. And it sums up much of what is wrong about this film which will probably be a hit because of its subject.

ALEC GUINESS
(Christian Science Monitor Photo)

The best thing in "Hitler" is Alec Guinness' ambitious, detailed, and thoughtful impersonation of him. He is convincing looking, with his faintly penguin walk, toothbrush moustache, slant of black hair, irrational reactions. But not convincing enough — Guinness' Hitler is not crow-bender, no raving zealot. The look in his eyes in those last 10 days is that of the trapped rabbit, not of the suicidal, raging psychopath who sent children to defend the bridges of Berlin and passed out to his staff leather-boxed sets of fatal cyanide pills along with silver-framed photos of himself.

In fact, although there are glimpses of some grisly concentration camp newsreels and other Nazi horrors, the portrait of Hitler painted here is often of some bizarre but kindly man, dandling singing children on his knee, worrying about the comfort of his German Shepherd Blondi, and pressing more chocolate cake on his guests. There is none of the necessary fanaticism of say, Sterling Hayden's General Ripper in "Dr. Strangelove," none of the frightening authenticity of Charlie Chaplin's brilliant parody in "The Great Dictator."

The film itself is claustrophobic. It looks as though it had been shot on a low budget; except for newsreel clips the director rarely moves outside of the gray cement and steel bunker where Hitler holed up in Berlin for his last 10 days. And when he does leave the bunker, it is totally unconvincing — none of the superb, devastated-city footage of "Slaughterhouse Five," for instance.

The much-heralded scene of Hitler's wedding to his mistress Eva Braun is a pale shadow of the Nazi wedding in Visconti's "The Damned." Doris Kunstmann is memorable as Eva Braun, with her dirndls and calculated girlishness, her sweet, dim devotion to Hitler. The rest of a capable cast includes Simon Ward, Diane Cilento, Eric Porter, Adolfo Celi.

The battery-operated device, with dials to control the frequency and strength of the impulse, reduced pain temporarily in almost all patients who use it, and about 20 per cent get relief for as long as a week. Dr. Burton Wise, chief of neurosurgery at Mt. Zion Hospital, said Thursday.

"We don't know why it works — just that it does wonders for some patients," Wise said.

The pulse generator — about the size of a cigarette pack — is connected to two electrodes which are taped to the patients' skin over the area of pain. The patients themselves perform the treatment, formally known as transcutaneous nerve stimulation, by turning the dials until they feel a strong tingling sensation. The pulse can be varied from 20 to 600 cycles per second and up to 40 volts in strength.

Dr. Curtis Gleason, who built the device, said the treatment causes no nerve damage and maintains its effectiveness through repeated use.

"We have several patients who, after suffering chronic pain for years, can now go without pain for more than a week after each 15-minute treatment," Gleason said.

Of 29 patients who have used the box here, Gleason said, 12 got relief for less than an hour, 11 for more than an hour but less than a day, and six for from one to nine days. One man's pain got worse, but only while the machine was turned on.

Gleason said a similar device has been used on about 500 patients at the University of Minnesota's Pain Clinic, with 60 per cent reporting "good to excellent" results.

The most promising use of the technique, Gleason said, is helping patients recover from surgery without pain-killing drugs. He said it also could provide a possible remedy for common complaints such as headache and arthritis.

But Gleason warned that the device also contains "a lot of potential for abuse," and said one patient who took a generator home decided to "treat everyone on the block for pain."

"People may get hold of these things and block pain that's warning them of some real problem," he said.

I-J Is Winner In Promotion Competition

The Independent-Journal has been named a first place winner promotion on radio in the 38th annual Editor and Publisher magazine promotion awards.

The I-J, previously honored numerous times for promotional work, was among four daily newspapers picked in the category. The paper will be one of 27 Editor and Publisher winners honored Wednesday during the International Newspaper Promotion Association Conference in San Diego.

A total of 43 newspapers were prize winners in 17 classifications and two circulation groups from a field of 700 entries.

WINNING ART

This stoneware lamp base in tones of red, brown and gray by Eric Norstad of Corte Madera captured one of three top honors in the educational television station KQED auction and art competition. A photograph of the work will be among 57 pieces of auction art on exhibit through May 26 in the lobby of the Crown Zellerbach building in San Francisco. The lamp base will be sold during the station's fund-raising auction June 1 through June 10. A half-hour special on Norstad and the other winning artists will be aired following the auction.

14-Year-Old Genius Granted Scholarship

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Responding to public pressure, the University of Michigan today announced a scholarship to a 14-year-old genius who was denied financial aid earlier.

Greg Wellman, a freshman in the general studies program, was granted $400 per semester outright. In addition, the university said it would loan him $500 per semester at a nominal 3 per cent interest.

Allan F. Smith, vice president of academic affairs, said financial aid scholarships normally are decided in midsummer.

"However," he said, "because of the widespread interest in the situation involving Greg Wellman, an early evaluation has been made of his financial needs."

Wellman, described as a "bona fide genius," achieved national attention last month when it was reported that the U-M had told his parents that he would be denied assistance because the family's financial need was not great enough.

Wellman's father, Darrell, makes $13,500 as a state police trooper but last year suffered a heart attack and accumulated large medical bills.

Last week, the College of Literature, Science and Arts refused to renew the one scholarship the boy held.

A number of angry alumni canceled pledges of gifts to the school, and letters critical of the university poured in from across the country..

Wellman enrolled in two courses at the U-M last fall while still a senior in high school, and last semester he took 16 hours in an honors program in which his parents say he has earned all A's.

Brown Blast At Reagan Is Rebutted

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Senate Republican leader today defended Gov. Ronald Reagan against Democratic charges that he has used "big-lie" economics in state finances.

The assertion was leveled against Reagan by Democratic Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. in a speech Tuesday to the Town Hall in Los Angeles.

Sen. John Harmer of Glendale, GOP caucus chairman, issued a statement charging Brown with "manipulating tax figures to show that taxes have risen since Gov. Reagan took office."

He said taxes would "have risen no matter" who was governor "but they have risen at a slower rate under this administration than previous ones. Such deceit by Brown leaves the implication that the governor is responsible entirely, and that is false."

Brown, a contender for the 1974 Democratic gubernatorial nomination, said in his speech that public distrust of government in California is fed by what he called Reagan's "big-lie economics."

"The truth is that our state budget has more than doubled since Reagan took office and his plan to return the tax surplus is only a public relations sham," Brown said.

Jazz Group To Present Spring Show

The Sonoma State College Jazz Ensemble will present a tribute to George Gershin at its spring concert Monday and Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Ives Hall.

Music will include songs from "Porgy and Bess," and show tunes "The Man I Love," "Embraceable You," "A Foggy Day" and "Rhapsody in Blue."

Sandy Sadler, a member of the Santa Rosa Players, will narrate the program, which features vocalists Bertha Wims, Jeff Oster, David Tigner, Barbara Downey and pianist Robert Ramos.

Original arrangements by Ramos, Daniel Chambers, Frank Bigoski and Timothy Haggerty will be featured in the first part of the program. Walter Oster directs the ensemble and will produce the program.

Subject, Not Film, Will Make 'Hitler' A Success

Just after I'd seen "Hitler: The Last Ten Days," a friend told me about a 10-year-old boy in Connecticut who asked his parents if he and his friends could throw a birthday party. The party was for their current folk hero, Adolf Hitler. And they were allowed to throw it.

We are going through a period of morbid fascination with the man who was responsible for the European holocaust of World War II and the death of six million Jews. And films like this one, as good as its intentions may be, do little to dispel the mythology which has begun to cloud the picture of the madman who masterminded Auschwitz and Buchenwald.

The last 10 days in the life of Adolf Hitler is a subject with built-in drama and historical import, but this "John Heyman presentation of a Wolfgang Reinhardt Production" captures neither drama nor history. Take for example, the final scene in the film.

We have been told several times in the picture that Hitler abhorred smoking and forbade it in his presence.

Director Ennio de Concini would have us believe that the final, climactic moment in the death of Hitler and the toppling of his dictatorship is reached after his suicide when the entire Nazi high command gathers round to light up and puff. That last — and most ludicrous — scene in the film looks more like a TV commercial than a tragedy about the man who brought Europe down around his ears. And it sums up much of what is wrong about this film which will probably be a hit because of its subject.

The best thing in "Hitler" is Alec Guinness' ambitious, detailed, and thoughtful impersonation of him. He is convincing looking, with his faintly penguin walk, toothbrush moustache, slant of black hair, irrational reactions. But not convincing enough — Guinness' Hitler is not crow-bender, no raving zealot. The look in his eyes in those last 10 days is that of the trapped rabbit, not of the suicidal, raging psychopath who sent children to defend the bridges of Berlin and passed out to his staff leather-boxed sets of fatal cyanide pills along with silver-framed photos of himself.

In fact, although there are glimpses of some grisly concentration camp newsreels and other Nazi horrors, the portrait of Hitler painted here is often of some bizarre but kindly man, dandling singing children on his knee, worrying about the comfort of his German Shepherd Blondi, and pressing more chocolate cake on his guests. There is none of the necessary fanaticism of say, Sterling Hayden's General Ripper in "Dr. Strangelove," none of the frightening authenticity of Charlie Chaplin's brilliant parody in "The Great Dictator."

The film itself is claustrophobic. It looks as though it had been shot on a low budget; except for newsreel clips the director rarely moves outside of the gray cement and steel bunker where Hitler holed up in Berlin for his last 10 days. And when he does leave the bunker, it is totally unconvincing — none of the superb, devastated-city footage of "Slaughterhouse Five," for instance.

Retarded Centers Faced With Long Waiting Lists

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Waiting lists of persons seeking help—2,500 cases in Los Angeles alone—are facing California's regional diagnostic centers for the mentally retarded, the Reagan administration has disclosed.

Andy Robertson, state director of Mental Health, told a special Senate committee yesterday the Southern California facility has a backlog of about 2,500 cases.

But he was not able to provide the committee with accurate estimates on the length of the waiting lists at the 13 other centers.

The privately operated centers were authorized by the legislature several years ago to diagnose mentally ill and retarded patients and refer them to local community care programs or state hospitals.

Before the present trend began towards treating the mentally ill at the local level, diagnostic screening was performed at state hospitals.

The hearing was a first in a series planned by the Select Senate Committee on the Proposed Phaseout of State Hospital Services. The committee is attempting to determine whether the proposed long-range closures are going to take place before adequate care is available locally.

Sen. Alan Short, D-Stockton, recommended that state hospitals once again begin screening patients.

"I'm just asking you to use all the facilities, because, dammit, you have them," Short told state Health Director J.M. Stubblebine.

"If you need money ask for it. If we don't give it to you, it's our fault. If you don't ask, it's your fault," Short said.

Stubblebine said the governor is seeking $27 million to operate the regional centers during the next fiscal year, up $5 million from what he originally sought.

Stubblebine also declared he is "determine that no mentally ill, no developmentally disabled persons, young or old, will be removed from a state hospital unless we are satisfied that high quality care to meet his needs exists in the community.

Robertson said cases on the Los Angeles waiting list were not seeking to enter a state mental hospital.

He promised to report back with exact figures for the other waiting lists.

Nicasio Board Gives Teachers Pay Boost

The Nicasio School District board has approved a 10 per cent salary hike for teachers and nonteaching personnel in the district, according to Beverly Alberigi, district secretary.

The board Thursday adopted a new salary schedule for teachers, ranging from $7,045 to $13,338, representing about a 10 per cent increase over the current schedule of $6,663 to $10,045.

Nonteaching staff was given a 10 per cent across-the-board increase.

Trustees also approved a 1973-74 budget of $62,000, abut $5,200 less than this year's figure. The decrease was attributed to the laying off of one teacher due to declining enrollment, Miss Alberigi said.

She estimated the district's tax rate would be between 76 and 80 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. The current rate is 76 cents.

The board set June 14 for the district graduation and scheduled its next meeting for June 13.

Townhouse Approval Suggested

The Marin County Planning Department has recommended approval of a revised master plan for the controversial San Pedro Reserve townhouse development in Santa Venetia.

The revised plan, to be considered Monday by the county planning commission, would allow first stage development of 450 units — 150 of which would be for moderate and middle income families.

About 1,200 homes are planned eventually for the 256-acre site off East Merriam Drive on the San Pedro Ridge.

The project is opposed by some nearby residents who want the land left for open space. They said the development will worsen already bad traffic, sewage and drainage in the area.

The planning commission, meeting at 9 a.m. at Civic Center, also will consider a precise development plan for 49 condominium units on Greenwood Cove Drive in Strawberry.

STRIKING TEACHERS PICKETED

Children from Burton Elementary School in the Evergreen School District in Vancouver, Wash., yesterday picketed teachers who are out on strike. Members of the Evergreen Education Association went on strike Monday and schools in the district have been closed all week. The youngsters yesterday made it clear they weren't happy with the situation. They are, front to rear, Tracy Yager, 7, Jennifer Keegan, 10, Lori Walton, 11, and Bonnie Graven, 11.

Council To Consider Project On Hillside

The San Rafael City Council will consider a controversial proposal to develop a graded hillside north of the Marin Civic Center when it meets at 8 p.m. Monday in City Hall.

Contractor Arthur R. Nicolaisen has proposed a six-story office building, restaurant, service station and car wash for the 15-acre site across from the Terra Linda interchange.

Nicolaisen will request that the parcel be rezoned to allow development plans to proceed, as well as present a new environmental impact statement on the project. The council last November postponed consideration of development plans after balking at an apparent lack of public input in compiling the report.

The council also will consider a request from the McCarthy Co. of Northern California that consideration of its plan to develop a 54-acre site near the Civic Center with a 292-unit complex be postponed until June 4. The council last May 2 delayed rezoning the parcel, saying the project's environmental impact report was inadequate.

The council also will hear a status report on preparation of the city's new general plan, discuss a proposal to streamline council agendas and consider a plan to increase dog impound fees in the city.

The meeting will be preceded by a closed session on two vacant seats on the city library board and a status report on employee pay negotiations.

STRIKING TEACHERS PICKETED

Children from Burton Elementary School in the Evergreen School District in Vancouver, Wash., yesterday picketed teachers who are out on strike. Members of the Evergreen Education Association went on strike Monday and schools in the district have been closed all week. The youngsters yesterday made it clear they weren't happy with the situation. They are, front to rear, Tracy Yager, 7, Jennifer Keegan, 10, Lori Walton, 11, and Bonnie Graven, 11.

Council To Consider Project On Hillside

The San Rafael City Council will consider a controversial proposal to develop a graded hillside north of the Marin Civic Center when it meets at 8 p.m. Monday in City Hall.

Contractor Arthur R. Nicolaisen has proposed a six-story office building, restaurant, service station and car wash for the 15-acre site across from the Terra Linda interchange.

Nicolaisen will request that the parcel be rezoned to allow development plans to proceed, as well as present a new environmental impact statement on the project. The council last November postponed consideration of development plans after balking at an apparent lack of public input in compiling the report.

The council also will consider a request from the McCarthy Co. of Northern California that consideration of its plan to develop a 54-acre site near the Civic Center with a 292-unit complex be postponed until June 4. The council last May 2 delayed rezoning the parcel, saying the project's environmental impact report was inadequate.

The council also will hear a status report on preparation of the city's new general plan, discuss a proposal to streamline council agendas and consider a plan to increase dog impound fees in the city.

The meeting will be preceded by a closed session on two vacant seats on the city library board and a status report on employee pay negotiations.

BLACK WOMAN ACTIVIST

Media Is Ripped As 'Oppressor'

By BARBARA HOSMER

Activist and attorney, Florynce Kennedy last night admitted she was "a TV junkie" and went on to blast the mass media as an oppressor of the opressed in this country.

Speaking to some 200 people at Redwood High School in Larkspur, she said "Media is one of the 'niggerizing' institutions" and one of the most influential.

She stated that people don't excercise the dollar power they could to stop their rip-off by the media. Her scattered verbal shots were aimed at the large sums of money wasted on commercials by industry which the people pay for, media support of the traditional systems and institutions that keep on oppressing people, failure to cover responsibly many issues of interest to minorities, women and other oppressed groups, and insufficient air time and space to their important issues.

"You think, 'they're taking care of Watergate, so the media is wised up' but in the media is found the Wise Monkeys . . . they hear no evil, see no evil and speak no evil" in many cases, she stated.

MEDIA GIVES more time and attention nationally to the ball scores than to much of what is really going on, she said. In Florida last year, women were asking each other "what's happening with abortion in Michigan, or in Florida, when you can find out anywhere in in the country what's happining to the Oakland A's," Mrs. Kennedy said. Hours and hours of daily time are given to sports and reruns of "I Love Lucy"...... but if "you say 'I want to do a series of programs on abortion' to a station, they say, 'We've done abortion.' Then you ask, 'Have you done golf?' They do golf every day," she said.

The media also picked up the idea of bra-burning, Flo Kennedy said, even though women never burned any bras, because "the media is enamoured over the idea of associating people who are "niggerized." "They liked the concept of bra-burners. Nobody talks about cross burning. The Ku Klux Klan is very well-accepted American institution," remarked the black activist.

"The media project bra burners, draft-card burners, flag burners — all concepts kept alive by the media, and you keep the media alive by the per cent of every dollar you give Procter and Gamble," she said.

"Media pick up and keep the old values that keep us down. Sports are sacred, except once in awhile the POWs come along. Media project the values . . . pick the killers you should hate. I want to pick my own killers, not a POW who dropped napalm down on tiny villages which burned women and babies from way up high . . . Then there's Jonathan Jackson — I'd rather pick my killers." she said.

SHE REMARKED that commercials cost some $250,000, adding "wouldn't it be better if Bayer Aspirin had given Women on the Move at Redwood a day care center for $85,000 or a mini park to some community or a health clinic?"

Proctor and Gamble spends $300 million a year on advertising, she said.

"It's arbitrary and unacceptable programming and it can't continue."

"I suggest Women on the Move or some others lead a project on monitoring media and demand more air time for women in media.

"The first three rows of you could put any advertising agency out of business if you really went at it," she told the audience.

A GRACEFULLY curved stairway dominates the entrance to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Anttonen in Terra Linda. The home is decorated with a quiet English flair. It will be open to the public on Wednesday between 10 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. for a house tour sponsored by the Terra Linda, Marinwood and Lucas Valley Guilds of Sunny Hills.

Fourth Annual Home Tour Scheduled For Next Week

Six homes will be open Wednesday for the fourth annual house tour sponsored by the Terra Linda, Marinwood and Lucas Valley guilds of Sunny Hills.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert DeHaan in Los Ranchitos was built in 1972 on a tree lined creek amidst wild flowers and the exterior is all cedar. The owners lived in Peru and have decorated the home with Peruvian furniture and artifacts.

The Terra Linda homes of Mr. and Mrs. Ruhl Russell and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Anttonen are on the tour.

The Russells' home is a blend of modern, Okinawan and Philippine furnishings. The Anttonens' French country home has gracefully curved stairway and quiet English furnishings.

Former opera singers, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Johnson jr., have designed the living room of their Marin Golf and Country Club home with music in mind. The spacious deck, adjacent to an attractive kitchen and antique dining setting, is designed for year around enjoyment.

Also in the Marin Golf and Country Club area are the homes of Mr. and Mrs. John Seamas and Mr. and Mrs. Hal Aguirre.

The Seamas home, built last year, utilizes rock formations at the entry and fireplace. A health spa is in the bathroom. The Aguirres' home blends contemporary and antique furnishings. Champagne and hors d'oeuvres will be served poolside in the old fashioned garden setting.

Chairman of the tour is Mrs. Patrick Tyrell-Smith. Tickets are available from Mmes. Neal T. McClosky, Raymond Kelleher, Robert Horvath and James D. Collins, all of San Rafael. Hours of the tour are 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and participants may begin at any of the homes.

The tour is a benefit for the Sunny Hills Home in San Anselmo.

Mountain Play Picnic To Attract Several Groups

By MOLLY MARIN

Among the groups planning to attend the Mountain Play picnic and hike tomorrow are Mrs. Helen Hinchcliffe, Clinton Pittman, Mr. and Mrs. William Hurlbert and Patricia Mills, who will be the guests of Marion Hayes Cain at a supper at her home in San Anselmo following the day on the mountain.

Mrs. Cain has long been active in Mountain Play productions as have many of the others planning to attend the picnic at the mountain theater on Mount Tamalpais. She and Dan Totheroh, who has written and directed many of the productions, are seeking support from the community to continue the Mountain Play.

Totheroh will attend with a group of friends including David Forsberg, who has appeared in 16 past productions and Forsberg's sister, Elizabeth Birmingham, who has come from Los Angeles to attend.

Others who plan to attend are Messrs. and Mmes. Benjamin Dreyfus, Jeffory Morshead and Don Arntz and Justice Richard M. Sims Jr., president of the Mountain Play Association.

A hike is planned by the Richard Hein family.

MR. AND MRS. Robert Cummings have returned recently to their Bevedere home from the Orient where they had a reunion with Gigi Cummings' large family in Hong Kong.

Last November Mrs. Cummings' mother, Mrs. Malvina Young of Hong Kong, who was visiting her in Belvedere, took Mrs. Cummings' 9-year-old daughter Michelle back to Hong Kong for Mrs. Young's daughter's wedding.

Michelle is back in Reed School now, speaking Cantonese fluently.

While in the Orient the former film star and his Chinese wife visited Toyko, Osaka, Hong Kong and Taipei.

"Hong Kong is a changed city, crowded now with people and traffic," remarked Gigi Cummings, who is glad to be back in the open spaces of California.

"People in Hong Kong are very sociable and we did more eating than sightseeing," said Mrs. Cummings. She had not visited her Hong Kong relations for seven years.

Upon their return to Belvedere, Bob Cummings disassociated business relations with William Penn Patrick and he will return to the stage in "What are You Doing in My Life?" a comedy to open June 12 in Jacksonville, Fla.

After the play is over the family plans to go to the Renaissance, a $200-a-day Naussau multi-therapeutic center of the revitalization sciences.

NEIL CUMMINS School teacher Mrs. Helen Wagner will be honored at a retirement party Tuesday afternoon at the Corte Madera school. A teacher at Neil Cummins School for 20 years, she is retiring at the end of this school session.

BARBARA JEAN Murphy will be honored at a reception May 28 by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Don Midyett of Novato at their home. She will be graduated the previous day from University of San Francisco School of Nursing. Barbara is the wife of Mill Valley policeman Dan Murphy.

MR. AND Mrs. Robert Alan Padway are touring Europe following their marriage April 29 at St. Pascal's Catholic Church in Oakland.

The bride is the former Carol Sue Framsted, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byron G. Framsted of Oakland. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred L. Padway of San Rafael.

The newlyweds will live in San Francisco.

BACK IN Marin for a visit are Dr. and Mrs. Richard Brunstetter, who moved from Tiburon 11 months ago to New Orleans where he is professor of psychiatry and director of child psychiatry at Tulane University school of medicine.

The Brunstetters are houseguests of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Rouda of Belvedere, who gave a large party for them last Sunday and plan a luncheon for friends of Roberta Brunstetter on Wednesday at the Caprice restaurant in Tiburon.

FRED TEMPS of San Rafael has entered his 1920 Mercury Rajo Special in the 17th annual Hillsborough Concours d' Elegance.

The concours will be held tomorrow from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. at the William H. Crocker and North Hillsborough Schools in Hillsborough.

MR. AND MRS. J. Samuel Burafato of San Miguel de Allende, Mexico, have been staying in Ross with her mother, Maria del Carmen Reyes, and Mrs. J.S. Potter.

Mrs. Burafato has recently returned from Haifa, Israel, where she attended a meeting for councillors of the Baha'i World Faith. The couple and her mother left yesterday to return home to San Miguel de Allende and the latter will go on to visit her son and his family in Guatemala City, Guatemala.

THE DATE of the wedding of Jacqueline Willey of Novato and Gregory Smith of Fort Polk, La., has been changed from June 15 to June 8.

Smith's Army orders have been changed and he must leave for Germany by June 18.

The wedding will be at the Hamilton Air Force Base Chapel and will be followed by a reception at the bride's parents home, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Willey, in Novato.

MR. AND Mrs. John Anthony Imbimbo are living in Kentfield following their marriage on May 5 at St. Rita's Church in Fairfax. The bride is the former Mary Isetta.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Andrew A. Isetta of Fairfax and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dionigi Imbimbo of San Anselmo.

Michelle is back in Reed School now, speaking Cantonese fluently.

While in the Orient the former film star and his Chinese wife visited Toyko, Osaka, Hong Kong and Taipei.

"Hong Kong is a changed city, crowded now with people and traffic," remarked Gigi Cummings, who is glad to be back in the open spaces of California.

"People in Hong Kong are very sociable and we did more eating than sightseeing," said Mrs. Cummings. She had not visited her Hong Kong relations for seven years.

Upon their return to Belvedere, Bob Cummings disassociated business relations with William Penn Patrick and he will return to the stage in "What are You Doing in My Life?" a comedy to open June 12 in Jacksonville, Fla.

After the play is over the family plans to go to the Renaissance, a $200-a-day Naussau multi-therapeutic center of the revitalization sciences.

NEIL CUMMINS School teacher Mrs. Helen Wagner will be honored at a retirement party Tuesday afternoon at the Corte Madera school. A teacher at Neil Cummins School for 20 years, she is retiring at the end of this school session.

BARBARA JEAN Murphy will be honored at a reception May 28 by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Don Midyett of Novato at their home. She will be graduated the previous day from University of San Francisco School of Nursing. Barbara is the wife of Mill Valley policeman Dan Murphy.

MR. AND Mrs. Robert Alan Padway are touring Europe following their marriage April 29 at St. Pascal's Catholic Church in Oakland.

The bride is the former Carol Sue Framsted, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byron G. Framsted of Oakland. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred L. Padway of San Rafael.

The newlyweds will live in San Francisco.

BACK IN Marin for a visit are Dr. and Mrs. Richard Brunstetter, who moved from Tiburon 11 months ago to New Orleans where he is professor of psychiatry and director of child psychiatry at Tulane University school of medicine.

The Brunstetters are houseguests of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Rouda of Belvedere, who gave a large party for them last Sunday and plan a luncheon for friends of Roberta Brunstetter on Wednesday at the Caprice restaurant in Tiburon.

FRED TEMPS of San Rafael has entered his 1920 Mercury Rajo Special in the 17th annual Hillsborough Concours d' Elegance.

The concours will be held tomorrow from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. at the William H. Crocker and North Hillsborough Schools in Hillsborough.

MR. AND MRS. J. Samuel Burafato of San Miguel de Allende, Mexico, have been staying in Ross with her mother, Maria del Carmen Reyes, and Mrs. J.S. Potter.

Mrs. Burafato has recently returned from Haifa, Israel, where she attended a meeting for councillors of the Baha'i World Faith. The couple and her mother left yesterday to return home to San Miguel de Allende and the latter will go on to visit her son and his family in Guatemala City, Guatemala.

THE DATE of the wedding of Jacqueline Willey of Novato and Gregory Smith of Fort Polk, La., has been changed from June 15 to June 8.

Smith's Army orders have been changed and he must leave for Germany by June 18.

The wedding will be at the Hamilton Air Force Base Chapel and will be followed by a reception at the bride's parents home, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Willey, in Novato.

MR. AND Mrs. John Anthony Imbimbo are living in Kentfield following their marriage on May 5 at St. Rita's Church in Fairfax. The bride is the former Mary Isetta.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Andrew A. Isetta of Fairfax and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dionigi Imbimbo of San Anselmo.

Cloth For A Round Table

By EUNICE FARMER
(Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate)

DEAR EUNICE,

I'm sorry to ask you to repeat my request. I didn't save your instructions the first time. I would love to make a tablecloth for a round table. I don't think there is anything that brings spring and summer into your home or patio like a fresh, printed tablecloth. The ones I see that are ready-made never seem to be made out of the print I need to look right in my home.

MRS. S.S.

DEAR MRS. S.S.,

The beautiful part about a lively print tablecloth is that it can cover up any old beat-up table and look fantastic. I would also like to suggest at this point that you spray your tablecloth with fabric finish to prevent spotting, you will have to launder your cloth much less.

First, remember you will need a square of fabric. The length and the width must be the same. Since all tables vary in size, I have decided to use a table 30 inches wide as an example. You will change your yardage and measurements according to your own table. You must also decide whether you will use a long fringe, a deep ruffle or simply a narrow hem at the lower edge. This naturally will affect the width of fabric you will need.

Measure from the floor, straight up to the edge of your table, across the center of the table and down to the floor again. This is the width of the fabric you will need, in both directions. You may subtract whatever you wish depending on your lower hem treatment.

We will begin with a table that is 30 inches wide, and the standard height of 29 inches. For this size table you will need approximately two widths of 45-inch fabric or 90 inches in both directions. If your fabric is 45 inches wide you will need 4 yards.

It is best to use the full width for the center of the table, cut the extra length of fabric at the fold line and seam to each side of your center section. You will find these seams are hardly noticeable, since they will be hidden in the folds of the cloth around the sides. Press the seams at this point.

Next, fold your fabric lengthwise and then fold it over again on the cross grain to form a square, place a pin at the center fold which will be the exact center of your cloth. Unfold and place the full square of fabric flat on the floor.

WE ARE NOW ready to mark the circle for the outer edges. Take a long piece of string and attach one end to a pencil. The string must measure half the width of the tablecloth. Holding one end at the center of the cloth that you have previously marked, mark the outer circle with the pencil attached to your string. If your table is the same measurement as my example, and the fabric is exactly 45 inches wide, you will find that your marks will just about touch the four outer edges of the fabric, leaving only excess fabric at the four corners.

Your last step will be to hem the edges. Once again, use your own individual finish. You may wish to use a pre-ruffled eyelet ruffle, fringe, ruffle in a contrasting color, perhaps to match your napkins or you may not need a decorative hem.

The excess fabric you have cut off of your corners will make triangular-shaped napkins.

These round clothes are also great in any room of your home, in the bedroom as night tables, in your family room made in chintz, tapestry, velvet or whatever.

THIS WEEK'S Tailor Trix pressing board winner is Mrs. John Holtzbauer, Des Moines, Iowa, for her sewing suggestion.

"When hemming organza, I have found polyweb to be more satisfactory than horsehair braid. It is more flexible and can be cut to any desired width. Also, I pinned the hemline to my ironing board cover and then lightly touched between the pins to 'weld' them, then removed the pins and steamed the hem smooth.

"If your hem is curved, you can cut the polyweb in a curve. Just be sure to cut it slightly smaller than the width of a hem, usually no more than one-half inch. You can turn more of the hem over your polyester in order to be sure you don't get it stuck to your iron. After pressing is completed, carefully cut off the excess from the hem. The width of your hem must be exact, because it will show through sheer fabrics.

DEAR EUNICE,

I have become rather distressed lately with printed knits. When there is any kind of a pattern to match and I fold the fabric in the center, the selvage edges don't seem to come out even.

Mrs. S.K.

DEAR MRS. S.K.,

You are becoming overinvolved with a problem that can't be avoided. The knits you are referring to are made on a circular machine, thus the two selvage edges, after they have been cut, will not be even when folded at the center.

If you are buying good quality fabric, you will have good results. I think you are worrying too much about your fabric when it is in one piece instead of trying to visualize it made up in a garment.

It makes a lovely wedding gift.

Volkswagen has come up with a way for you to get a Volkswagen — or at least a part of one — as a wedding gift.

Just go to your participating VW dealer and register for a Volkswagen — the same way you'd register at a department store for china or silver.

Then your friends and relatives can buy a fender or steering wheel or windshield wiper or whatever part of the car suits their budget. (And they don't have to bother about gift wrapping what they buy. We'll present it to you right on the car.)

Depending on the size and generosity of your guest list, you could end up with a nice down payment on — or all of — a Volkswagen.

Which is a lot more practical than nine silver trays, six toasters, four blenders and seven whatchamacallits.

See your VW dealer now for all the details.

With a little luck you could drive off on your honeymoon in your very own Volkswagen. And that's a smart way to travel down the road of life

KOREAN PLANT — Japan's Toyota and Nissan auto firms are exploring investments in Korea with plants like this one at Pupyang, South Korea. (Christian Science Monitor Photo)

Japanese Industries Eye Korea

By ELIZABETH POND
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

SEOUL — South Korea is quickly becoming Japans' industrial backyard.

An explosion of Japanese investment has put $103 million (government-approved contract figures) into this country in the first quarter of 1973 alone.

This pushes total Japanese investment in South Korea (now $262.5 million) past American investment $179.8 million) for the first time. Together the two countries account for 93 per cent of foreign investment in South Korea.

So far investment leaders are electronics and textiles.

A major investment by Toshiba for television production was approved toward the end of last year, and National and Sony are due to submit their applications for TV production within one or two weeks.

Television exports are just beginning in Korea, though electronics as a whole were Seoul's second-largest export item last year ($160 million, behind soaring textile exports of $722 million).

As land and labor costs skyrocket in Japan, as the yen appreciates, and as Japanese man-in-the-street protest mounts against pollution from manufacturing plants, many other Japanese industries also are getting on the Korean bandwagon. The Japanese giants in diverse fields now are taking over investment that has been dominated in the past by medium-and-small scale entrepreneurs.

Most spectacular among the new projects is a $1-billion oil refinery planned by Teijim Corporation and C. Itoh Trading Company in a joint venture with Korea's Sunkyong business interests.

Notably, informed sources say, this refinery would bypass the American "majors" and import oil directly from Iran. It would export its initial 150,000 barrels per day production, then go into supplying domestic Korean consumption in several years, with its ultimate 600,000 barrels per day.

Japanese sources say this deal is agreed on in principle, but not yet signed. American sources, which fear encroachment on the three American oil companies that already are here, say the deal is not yet decided.

Both of the major Japanese auto makers, Toyota and Nissan, are seriously exploring investment in Korean manufacturing plants. Even shipbuilders are beginning to have second thoughts about their past refusal to set up Korean shipyards that might compete with Japan's.

Kawasaki Heavy Industries, through investment, recently started giving technical assistance to the planned 1-million-ton capacity Hyundae shipyard. Korean economic planners expect their new shipyards will in fact soon rival Japan's yards — and put South Korea among the top ten shipbuilders in a few years.

The economic logic of the Japanese investment is unassailable. Changes in currency valuation over the past year and a half have made the yen worth 30 per cent more in terms of the Korean won, and have made some exports to the U.S. profitable only if the goods are produced in Korea, not in Japan. Korea has an abundance of labor — both skilled and unskilled — at wages about one-fifth of wages in labor-scarce Japan. Moreover, Korean workers are eager to get those jobs that Japanese workers now shun.

Also, South Korea's export-led growth has been the kind to warm an investor's heart. Over the past ten years it has registered a little under 10 per cent, for a current $9.8-billion gross national product. It is now booming again (9.5 per cent real growth in 1972) after the 1971-72 slowdown. Exports shot up 48 per cent last year, to $1.7 billion, while imports increased only 5.3 per cent, to $2.5 billion, thus narrowing the trade gap.

AUCTION

PERSIAN RUGS

and other Oriental rugs

Note About This Sale: Due to the closing down of an agency and withdrawal of representation by the Persian Carpet exporters, they, the exporters, are forced to alter their plans and now we — by authorization of those financially concerned — have been instructed to liquidate these and other bales of valuable handmade Oriental and Persian carpets, rugs and runners which have been in storage awaiting shipment. Persian carpets of real quality of all types are becoming scarcer and more expensive all the time. Don't miss this creative art-form auction at:

URGENT
AUCTION
PERSIAN RUGS
and other Oriental rugs

Note About This Sale: Due to the closing down of an agency and withdrawal of representation by the Persian Carpet exporters, they, the exporters, are forced to alter their plans and now we — by authorization of those financially concerned — have been instructed to liquidate these and other bales of valuable handmade Oriental and Persian carpets, rugs and runners which have been in storage awaiting shipment. Persian carpets of real quality of all types are becoming scarcer and more expensive all the time. Don't miss this creative art-form auction at:

presents

for your inspection:

SUNDAY 1-5

12 Tilden Circle, San Rafael

A PATCH OF SKY IN YOUR LIVING ROOM made possible by intriguingly candid ceilings culminating in a skylight, is only one of the surprises awaiting you in this brand new architect-designed home by Broughton-Horne, Inc., one of Marin's leading builders. A sense of transition between indoors & outdoors prevails throughout, the result of see-through walls opening to large decks & admitting floods of light & sweeping views far & near. 3 bdrms., 2 baths (Roman tub). Formal & informal dining areas. Fireplace. Wooded site, carefree & with complete privacy. $64,800.

809 Shoreline Highway, Mill Valley

THE NATURAL LOOK, seemingly simple, derives its strength from carefully throught-out placement of each element in the total surround. Here is a brand new architect-designed 3 bdrm., 2 bath home with the look of natural materials at its best, and with spaces excitingly dissimilar in shape and mood. Large candid skylights over fireplace wall set the living room aglow with light. Separate dining rm., family rm. Rooms glassed to let in the close-up tapestry of color-drenched valley views. Decks. Kendall-DeCook, Inc., Builders. $66,750.

334 Butterfield Road, San Anselmo

ESCROW EXPLAINED

Escrow is one of those terms we've all heard, but may not fully understand.

The Escrow Agent, usually a Title Company, acts as a neutral party between the buyer and seller of property. The Escrow Officer sees that all encumbrances are removed from the property, and also collects, holds, and distributes all funds and documents pertinent to the transfer of Title. The Escrow charge is normally paid by the purchaser along with the Title Insurance Fee, to insure a sound clear Title.

When Escrow is closed, all funds are disbursed to the proper parties, and the deeds are recorded. Your member Realtor of the Marin County Board of Realtors, can help you with any questions about Escrow, or anything else pertaining to the purchase or sale of property. And if you're selling a home be sure to place it on Multiple Listing. You'll have over 1000 salesmen selling it for you . . . the member Realtors of the Marin County Board of Realtors. presents for your inspection:

12 Tilden Circle, San Rafael

A PATCH OF SKY IN YOUR LIVING ROOM made possible by intriguingly candid ceilings culminating in a skylight, is only one of the surprises awaiting you in this brand new architect-designed home by Broughton-Horne, Inc., one of Marin's leading builders. A sense of transition between indoors & outdoors prevails throughout, the result of see-through walls opening to large decks & admitting floods of light & sweeping views far & near. 3 bdrms., 2 baths (Roman tub). Formal & informal dining areas. Fireplace. Wooded site, carefree & with complete privacy. $64,800.

809 Shoreline Highway, Mill Valley

THE NATURAL LOOK, seemingly simple, derives its strength from carefully throught-out placement of each element in the total surround. Here is a brand new architect-designed 3 bdrm., 2 bath home with the look of natural materials at its best, and with spaces excitingly dissimilar in shape and mood. Large candid skylights over fireplace wall set the living room aglow with light. Separate dining rm., family rm. Rooms glassed to let in the close-up tapestry of color-drenched valley views. Decks. Kendall-DeCook, Inc., Builders. $66,750.

334 Butterfield Road, San Anselmo

ESCROW EXPLAINED

Escrow is one of those terms we've all heard, but may not fully understand.

The Escrow Agent, usually a Title Company, acts as a neutral party between the buyer and seller of property. The Escrow Officer sees that all encumbrances are removed from the property, and also collects, holds, and distributes all funds and documents pertinent to the transfer of Title. The Escrow charge is normally paid by the purchaser along with the Title Insurance Fee, to insure a sound clear Title.

When Escrow is closed, all funds are disbursed to the proper parties, and the deeds are recorded. Your member Realtor of the Marin County Board of Realtors, can help you with any questions about Escrow, or anything else pertaining to the purchase or sale of property. And if you're selling a home be sure to place it on Multiple Listing. You'll have over 1000 salesmen selling it for you . . . the member Realtors of the Marin County Board of Realtors. CONGRATULATIONS — You are reading about one of the loveliest properties we have seen in ages. Both beauty & value. It is located in a superb area of beautiful homes on a dead-end street with privacy, convenience & lots of class. The view alone is fantastic & you don't have to be a billy goat, either, because it is close-in. You get the feeling & beauty of Switzerland! The home has 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, shake roof, large patio off kitchen, weatherstripped, insulated, etc., etc. Plus a gigantic, separate carriage house that would be ideal for a guest cottage, cabana, play room, workshop, what-have-you. The grounds (⅓ acre) are all professionally landscaped with ease of maintenance & maximum beauty, including rock walls & terraces. There is a fantastic sun-drenched pool site. Truly a unique property that you won't find very often to say the least! We are proud to offer this rare find on an exclusive basis only with

CONGRATULATIONS — You are reading about one of the loveliest properties we have seen in ages. Both beauty & value. It is located in a superb area of beautiful homes on a dead-end street with privacy, convenience & lots of class. The view alone is fantastic & you don't have to be a billy goat, either, because it is close-in. You get the feeling & beauty of Switzerland! The home has 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, shake roof, large patio off kitchen, weatherstripped, insulated, etc., etc. Plus a gigantic, separate carriage house that would be ideal for a guest cottage, cabana, play room, workshop, what-have-you. The grounds (⅓ acre) are all professionally landscaped with ease of maintenance & maximum beauty, including rock walls & terraces. There is a fantastic sun-drenched pool site. Truly a unique property that you won't find very often to say the least! We are proud to offer this rare find on an exclusive basis only with

BE A WINNER

For small or beginning investor, we have just listed a good older commercial property in Petaluma. Large older 3 bedroom home with large 2 car detached garage. Should rent for $180 per mo. On the same lot, a huge metal building, now rented for $75 per mo. (used as an auto repair shop). Choice lot with long street frontage. Good long range speculation. Priced right at $24,950. Try 10% down.

Apartments For Rent (Unfurnished)—2720

Is your apartment or house standing vacant — and losing you money?

Have you ever thought about how much money you lose each day or week your apartment stands vacant? Here's a chart to point out the drain on your income:

YOU ARE LOSING

If Your Monthly Rental Price Is:	Every Day	Every Week	Every Two Weeks
$150	$ 5.00	$35.00	$70.00
175	5.83	40.81	81.62
200	6.67	46.69	93.38
225	7.50	52.50	105.00
250	8.33	58.31	116.62
275	9.16	64.12	128.24
300	10.00	70.00	140.00
325	10.83	75.81	151.62

(Based on a 30-day month)

Add to this the cost of maintaining a vacant apartment and you have an even larger loss. Doesn't it make sense to: FIRST, run an I-J Classified ad, & SECOND, to take a little time and run a BETTER ad — more benefits, more discription, less abbreviations (82% of readers don't know the meaning of AEK).

Apartments For Rent (Unfurnished)—2720

Is your apartment or house standing vacant — and losing you money?

Have you ever thought about how much money you lose each day or week your apartment stands vacant? Here's a chart to point out the drain on your income:

YOU ARE LOSING

If Your Monthly Rental Price Is:	Every Day	Every Week	Every Two Weeks
$150	$ 5.00	$35.00	$70.00
175	5.83	40.81	81.62
200	6.67	46.69	93.38
225	7.50	52.50	105.00
250	8.33	58.31	116.62
275	9.16	64.12	128.24
300	10.00	70.00	140.00
325	10.83	75.81	151.62

(Based on a 30-day month)

Add to this the cost of maintaining a vacant apartment and you have an even larger loss. Doesn't it make sense to: FIRST, run an I-J Classified ad, & SECOND, to take a little time and run a BETTER ad — more benefits, more discription, less abbreviations (82% of readers don't know the meaning of AEK).

LEGAL NOTICE
NOTICE OF HEARING

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Marin County Board of Supervisors will hold a public hearing to consider amendments to the Kentfield General Plan in the area bounded on the south by the Corte Madera Creek, on the east by Bon Air Road, on the north by Marin Catholic High School and on the west by the Larkspur City Limits.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Marin County Board of Supervisors will hold a public hearing to consider the petition of the Roman Catholic Archbishop of San Francisco for an amendment to Section 22.08.060.46 of Title 22 (Zoning) of the Marin County Code which amendment would reclassify the following described property from R-1:B-2 (Single-Family Residential—10,000 square feet) to RMP—(Residential, Multiple Family Planned District — density to be determined) and A-P (Administrative & Professional District): Assessor's Parcel #22-010-16 and a portion of Assessor's Parcel #22-010-08 located on Bon Air Road across from Marin General Hospital in the Larkspur area. Said property comprises an approximate area of 27.47 acres.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Marin County Board of Supervisors will hold a public hearing to consider the petition of the Roman Catholic Archbishop of San Francisco for a Master Plan to allow the construction of 312 two and three-bedroom condominium units on 25 acres of property (gross density 12.17 units per acre) located on Bon Air Road across from Marin General Hospital in the Larkspur area. Said property is further identified as Assessor's Parcel #22-010-16 and a portion of Assessor's Parcel #22-010-08.

NOTICE IS HEREBY FURTHER GIVEN that said public hearings will be held at the hour of 3:00 P.M. on the 29th day of May, 1973 in the Board of Supervisors Chambers, Civic Center, San Rafael, California at which time and place any and all persons interested therein, may appear and be heard thereon.

NOTICE OF SALE OF REAL PROPERTY AT PRIVATE SALE
No. 21597

In the Matter of the Estate of JERRY JOSEPH TORRES, Deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on or after May 24, 1973, at the hour of 10:30 o'clock A.M., the undersigned, SUSAN J. TORRES, as Administratrix of the Estate of the above-named Decedent, will sell at private sale to the highest and best net bidder, subject to confirmation of the above-entitled Court, all the right, title, and interest and estate of the Decedent at the time of his death, and all right, title and interest his estate has by operation of law or otherwise acquired in and to the real property described as follows:

That certain parcel of improved real property situated in the City of Novato, County of Marin, State of California, and more particularly described as follows:

"LOT 27, as shown upon that certain map entitled, "Final Map of Woodland Heights in the City of Novato, County of Marin, State of California," filed for record October 28, 1971 in Volume 15 of Maps, at page 1, Marin County Records."

Said property is known and numbered as 21 Woodland Court, Novato, California

Bids or offers are invited for said real property, must be in writing, and will be received at the law offices of WORTHINGTON & WORTHINGTON, 256 Montgomery Street, San Francisco, California 94104, or may be filed with the Clerk of the above-entitled Superior Court at any time after the first publication of this notice, and before the making of said sale.

Sale will be made upon the following terms and conditions:

1. Subject to all covenants, conditions, restrictions, reservations, rights of way, and easements of record.
2. Taxes and premiums on insurance acceptable to the purchaser shall be prorated as of the date of the recordation of Deed.
3. The cost of examination of title, obtaining policy of title insurance and escrow charges shall be at the expense of the purchaser.
4. The costs of recordation of Deed and the documentary transfer tax are to be at the expense of the seller.
5. All bids must be in writing and the entire purchase price is to be payable in cash. Ten per cent (10%) of the amount bid in the form of a cashier's or certified check shall accompany said bid, and the balance is to be paid upon confirmation of the sale by the above-entitled Court.
6. Said real property is sold in its "as is" condition.
7. The undersigned reserves the right to reject any and all bids submitted.
8. The sale to be consummated within thirty (30) days after confirmation of sale by the Superior Court.

LEGAL NOTICE NOTICE OF HEARING

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Marin County Board of Supervisors will hold a public hearing to consider amendments to the Kentfield General Plan in the area bounded on the south by the Corte Madera Creek, on the east by Bon Air Road, on the north by Marin Catholic High School and on the west by the Larkspur City Limits.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Marin County Board of Supervisors will hold a public hearing to consider the petition of the Roman Catholic Archbishop of San Francisco for an amendment to Section 22.08.060.46 of Title 22 (Zoning) of the Marin County Code which amendment would reclassify the following described property from R-1:B-2 (Single-Family Residential—10,000 square feet) to RMP—(Residential, Multiple Family Planned District — density to be determined) and A-P (Administrative & Professional District): Assessor's Parcel #22-010-16 and a portion of Assessor's Parcel #22-010-08 located on Bon Air Road across from Marin General Hospital in the Larkspur area. Said property comprises an approximate area of 27.47 acres.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Marin County Board of Supervisors will hold a public hearing to consider the petition of the Roman Catholic Archbishop of San Francisco for a Master Plan to allow the construction of 312 two and three-bedroom condominium units on 25 acres of property (gross density 12.17 units per acre) located on Bon Air Road across from Marin General Hospital in the Larkspur area. Said property is further identified as Assessor's Parcel #22-010-16 and a portion of Assessor's Parcel #22-010-08.

NOTICE IS HEREBY FURTHER GIVEN that said public hearings will be held at the hour of 3:00 P.M. on the 29th day of May, 1973 in the Board of Supervisors Chambers, Civic Center, San Rafael, California at which time and place any and all persons interested therein, may appear and be heard thereon.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

In No-Trump Action, Knock Out The Opponent's Entries

When you must develop two suits in a no-trump contract, it is usually wise to begin with the suit in which the dangerous opponent has an entry. Picking this suit is not always as easy as breathing, but is easy enough if you know what to think about.

A LOW HEART

West opened the deuce of hearts and South captured the king with his ace. South's only problem was whether to go first after the spades or the diamonds.

If East had the king of diamonds and the ace of spades as well, South would go down. If West had the king of diamonds, any line of play would work. The problem was to play the hand successfully if East had the king of diamonds but not the ace of spades.

DIAMOND ATTACK

South must begin with diamonds. Let's see how this works. South tries the diamond finesse at the second trick, losing to the king. East returns a heart and South refuses the trick.

East returns another heart and South wins. Declarer must now go after the spades, knocking out West's ace. West cannot lead a heart so South easily regains the lead and wins the rest of the tricks.

A SPADE LEAD

Now see what happens if South leads a spade at the second trick. West rises at once with the ace of spades and leads another heart. This sets up East's suit while he still has the king of diamonds as an entry. If South then takes the diamond finesse, he will go down instead of making 10 tricks as he did by the other method.

The important thing is to think both methods through to see what will happen. Then you pick the play that is more likely to succeed.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner deals and bids one diamond. The next player doubles.

You hold:
♠- J 10 5 2
♥- A Q 5
♦- Q 9 4
♣- A 7 6
What do you say?

ANSWER: Redouble.

This is the best general way to show a hand with 10 points or more in high cards.

Officer Writes Ticket For Self

OVID, N.Y. (UPI) — Robert. G. Coleman, a Seneca County sheriff's deputy on his way home from a moonlighting job, drove past a stopped school bus whose red lights were flashing.

He wrote himself a traffic ticket. "I'm no different than anybody else," Coleman said.

He will be arraigned Monday. In court, he will appear both as defendant and arresting officer.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

True or False? Follow the clues to get the truth about today's birthday celebrities.

1 - DAVID HARTMAN, television actor, is 36 today. This star of "The Bold Ones" was born at Pawtucket, R.I. and was a star athlete at Mt. Herman Prep school before college studies at Duke. He worked his way through school doing part-time radio and TV announcing, liked it so much he entered the Academy of Dramatic Arts. Is it true he not only looks like the doctor he plays on TV but that he really is an M.D.?

2 - MALCOM X, hero to a generation of activist black Americans, was born in Omaha, Neb., in 1929. After his father's death, he ended up in reform school and finally prison. While in prison he became acquainted with the teachings of Elijah Muhammad, becoming the Black Muslim's first national minister after his conversion. He called for black unity and pride; was assassinated in 1965. Is it true he broke with Elijah Muhammad in 1964, forming his own Muslim group?

3 - NELLIE MELBA (1861-1931), Australian operatic soprano, was considered one of the greatest singers of her day. Privately educated, she made a recital tour of Australia in 1882, the went to Paris for further study and her debut in Brussels in "Rigoletto." After six years on the European stage, she came to America, appearing at the Met and later on tour. Did she choose the stage name of "Melba" because of her connection with the city Melbourne?

4 - JOHN HOPKINS (1795-1873), American philanthropist and financier, got his start in his uncle's grocery store. Soon he organized his own grocery business, amassed a fortune, and became an influential figure in banking and railroad affairs. Is it true he left his wealth to found a university and hospital, both of which bear his name?

ANSWERS: 1 - False; 2 - True; 3 - True; 4 - True.

Astros' Roberts Careful Against Giants

Combined AP & UPI

HOUSTON — Ask Houston left-hander Dave Roberts how he pitches to the San Francisco Giants and he'll tell you. . . very carefully.

"You can't make any mistakes against them," Roberts said Friday night after he made few mistakes in beating the Giants 3-1.

"They led the league in home runs last year — that's always in your mind," he said. "You can't walk anybody either because they're dangerous any time they have runners on."

Roberts, returning to the regular pitching rotation after missing one turn with a sore shoulder, followed his own advice. He walked none, scattered seven hits and picked up his fourth victory.

Houston gave Roberts the runs he needed in the fourth inning when consecutive singles by Doug Rader and John Edwards and Tommy Helms' ground rule double each produced a run.

The victory narrowed the Giants' National League Western Division lead over the second place Astros to one game. They go at it again tonight with Don Wilson pitching for Houston and Jim Barr for the Giants.

Roberts pitched his best game of the season, according to manager Leo Durocher, and his control made it the best.

"I'm known as a pitcher who is around the plate and my last time out I walked seven, so I wanted to correct that tonight," Robert said.

Despite his accuracy around the plate, one of Roberts' best pitches was to first base in the fifth inning. San Francisco loaded the bases with two out when Chris Speier dribbled a pitch back to Roberts' right side.

Roberts lunged for the ball and made a turn-around, over-the-shoulder toss to first to end the inning. That was the last time the Giants got a runner past first base.

San Francisco scored its only run the third when Bobby Bonds drove Gary Matthews home with a single.

Roberts said he didn't like to pitch against the Giants because of past experience.

"I've got a 1-6 lifetime record against them," he said. "It's especially tough in their park."

Catcher Edwards said it was Roberts' best game of the year.

"It was better than his game opening day," Edwards said. "He got better as he went along. He mixed his pitches beautifully."

Roberts said he threw an equal amount of fast balls, curves, sliders and changeups.

"It's rare to divide them up four ways like that," Roberts said. "Usually you got with your best pitch but they were all working for me."

TITLE MEET TODAY IN WRISTWRESTLING

PETALUMA — The 20th annual World Wristwrestling Championship will be held today and tonight at the Petaluma Veterans Auditorium. Admission price is $5.

Television coverage will be provided on ABC's Wide World of Sports, Channel 7 from 5 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

Preliminaries are in the afternoon and finals in the five divisions start tonight.

Fran Ayers of Kennewick, Washington, who dethroned the previously unbeated Emily Matterazzo to win the women's wristwrestling championship last year, will be back to defend her title along with a large contingent from the Kennewick area.

A's North Bops Bird With Fists

Combined AP & UPI

OAKLAND — Oakland A's Manager Dick Williams wishes his speedy rookie, Bill North, would rely on his feet instead of his fists and would swing the bat instead of throwing it.

North tried a little of everything Friday night in helping the A's down Kansas City 5-4.

North attacked Doug Bird of Kansas City in the eighth inning because he said he had an old grudge to settle with the reliever.

He flung his bat at Bird when the pitcher came too close with an inside pitch, then walked out to the mound and began to punch the pitcher.

North says he spent two weeks in the hospital when he was Bird-brained three years ago in the Midwest League.

"I haven't forgotten about that since," North said.

Friday night's game marked the first time North had come to bat against Bird since then. North said he had planned to miss Bird with the bat, then go to the mound and slug him.

"I'm not a troublemaker and I know it wasn't a very mature thing to do, but that guy intentionally hit me in the head with a baseball and that wasn't a very mature thing for him to do either," said North.

"It's a long season," Bird warned afterwards. "I drilled that lousy hot dog once before."

"It's a long summer and he's a marked man," Kansas City pitcher Wayne Simpson said.

Another Royal pitcher called North a "hotdog" for harboring a grudge for three years.

A's manager Dick Williams was upset about North's behavior and said he "should play for the team and not himself," but he planned to start North in tonight's rematch, when Dick Drago (3-3) will go against Vida Blue (3-1) of the A's.

The stylish Ken Holtzman ran his record to 8-2 in going the distance in Friday night's thriller.

Campy Campaneris scored twice, stole two bases and drove home North with the winning run with one of his three singles in leading the way. Campaneris now has hit safely in 12 of his last 13 games and has nine hits in his last 20 at bats.

Joe Rudi added a homer and it was North who singled in the sixth and then stole second under a perfect peg before Campaneris knocked him in with the winning run.

Former San Francisco Giant catcher Fran Healy got three singles for the Royals.

Foyt Prepared For 'Bump' At Indy 500

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Three-time Indianapolis "500" champion A.J. Foyt was ready today to climb into his backup car-should the unprecedented happen and the five-time national driving champion be "bumped" from the Memorial Day race lineup.

The veteran speedster from Houston served notice earlier this week he might withdraw altogether from the $1 million dollar chase May 28 because of his poor showing last Saturday. He was the second slowest qualifier at an average speed of just under 189 miles per hour.

But then he changed his mind again and said whatever ailed his sensitive 8-cylinder Ford-Foyt engines had been cured. And Friday he proved it by blazing around the famous 2 ½-mile oval at an average speed of 194.5.

Foyt started from the pole twice, in 1965 and 1969, and his worst previous position was 18th. If his Coyote remains in the lineup, it will be in 23rd spot, but it also will be his 16th consecutive start here and that, in itself would set a record.

Qualifications resumed at 11 a.m. EST, with just three positions open in the 33-car field. Once they are filled, the traditional "bumping" process will weed out the slowest qualified cars, regardless of when they were qualified. Their drivers can regain starting berths in non-qualified machines.

The first time in Speedway history just three positions remained open going into the final weekend of qualifications. Twenty-four cars made successful 10-mile trial runs last Saturday and six more qualified Sunday.

The fastest last Saturday was Texan Johnny Rutherford, who set one and four-lap records to win the pole position at an average speed of 198.414 m.p.h.

Nobody was expected to threaten that record of Rutherford's single lap mark of 199.071, established in a British-made McLaren driven by a four-cylinder Drake-Offenhauser turbocharged engine, for Team McLaren, Ltd.

Novato Rider Wins Motorcycle Race

TAGGING THE WRONG MAN

Philadelphia Phillies' catcher missed Chicago Cubs' Glenn Beckert (18) as he crossed home plate and inadvertently tagged startled home plate umpire Dave Davidson last night in Philadelphia. Beckert scored on a first inning single by Joe Pepitone. Chicago won, 9-2. See baseball story, page 31. (UPI Telephoto)

Cubs Trade Pepitone For A Minor Leaguer

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Atlanta Braves announced today the acquisition of colorful Joe Pepitone of the Chicago Cubs to be their regular first baseman.

In exchange, the Braves gave the Cubs minor league first baseman Andy Thornton, plus an undisclosed amount of cash.

"Pepitone is the winning-type of ball player with a great deal of experience," said Braves Vice President Eddie Robinson.

"He hits left handed pitchers almost equally as well as right handers and is an excellent first baseman.

"The trade gives us added strength in our offensive lineup and I think Pepitone will be an exciting player for Atlanta fans to watch."

The acquisition of Pepitone was a move to fill two apparent

Nowell, Tam Tame Drake Nine

Tim Nowell pitched a one-hitter and his Tamalpais High School teammates scored four unearned runs yesterday for a 4-1 Marin County Athletic League baseball victory over host Drake.

Nowell struck out 13, walked only one batter and hit another in hurling his second one-hitter of the year, both against the Pirates. Throwing errors with runners on second and third in the second inning and again in the third accounted for all four Indian runs.

In breaking a six-game losing streak, Tam finished seventh in the MCAL at 4-10 and went 7-15 overall. Drake was last at 2-12 with a 3-21 overall mark.

Redwood '9' Bench Beats Marin 'Cats

Coach Al Endriss, who once said, "The Redwood bench is good enough to play .500 ball in the league," saw substance given to his claim yesterday as 16 of his 19 baseball players participated in a 5-3 victory over the Marin Catholic High School Wildcats.

The Triumph at Redwood gave the two-time Marin County Athletic League champions a 12-2 record for the year and enabled them to break the school mark for victories in a season. They are 22-5 and the 1965 team was 21-5. Marin Catholic finished at 6-8 and 11-17.

The Giants scored three runs in the fifth inning to erase a 3-1 Marin Catholic lead, as Jeff Vogel walked, winning pitcher Gene Frey tripled his home, Jim Caito's infield single scored Frey, and Caito tallied as the Wildcats' third baseman made a fielding and throwing error on the same batted ball by Mike Connor.

The Giants will begin play Thursday in the Redwood High Baseball Tournament of Champions, to last through Saturday at Albert Field. Seven other league winners from the Bay Area will participate.

Rancho Nine Overcomes El Molino

With its third consecutive Sonoma County League baseball championship clinched, Rancho Cotate High School of Rohnert Park had nothing to gain yesterday, but the Cougars still came up with the winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning to defeat visiting El Molino of Forestville, 4-3.

In other Southern Sonoma County high school diamond action yesterday, Petaluma concluded its North Bay League season with a 9-0 loss to host Ukiah. The Trojans finished with a 8-6 league mark, good for a second place tie with Hogan of Vallejo, two-games behind co-champions Napa and Vallejo (10-4).

Marshall Brant started the winning rally for the Cougars in the seventh with a single to left field. He then stole second, was sacrificed to third by Eric Mogel and brought home on a squeeze punt by Dan Hubley.

Sims' 2-Hitter Lifts San Rafael

John Sims, who comes by his baseball skill honestly as the son of San Rafael High School coach Jack Sims, threw a two-hitter at Terra Linda yesterday to give the Bulldogs 4-1 Marin County Athletic League victory at Albert Field.

San Rafael put the game away with a three-run rally in the fourth inning, one run scoring on Joe Giordani's infield out with the bases loaded, and two more coming home on Craig Saunders' single.

Sims singled in the first inning and scored the Bulldogs' first run on a single by Steve D'Ambra. Terra Linda tallied in the fifth when Dana Beck reached base on an error with one out, Mike DeMattei singled for the Trojans' first hit, both moved up on a wild pitch and Beck scored on a grounder by Buck McCusker.

San Rafael wound up its season 9-5 in the MCAL and 10-12 overall, and will finish alone in second place if Novato (8-5) loses tonight to San Marin at Albert. Terra Linda, which had won four straight prior to yesterday, finished 8-6 and 12-15.

TROUBLED GOLFER

A New Motor Home To Soothe Trevino

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Lee Trevino has a new $30,000 motor home to soothe his faltering golf game. But you can bet he would almost trade places with Davey Hill right now.

Hill used a borrowed putter to carve out a three-under-par 69 Friday for a two-stoke lead going into today's third round of the $175,000 Memphis Open Golf Classic.

Hill's 7-under-par 137 total was two strokes better than Jerry McGee, who had a 68 Friday. Another two shots back after the second round were Ray Floyd and Dave Stockton.

"I escaped with my life today," moaned pre-tournament favorite Trevino, who has won two in a row at Memphis and is looking for a first or second place finish to make him golf's fourth million-dollar winner.

Trevino, who said he had just bought a new motor home, missed seven greens in a row Friday while struggling to a uw to leave himself six strokes off the pace.

"I just bought the thing to put all my equipment in —my clubs and stuff —and to have it out on the golf course when the wife and kids come out," said the "Merry Mex."

Hill predicted that if his putting stroke holds up, he will win the tournament with a putter borrowed from J. C. Snead.

Hill had birdie putts ranging from eight to 15 feet but said his swing was terrible. "I used bailing wire and everything else and it just won't stay together," he said.

Trevino is looking for his fourth victory over this water-studded, par-72 Colonial Country Club course. In addition to winning in 1969 and 170, he took the '67 classic.

McGee said he was extremely pleased with a round of 68 on Friday, which was his first since the Greater Greensboro Open almost two months ago.

Stocky Dick Lotz of Hayward, Calif., didn't let the water bother him any Friday. He pulled out a four iron at the tee on the par-3, 203-yard 12th hole and hit a screamer which took two bounces into the cup.

The ace was worth $10,000 to Lotz. He split that with the St. Jude Children's Hospital here and still almost matched the bare $7,000 he has won on the tour this year.

Napa's Ron Cerrudo, in second play in the opening round Thursday with a 68, slipped to a 76 Friday and is tied with six others at 144.

The cut for the last two rounds was at 150, which left 74 players still in the tournament. It was the highest cut of year other than the Master's at Augusta.

Miss Walsh Beaten

GUILFORD, England (UPI) — Sharon Walsh of San Rafael was defeated yesterday in the women's singles semi-finals of the Rothman's Hard Court professional tennis tournament by Kazuma Sawamatu, 6-0, 6-1.

Meggyesy At Marin Coaches Meeting

Dave Meggyesy may be "out of their league," but he will be very much into the league meeting Tuesday when he and Robert Kriegel are guest speakers at the Marin County Coaches Association's second annual gathering.

Meggyesy, former linebacker with the St. Louis Cardinals, grew disgusted with what he saw as authoritarianism and exploitation in professional football, retired, and wrote a scathing indictment called "Out Of Their League" two years ago. He and Kriegel now are co-directors of the Esalen Sports Center.

The meeting, to be held at Marin Country Club in Ignacio, is open to the public, and tickets may be obtained by sending a check for $6.50 to coaches association president Chuck Metz at Terra Linda High School, 320 Nova Albion Way, San Rafael, or by phoning him at the school.

Dinner is at 7:30 p.m. and speeches at 8:30. A cocktail hour precedes both.

The Esalen Sports Center, based in San Francisco, has as its purpose "the development of new concepts, practices and teaching methods in athletics and physical education."

Among its activities this year will be a two-week intensive program July 15-28 at Dominican College in San Rafael which will cover such things as aikido (a Japanese martial art), t'ai chi (Chinese moving mediation), yoga, "energy awareness," "sensory awareness," Feldenkrais exercises, structural integration, and other systems of thought not found in conventional sports coaching and conditioning.

A more comprehensive view of the athletic experience would include the mental, emotional, spiritual as well as physical dimensions of the individual . . . Unfortunately, traditional athletics and physical education programs often articulate and reinforce values such as authoritarianism and winning at all cost. In the general transformation our society is experiencing, it is precisely these values which must be rethought," Meggyesy and Kriegel believe.

MCAL baseball coaches will meet at 5 p.m. to choose the all-league team, and other coaches will meet separately by sport at 5:30 to discuss matters of concern to them. A general meeting of all coaches at 6:30 will precede dinner.

Astros' Roberts Careful Against Giants

Combined AP & UPI

HOUSTON — Ask Houston left-hander Dave Roberts how he pitches to the San Francisco Giants and he'll tell you. . . very carefully.

"You can't make any mistakes against them," Roberts said Friday night after he made few mistakes in beating the Giants 3-1.

"They led the league in home runs last year — that's always in your mind," he said. "You can't walk anybody either because they're dangerous any time they have runners on."

Roberts, returning to the regular pitching rotation after missing one turn with a sore shoulder, followed his own advice. He walked none, scattered seven hits and picked up his fourth victory.

Houston gave Roberts the runs he needed in the fourth inning when consecutive singles by Doug Rader and John Edwards and Tommy Helms' ground rule double each produced a run.

The victory narrowed the Giants' National League Western Division lead over the second place Astros to one game. They go at it again tonight with Don Wilson pitching for Houston and Jim Barr for the Giants.

Roberts pitched his best game of the season, according to manager Leo Durocher, and his control made it the best.

"I'm known as a pitcher who is around the plate and my last time out I walked seven, so I wanted to correct that tonight," Robert said.

Despite his accuracy around the plate, one of Roberts' best pitches was to first base in the fifth inning. San Francisco loaded the bases with two out when Chris Speier dribbled a pitch back to Roberts' right side.

Roberts lunged for the ball and made a turn-around, over-the-shoulder toss to first to end the inning. That was the last time the Giants got a runner past first base.

San Francisco scored its only run the third when Bobby Bonds drove Gary Matthews home with a single.

Roberts said he didn't like to pitch against the Giants because of past experience.

"I've got a 1-6 lifetime record against them," he said. "It's especially tough in their park."

Catcher Edwards said it was Roberts' best game of the year.

"It was better than his game opening day," Edwards said. "He got better as he went along. He mixed his pitches beautifully."

Roberts said he threw an equal amount of fast balls, curves, sliders and changeups.

"It's rare to divide them up four ways like that," Roberts said. "Usually you got with your best pitch but they were all working for me."

TITLE MEET TODAY IN WRISTWRESTLING

PETALUMA — The 20th annual World Wristwrestling Championship will be held today and tonight at the Petaluma Veterans Auditorium. Admission price is $5.

Television coverage will be provided on ABC's Wide World of Sports, Channel 7 from 5 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

Preliminaries are in the afternoon and finals in the five divisions start tonight.

Fran Ayers of Kennewick, Washington, who dethroned the previously unbeated Emily Matterazzo to win the women's wristwrestling championship last year, will be back to defend her title along with a large contingent from the Kennewick area.

A's North Bops Bird With Fists

Combined AP & UPI

OAKLAND — Oakland A's Manager Dick Williams wishes his speedy rookie, Bill North, would rely on his feet instead of his fists and would swing the bat instead of throwing it.

North tried a little of everything Friday night in helping the A's down Kansas City 5-4.

North attacked Doug Bird of Kansas City in the eighth inning because he said he had an old grudge to settle with the reliever.

He flung his bat at Bird when the pitcher came too close with an inside pitch, then walked out to the mound and began to punch the pitcher.

North says he spent two weeks in the hospital when he was Bird-brained three years ago in the Midwest League.

"I haven't forgotten about that since," North said.

Friday night's game marked the first time North had come to bat against Bird since then. North said he had planned to miss Bird with the bat, then go to the mound and slug him.

"I'm not a troublemaker and I know it wasn't a very mature thing to do, but that guy intentionally hit me in the head with a baseball and that wasn't a very mature thing for him to do either," said North.

"It's a long season," Bird warned afterwards. "I drilled that lousy hot dog once before."

"It's a long summer and he's a marked man," Kansas City pitcher Wayne Simpson said.

Another Royal pitcher called North a "hotdog" for harboring a grudge for three years.

A's manager Dick Williams was upset about North's behavior and said he "should play for the team and not himself," but he planned to start North in tonight's rematch, when Dick Drago (3-3) will go against Vida Blue (3-1) of the A's.

The stylish Ken Holtzman ran his record to 8-2 in going the distance in Friday night's thriller.

Campy Campaneris scored twice, stole two bases and drove home North with the winning run with one of his three singles in leading the way. Campaneris now has hit safely in 12 of his last 13 games and has nine hits in his last 20 at bats.

Joe Rudi added a homer and it was North who singled in the sixth and then stole second under a perfect peg before Campaneris knocked him in with the winning run.

Former San Francisco Giant catcher Fran Healy got three singles for the Royals.

TAGGING THE WRONG MAN

Redwood '9' Bench Beats Marin 'Cats

Coach Al Endriss, who once said, "The Redwood bench is good enough to play .500 ball in the league," saw substance given to his claim yesterday as 16 of his 19 baseball players participated in a 5-3 victory over the Marin Catholic High School Wildcats.

The Triumph at Redwood gave the two-time Marin County Athletic League champions a 12-2 record for the year and enabled them to break the school mark for victories in a season. They are 22-5 and the 1965 team was 21-5. Marin Catholic finished at 6-8 and 11-17.

The Giants scored three runs in the fifth inning to erase a 3-1 Marin Catholic lead, as Jeff Vogel walked, winning pitcher Gene Frey tripled his home, Jim Caito's infield single scored Frey, and Caito tallied as the Wildcats' third baseman made a fielding and throwing error on the same batted ball by Mike Connor.

The Giants will begin play Thursday in the Redwood High Baseball Tournament of Champions, to last through Saturday at Albert Field. Seven other league winners from the Bay Area will participate.

Sims' 2-Hitter Lifts San Rafael

John Sims, who comes by his baseball skill honestly as the son of San Rafael High School coach Jack Sims, threw a two-hitter at Terra Linda yesterday to give the Bulldogs 4-1 Marin County Athletic League victory at Albert Field.

San Rafael put the game away with a three-run rally in the fourth inning, one run scoring on Joe Giordani's infield out with the bases loaded, and two more coming home on Craig Saunders' single.

Sims singled in the first inning and scored the Bulldogs' first run on a single by Steve D'Ambra. Terra Linda tallied in the fifth when Dana Beck reached base on an error with one out, Mike DeMattei singled for the Trojans' first hit, both moved up on a wild pitch and Beck scored on a grounder by Buck McCusker.

San Rafael wound up its season 9-5 in the MCAL and 10-12 overall, and will finish alone in second place if Novato (8-5) loses tonight to San Marin at Albert. Terra Linda, which had won four straight prior to yesterday, finished 8-6 and 12-15.

TROUBLED GOLFER

A New Motor Home To Soothe Trevino

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Lee Trevino has a new $30,000 motor home to soothe his faltering golf game. But you can bet he would almost trade places with Davey Hill right now.

Hill used a borrowed putter to carve out a three-under-par 69 Friday for a two-stoke lead going into today's third round of the $175,000 Memphis Open Golf Classic.

Hill's 7-under-par 137 total was two strokes better than Jerry McGee, who had a 68 Friday. Another two shots back after the second round were Ray Floyd and Dave Stockton.

"I escaped with my life today," moaned pre-tournament favorite Trevino, who has won two in a row at Memphis and is looking for a first or second place finish to make him golf's fourth million-dollar winner.

Trevino, who said he had just bought a new motor home, missed seven greens in a row Friday while struggling to a uw to leave himself six strokes off the pace.

"I just bought the thing to put all my equipment in —my clubs and stuff —and to have it out on the golf course when the wife and kids come out," said the "Merry Mex."

Hill predicted that if his putting stroke holds up, he will win the tournament with a putter borrowed from J. C. Snead.

Hill had birdie putts ranging from eight to 15 feet but said his swing was terrible. "I used bailing wire and everything else and it just won't stay together," he said.

Trevino is looking for his fourth victory over this water-studded, par-72 Colonial Country Club course. In addition to winning in 1969 and 170, he took the '67 classic.

McGee said he was extremely pleased with a round of 68 on Friday, which was his first since the Greater Greensboro Open almost two months ago.

Stocky Dick Lotz of Hayward, Calif., didn't let the water bother him any Friday. He pulled out a four iron at the tee on the par-3, 203-yard 12th hole and hit a screamer which took two bounces into the cup.

The ace was worth $10,000 to Lotz. He split that with the St. Jude Children's Hospital here and still almost matched the bare $7,000 he has won on the tour this year.

Napa's Ron Cerrudo, in second play in the opening round Thursday with a 68, slipped to a 76 Friday and is tied with six others at 144.

The cut for the last two rounds was at 150, which left 74 players still in the tournament. It was the highest cut of year other than the Master's at Augusta.

Miss Walsh Beaten

GUILFORD, England (UPI) — Sharon Walsh of San Rafael was defeated yesterday in the women's singles semi-finals of the Rothman's Hard Court professional tennis tournament by Kazuma Sawamatu, 6-0, 6-1.

Foyt Prepared For 'Bump' At Indy 500

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Three-time Indianapolis "500" champion A.J. Foyt was ready today to climb into his backup car-should the unprecedented happen and the five-time national driving champion be "bumped" from the Memorial Day race lineup.

The veteran speedster from Houston served notice earlier this week he might withdraw altogether from the $1 million dollar chase May 28 because of his poor showing last Saturday. He was the second slowest qualifier at an average speed of just under 189 miles per hour.

But then he changed his mind again and said whatever ailed his sensitive 8-cylinder Ford-Foyt engines had been cured. And Friday he proved it by blazing around the famous 2 ½-mile oval at an average speed of 194.5.

Foyt started from the pole twice, in 1965 and 1969, and his worst previous position was 18th. If his Coyote remains in the lineup, it will be in 23rd spot, but it also will be his 16th consecutive start here and that, in itself would set a record.

Qualifications resumed at 11 a.m. EST, with just three positions open in the 33-car field. Once they are filled, the traditional "bumping" process will weed out the slowest qualified cars, regardless of when they were qualified. Their drivers can regain starting berths in non-qualified machines.

The first time in Speedway history just three positions remained open going into the final weekend of qualifications. Twenty-four cars made successful 10-mile trial runs last Saturday and six more qualified Sunday.

The fastest last Saturday was Texan Johnny Rutherford, who set one and four-lap records to win the pole position at an average speed of 198.414 m.p.h.

Nobody was expected to threaten that record of Rutherford's single lap mark of 199.071, established in a British-made McLaren driven by a four-cylinder Drake-Offenhauser turbocharged engine, for Team McLaren, Ltd.

Cubs Trade Pepitone For A Minor Leaguer

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Atlanta Braves announced today the acquisition of colorful Joe Pepitone of the Chicago Cubs to be their regular first baseman.

In exchange, the Braves gave the Cubs minor league first baseman Andy Thornton, plus an undisclosed amount of cash.

"Pepitone is the winning-type of ball player with a great deal of experience," said Braves Vice President Eddie Robinson.

"He hits left handed pitchers almost equally as well as right handers and is an excellent first baseman.

"The trade gives us added strength in our offensive lineup and I think Pepitone will be an exciting player for Atlanta fans to watch."

The acquisition of Pepitone was a move to fill two apparent

Nowell, Tam Tame Drake Nine

Tim Nowell pitched a one-hitter and his Tamalpais High School teammates scored four unearned runs yesterday for a 4-1 Marin County Athletic League baseball victory over host Drake.

Nowell struck out 13, walked only one batter and hit another in hurling his second one-hitter of the year, both against the Pirates. Throwing errors with runners on second and third in the second inning and again in the third accounted for all four Indian runs.

In breaking a six-game losing streak, Tam finished seventh in the MCAL at 4-10 and went 7-15 overall. Drake was last at 2-12 with a 3-21 overall mark.

Rancho Nine Overcomes El Molino

With its third consecutive Sonoma County League baseball championship clinched, Rancho Cotate High School of Rohnert Park had nothing to gain yesterday, but the Cougars still came up with the winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning to defeat visiting El Molino of Forestville, 4-3.

In other Southern Sonoma County high school diamond action yesterday, Petaluma concluded its North Bay League season with a 9-0 loss to host Ukiah. The Trojans finished with a 8-6 league mark, good for a second place tie with Hogan of Vallejo, two-games behind co-champions Napa and Vallejo (10-4).

Marshall Brant started the winning rally for the Cougars in the seventh with a single to left field. He then stole second, was sacrificed to third by Eric Mogel and brought home on a squeeze punt by Dan Hubley.

Meggyesy At Marin Coaches Meeting

Dave Meggyesy may be "out of their league," but he will be very much into the league meeting Tuesday when he and Robert Kriegel are guest speakers at the Marin County Coaches Association's second annual gathering.

Meggyesy, former linebacker with the St. Louis Cardinals, grew disgusted with what he saw as authoritarianism and exploitation in professional football, retired, and wrote a scathing indictment called "Out Of Their League" two years ago. He and Kriegel now are co-directors of the Esalen Sports Center.

The meeting, to be held at Marin Country Club in Ignacio, is open to the public, and tickets may be obtained by sending a check for $6.50 to coaches association president Chuck Metz at Terra Linda High School, 320 Nova Albion Way, San Rafael, or by phoning him at the school.

Dinner is at 7:30 p.m. and speeches at 8:30. A cocktail hour precedes both.

The Esalen Sports Center, based in San Francisco, has as its purpose "the development of new concepts, practices and teaching methods in athletics and physical education."

Among its activities this year will be a two-week intensive program July 15-28 at Dominican College in San Rafael which will cover such things as aikido (a Japanese martial art), t'ai chi (Chinese moving mediation), yoga, "energy awareness," "sensory awareness," Feldenkrais exercises, structural integration, and other systems of thought not found in conventional sports coaching and conditioning.

A more comprehensive view of the athletic experience would include the mental, emotional, spiritual as well as physical dimensions of the individual . . . Unfortunately, traditional athletics and physical education programs often articulate and reinforce values such as authoritarianism and winning at all cost. In the general transformation our society is experiencing, it is precisely these values which must be rethought," Meggyesy and Kriegel believe.

MCAL baseball coaches will meet at 5 p.m. to choose the all-league team, and other coaches will meet separately by sport at 5:30 to discuss matters of concern to them. A general meeting of all coaches at 6:30 will precede dinner.

Ferguson Jenkins hasn't warmed up yet but he's still keeping the Philadelphia Phillies chilled.

Jenkins, the hard-working righthander for the Chicago Cubs who is seeking his seventh consecutive 20 win season, is off to a slow start but he picked up his fourth victory Friday night in a six-hit, 9-2 triumph over the Philadelphia Phils.

Jenkins, traded in 1966 from Philadelphia to the Cubs in a lopsided deal that ranks with the California Angels' heist of Nolan Ryan from the New York Mets last year, figures the chilly weather has been hampering him.

"We haven't had a good day since opening day," Jenkins said, "I don't like to pitch in 30 degree weather. When it gets warm, this is even going to be an even better club." Still, the Cubs lead the National League East by 1 1-2 games.

Jenkins, 4-3 this year, has a 24-6 lifetime record against the hapless Phils but he says he doesn't get a special kick out of beating his old teammates. Mainly, because they're not his old teammates. "The Phils are a whole new team," he says, "there's nobody around who was here when I was there."

The Cubs made it easy for Jenkins as they scored four runs off loser Dick Ruthven in the first 2 2-3 innings. Billy Williams collected two hits and drove in a run for the Cubs to pace a nine-hit attack.

If Jenkins wins 20 again this year, he'll become the first pitcher to win 20 games for seven straight seasons since Lefty Grove did it from 1927 to 1933.

Jenkins figures he'll do it. "I should win 25 plus for this club," he says.

In the other games, Cincinnati beat San Diego 5-4, New York downed Pittsburgh 4-3, Houston downed San Francisco 3-1 and Los Angeles topped Atlanta 3-2. The St. Louis at Montreal game was rained out.

In the American League, Milwaukee downed New York 6-5, Baltimore beat Cleveland 6-2, Detroit edged Boston 5-4, Minnesota topped Chicago 3-0, California beat Texas 7-1 and Oakland beat Kansas City 5-4.

Joe Morgan, off to the best start of his career with a .339 average, doubled and hit a two-run inside the park homer to give Cincinnati the victory over San Diego.

Wayne Garrett, who wasn't even supposed to play, drove in three runs with a homer and a single to give the Mets the victory over the Pirates. Garrett got into the lineup when the doctor decided Cleon Jones shouldn't try to play with an injured hand. Tom Seaver, 14-4 lifetime against the Pirates, pitched a seven-hitter to boost his record to 5-3.

Los Angeles erupted for three runs in the eighth to beat Atlanta. Singles by Dave Lopes and Bill Buckner, Joe Ferguson's sacrifice fly, Willie Crawford's double and Bill Russell's single handed Los Angeles the victory.

Provisions Slated For NBA Deadlocks

Combined AP & UPI

PHOENIX — National Basketball Association general managers have drafted provisions in the event of a tie for the conference championships to avoid embarrassments such as the one that occurred this year.

On the final day of meetings Friday, the general managers also recommended that the league delay its college draft until after the NBA playoffs.

They further recommended abolition of the present 17-city conference telephone call for the college draft and suggested that it be held in one central location.

The recommendations will be presented to the NBA Board of Governors, which meets June 27-28 in Los Angeles.

The five-step method of determining the homecourt advantage in the event of a conference tie was recommended to avoid situations such as the Los Angeles-Milwaukee furor last season.

With identical records, the Lakers won the Pacific Division and the Bucks the Midwestern Division, both in the Western Conference. The NBA announced a playoff game would be played, but the Players Association held out for a coin-flip which was used to determine first-round pairings.

Under provisions prepared by the general managers, in the event of identical records, the homecourt advantage in a playoff would go to the team that had the best record in season meetings between the two clubs involved.

If the teams were still tied, the advantage would go to the club with the best record in its division. If the tie remained, the homecourt edge would go to the team with the best record in its conference.

If still undecided, the homecourt edge would be awarded to the club with the point advantage in their season series and, if all else failed, a coin would be tosses.

Tennis

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Arthur Ashe, the only top seeded player still surviving, will meet Roscoe Turner and Cluff Richey will face Brian Gottfried in today's semi-final round of the $150,000 Alan King-Caesers Palace Tennis Classic, the game's richest tournament.

Ashe, dismissing the effects of a recurring bone spur ailment, outlasted Chile's Jaime Fillol 7-6, 6-2, and Richey overpowered South African Ray Moore 6-1, 6-4 in Friday's remaining quarter-final matches, played in 100 degree heat.

Swimming

PROVO, Utah — Mike Burton, 25, former captain of the U.S. Olympic swim team and holder of 10 world records, has been named head swimming coach at Brigham Young University.

Hockey

Marin Net Duo Falls In State Tournament

REDWOOD CITY — College of Marin's Mark Rodnick and Bill Kinser were defeated in the second round yesterday and eliminated from the state junior college tennis doubles championship at Canada College.

The Marin duo fell to Greg Lawrence and Brian Lee of Santa Monica College, 3-6, 6-3, 6-2, after winning its first-round match against Henri Elkins and Ron Low of Los Angeles City College, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2.

Marin Lacrosse Club Last In Standings

The Marin Lacrosse Club finished last with an 0-7 record, according to league standings released by the Northern California Lacrosse Association at the conclusion of its season.

Naval Postgraduate School 7-0, Golden Gate Lacrosse Club 6-1, University of California 5-2, San Francisco 4-3, Palo Alto 4-3, Stanford 2-5, Oakland 1-6, Marin 0-7.

Grand Prix Agreement On Safety

ZOLDER, BELGIUM (UPI) — Organizers of the Belgian formula 1 Grand Prix today agreed to the demands of the drivers about the safety of the track allowing the second qualifying session for Sunday's race to take place.

A decision on whether the race will take place will be made by the International Sporting Commission (CSI) after the practice session when an inspection of the surface of the track will be made, the CSI said.

New Zealander Denny Hulme said if the drivers were not satisfied with the circuit, the race would probably be postponed until September.

During Friday's practice the asphalt surface on the track began peeling off, causing four drivers to crash. As a result the Grand Prix Drivers Association (GPDA) refused to practice again unless the organizers undertook the responsibility for the safety of the track.

After a three-hour delay and much hard bargaining with the drivers, organizers, constructors and sponsors, the organizers agreed to the driver's terms and the second qualifying session began with drivers trying to better Friday's top time of 1:26.0 set by world champion Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil in his John Player Special-Lotus.

Pierre Ugueux, vice president of the CSI, said he would make a decision about Sunday's race when he inspected the track tonight after the practice.

needs of the Braves. They have been without a regular first baseman this season, using outfielder Mike Lum and third baseman Darrell Evans alternately in that position.

The 32-year-old Pepitone, known for his flamboyant hair styles and sometimes erratic behavior off the field, originally was signed by the New York Yankees and won the Golden Glove as the American League's best defensive first baseman in 1965-66-69.

Pepitone was traded by New York to Houston in 1970 and the Astros traded him to the Cubs midway through the 1970 season. He hit .307 as the Cubs' regular first baseman in 1971 and hit .262 in limited action last year.

This season he was hitting .267 as the regular first baseman for the Cubs. He has appeared in 31 games so far this year, collected 30 hits in 112 at bats, scored 16 runs and drove in 18.

NBC GAME OF THE WEEK

(Christian Science Monitor sketch)

Someone once wrote that Picasso didn't paint billboards; Rudolph Nureyev doesn't do the fox trot; and Sinatra never sang with a barbershop quartet.

But don't be surprised if sometime this summer, when you tune in NBC's Monday Night Baseball on television, you catch the voice of Dinah Shore, Carlton Heston or Woody Allen. (The first broadcast is Monday night at 5 o'clock with Houston hosting San Francisco on Channel 3, while Channel 4 covers St. Louis at the New York Mets.)

The idea belongs to Carl Lindemann, NBC's vice-president in charge of sports, who would like to extend show business into the broadcast booth.

"We could use a little extra publicity," Lindemann explained, "and it occurs to me that this is one way we might get it. I'm not saying we should fire Curt Gowdy or Tony Kubek or anything like that. But in our business when you stand still you're actually going backwards.

"So maybe we'll line up a few stars and work them in to the color part of the program. Anyway, I've already talked to Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and I think he likes the idea."

Well, I don't know about NBC, but if I were looking for a strong double play combination in front of the microphone, I'd somehow make sure that Pearl Bailey and Casey Stengel are in the same lineup.

The vocal action might go something like this:

Pearl: "Casey, honey, which one of those men down there in the flannel rompers is Joe Hardy? I saw him in Damn Yankees and he's my favorite. Seems like everytime he batted the guys in the orchestra pit would duck."

Casey: "There was a Hardy who played for the Red Sox only he never played so he was always hard to recognize. But right now I'm having trouble with this ballpoint pen which doesn't write as fast as it used to."

Pearl: "I'd like to continue this conversation only I'm so tired I've got get something to eat or starve. And my feet hurt. Anyway, I don't think much is going on right now. There are men standing on every one of those little bases, only it's the other team's manager who is doing all the jumping up and down."

Casey: "Pearlie May, you remind me a lot of my wife Edna and the way she makes Cesar Salad, who by the way was pretty good at hitting behind the runner. Why, I remember one time when Cesar hit so far behind the runner that the ball struck a post in the right field grandstand."

Pearl: "Look down there near that popcorn stand, isn't that the actress we met before the game who said she was approaching 40?"

Casey: "From which direction? All I can see is her hat. By the way, have you learned anything about baseball?"

Pearl: "Well, I know the players get $18.50 a day meal money when they're on the road, which would have fed my family for a month when I was a kid."

Casey: "Excuse me Pearl, but I have to tell the fans that next Monday night we're being replaced by Charlton Heston and Woody Allen. Heston is going to read something about Cincinnati crossing the Red Sea and Allen is going to recite "Chuck Connors at the Bat."

Pearl: "Just a minute Casey, honey, but the producer is on the phone and wants to know what the score is?"

Casey: "Tell him Score is a small town down near Savannah, where I once played some minor league baseball. I remember because we dressed in a chicken house out beyond the left field fence. And the chickens didn't like it a bit!"

Wood In Dramatic Pitching Triumph

BOSTON — There is a pitching showdown this afternoon in 1912 here. It is the long-awaited duel between Walter (The Big Train) Johnson and (Smoky) Joe Wood.

The Washington Senators are playing the Boston Red Sox. Johnson will be on the mound for the Senators. He is baseball's preimier pitcher. His fastball blazes. He holds the American League consecutive win record of 16.

Boston's Wood is a slightly-built twirler. He has won 13 straight going into today's game and is closing in on Johnson's record. Smoky Joe also relies on a scorching fastball.

The public has clamored for this showdown and Joe Wood is pitching out of his regular rotation in order to meet the "Big Train" head to head.

Five innings go by and neither team can score as both pitchers bear down on every pitch. In the bottom of the sixth with two outs, Red Sox outfielder Tris Speaker comes to the plate.

Aside from the Red Sox sixth, neither team can score off the offerings of these two brilliant right-handers. The fans who enjoy slugfests must be disappointed, but the fans here today came to see a pitching duel and they are seeing a great one.

The last Senator is out in the ninth and Smoky Joe Wood wins his 14th straight. He has also won a dramatic battle of pitching arms that may never be matched.

Maddox Inches Up On Bat For Hits

By GORDON SAKAMOTO

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — When the San Francisco Giants brought up Garry Maddox last season, the young outfielder carried a power-type label.

Off his rocket start with the Giants' triple-A affiliate at Phoenix, the indicators were indeed favorable. In a span of only 11 games, Maddox tore up Pacific Coast League pitching for nine home runs, 22 runs batted in and a sky-high slugging percentage of 1.146.

But now, a short year later, all that has changed. From a down-at-the-knob belter, the willowy Maddox has inched up his hands on the bat handle—resulting in less power but a place among the top 10 hitters in the National League.

After his recall by San Francisco, Maddox made a self-examination of his role as a Giant and decided to shorten his stroke.

"I felt that on this club there were enough home run hitters," he said recently. "Besides, I wasn't hitting in the power slots (third, fourth and fifth in the batting order) so my job, I felt, was just to get on Base — to keep the ball in play."

He wound up with a .266 average and just 12 homers with San Francisco and when spring training rolled around this year, Maddox latched on to batting coach Hank Sauer and the two went to work.

All the tiring work and blisters have paid off as one can see in the daily averages.

The shorter stroke has also had another beneficial effect, according to Sauer. It has drastically cut Maddox' strikeout ratio which at season's end last year totaled 97.

"I'm not thinking at all about the long ball," Maddox said. "Late last season, I decided I just wanted to keep the ball in play. The only way I could do that was to make contact.

"That's when the idea of choking up on the bat handle occured to me. Sometimes I'd choke up on the bat with two strikes on me. Now, it's a natural thing for me."

Hogan Wins By 3 Strokes In Rancho Golf

Hogan High School of Vallejo won the championship of the third annual Rancho Cotate Golf Invitational yesterday with a three-stroke victory over Novato, 393-396, while Terra Linda finished third, 10 strokes back.

Tom Costello of Cardinal Newman in Santa Rosa was the medalist, carding a 72 over the 6,900-yard Rohnert Park Municipal Golf Course, tying the tournament record set in 1971 by Ralph Wade of Rancho Cotate.

Steve McConnell of Vintage in Napa and Brent Jorgensen of Hogan tied for second with 73s. Mike Leach of Novato was the top Marin and Southern Sonoma finisher with a 75, good for a fourth-place tie.

TEAM LEADERS

INDIVIDUAL LEADERS

Escrow Tops Hobbit's In Softball Slugfest

In a good, old-fashioned slugfest last night at Albert Field, Paul Giampoli hit a three-run homer for Hobbit's Habit in the top of the fourth inning but Escrow scored eight times in the bottom half and went on to a 17-14 San Rafael Recreation Department adult softball league victory.

Other games saw Jim Schmidt single home the winning run in the last of the seventh to give MacArthur's a 3-2 triumph over Kentucky Fried Chicken, and Les Elite dump Marin Supply, 12-9.

BOWLING NOTES

San Quentin Man Bowls 701 Series

"It's about time!" exclaimed Norm Ouellette after bowling a 701 series in the Tahoe League at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael.

The 26-year-old San Quentin resident with a 173 average recorded his first 700 with games of 213, 233 and 255 on May 11. Although he was admittedly nervous during his effort, the fork lift driver was confident he could reach such a level of bowling competence.

WHILE OUELLETE'S series reflected steady improvement in each game, he could not match the consistency of Hamilton Air Force Base's Ann Coleman. Mrs. Coleman bowled a 143 triplicate (429 series) last Friday night at Hamilton Lanes. She was bowling in the Mixed League.

NAVE LANES will host qualifying rounds today through June 24 for the North Bay Summer Doubles. Two-man teams paying $7.80 at the desk may bowl three games to determine qualifiers for the finals June 14-15 at Sonoma Bowl in Sonoma. Total pins and handicaps will determine the one qualifier for each 10 entries in reaching the finals. The same bowling and scoring format will be used in the finals. The tourney will be repeated June 25-July 29 and July 30-Sept. 9.

SWENSEN ICE CREAM of Novato holds eighth place in the team (handicap) standings, while Phil Wallace of San Rafael has the sixth spot in the singles event (with handicap) in the 28th California State Men's Bowling Tournament at Grand Lanes and Holiday Bowl in Hayward. Wallace is 16 pins off the pace of San Francisco's Alvin Leung who has a 729 total going into this weekend's action. Wallace had games of 213, 209 and 235, plus a 56 handicap for his 713 total. Swensen has a 3,083 pin total (including a 396 handicap) and is 77 pins off the pace of Joney's Coffee Shop, the leaders from Pismo Beach.

You can tell by our used cars how good our new cars must be

The sparkling cars in our used car lot are in top condition, have low mileage on them, and have been carefully driven. The fact that they were traded on new Porsches and Audis means only one thing. People like Porsches and Audis more than anything. You will, too.

Drop by and we will show you more good things.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Jenkins Warms Up Vs. Phillies

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Ferguson Jenkins hasn't warmed up yet but he's still keeping the Philadelphia Phillies chilled.

Jenkins, the hard-working righthander for the Chicago Cubs who is seeking his seventh consecutive 20 win season, is off to a slow start but he picked up his fourth victory Friday night in a six-hit, 9-2 triumph over the Philadelphia Phils.

Jenkins, traded in 1966 from Philadelphia to the Cubs in a lopsided deal that ranks with the California Angels' heist of Nolan Ryan from the New York Mets last year, figures the chilly weather has been hampering him.

"We haven't had a good day since opening day," Jenkins said, "I don't like to pitch in 30 degree weather. When it gets warm, this is even going to be an even better club." Still, the Cubs lead the National League East by 1 1-2 games.

Jenkins, 4-3 this year, has a 24-6 lifetime record against the hapless Phils but he says he doesn't get a special kick out of beating his old teammates. Mainly, because they're not his old teammates. "The Phils are a whole new team," he says, "there's nobody around who was here when I was there."

The Cubs made it easy for Jenkins as they scored four runs off loser Dick Ruthven in the first 2 2-3 innings. Billy Williams collected two hits and drove in a run for the Cubs to pace a nine-hit attack.

If Jenkins wins 20 again this year, he'll become the first pitcher to win 20 games for seven straight seasons since Lefty Grove did it from 1927 to 1933.

Jenkins figures he'll do it. "I should win 25 plus for this club," he says.

In the other games, Cincinnati beat San Diego 5-4, New York downed Pittsburgh 4-3, Houston downed San Francisco 3-1 and Los Angeles topped Atlanta 3-2. The St. Louis at Montreal game was rained out.

In the American League, Milwaukee downed New York 6- 5, Baltimore beat Cleveland 6-2, Detroit edged Boston 5-4, Minnesota topped Chicago 3-0, California beat Texas 7-1 and Oakland beat Kansas City 5-4.

Joe Morgan, off to the best start of his career with a .339 average, doubled and hit a two-run inside the park homer to give Cincinnati the victory over San Diego.

Wayne Garrett, who wasn't even supposed to play, drove in three runs with a homer and a single to give the Mets the victory over the Pirates. Garrett got into the lineup when the doctor decided Cleon Jones shouldn't try to play with an injured hand. Tom Seaver, 14-4 lifetime against the Pirates, pitched a seven-hitter to boost his record to 5-3.

Los Angeles erupted for three runs in the eighth to beat Atlanta. Singles by Dave Lopes and Bill Buckner, Joe Ferguson's sacrifice fly, Willie Crawford's double and Bill Russell's single handed Los Angeles the victory.

Grand Prix Agreement On Safety

ZOLDER, BELGIUM (UPI) — Organizers of the Belgian formula 1 Grand Prix today agreed to the demands of the drivers about the safety of the track allowing the second qualifying session for Sunday's race to take place.

A decision on whether the race will take place will be made by the International Sporting Commission (CSI) after the practice session when an inspection of the surface of the track will be made, the CSI said.

New Zealander Denny Hulme said if the drivers were not satisfied with the circuit, the race would probably be postponed until September.

During Friday's practice the asphalt surface on the track began peeling off, causing four drivers to crash. As a result the Grand Prix Drivers Association (GPDA) refused to practice again unless the organizers undertook the responsibility for the safety of the track.

After a three-hour delay and much hard bargaining with the drivers, organizers, constructors and sponsors, the organizers agreed to the driver's terms and the second qualifying session began with drivers trying to better Friday's top time of 1:26.0 set by world champion Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil in his John Player Special-Lotus.

Pierre Ugueux, vice president of the CSI, said he would make a decision about Sunday's race when he inspected the track tonight after the practice.

needs of the Braves. They have been without a regular first baseman this season, using outfielder Mike Lum and third baseman Darrell Evans alternately in that position.

The 32-year-old Pepitone, known for his flamboyant hair styles and sometimes erratic behavior off the field, originally was signed by the New York Yankees and won the Golden Glove as the American League's best defensive first baseman in 1965-66-69.

Pepitone was traded by New York to Houston in 1970 and the Astros traded him to the Cubs midway through the 1970 season. He hit .307 as the Cubs' regular first baseman in 1971 and hit .262 in limited action last year.

This season he was hitting .267 as the regular first baseman for the Cubs. He has appeared in 31 games so far this year, collected 30 hits in 112 at bats, scored 16 runs and drove in 18.

Petaluma Tennis Team Tips Ukiah

UKIAH — Petaluma High School ended its North Bay League tennis season yesterday by taking all five singles matches in defeating host Ukiah, 5-2. The Trojans finished NBL play with a 7-6 mark.

John Van Der Werff, Danne Hawley, Jerry Langdon, Kevin Nelson and Mark Klein won their singles matches, but the Trojans dropped both doubles, with the second match a default.

Someone once wrote that Picasso didn't paint billboards; Rudolph Nureyev doesn't do the fox trot; and Sinatra never sang with a barbershop quartet.

But don't be surprised if sometime this summer, when you tune in NBC's Monday Night Baseball on television, you catch the voice of Dinah Shore, Carlton Heston or Woody Allen. (The first broadcast is Monday night at 5 o'clock with Houston hosting San Francisco on Channel 3, while Channel 4 covers St. Louis at the New York Mets.)

The idea belongs to Carl Lindemann, NBC's vice-president in charge of sports, who would like to extend show business into the broadcast booth.

"We could use a little extra publicity," Lindemann explained, "and it occurs to me that this is one way we might get it. I'm not saying we should fire Curt Gowdy or Tony Kubek or anything like that. But in our business when you stand still you're actually going backwards.

"So maybe we'll line up a few stars and work them in to the color part of the program. Anyway, I've already talked to Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and I think he likes the idea."

Well, I don't know about NBC, but if I were looking for a strong double play combination in front of the microphone, I'd somehow make sure that Pearl Bailey and Casey Stengel are in the same lineup.

The vocal action might go something like this:

Pearl: "Casey, honey, which one of those men down there in the flannel rompers is Joe Hardy? I saw him in Damn Yankees and he's my favorite. Seems like everytime he batted the guys in the orchestra pit would duck."

Casey: "There was a Hardy who played for the Red Sox only he never played so he was always hard to recognize. But right now I'm having trouble with this ballpoint pen which doesn't write as fast as it used to."

Pearl: "I'd like to continue this conversation only I'm so tired I've got get something to eat or starve. And my feet hurt. Anyway, I don't think much is going on right now. There are men standing on every one of those little bases, only it's the other team's manager who is doing all the jumping up and down."

Casey: "Pearlie May, you remind me a lot of my wife Edna and the way she makes Cesar Salad, who by the way was pretty good at hitting behind the runner. Why, I remember one time when Cesar hit so far behind the runner that the ball struck a post in the right field grandstand."

Pearl: "Look down there near that popcorn stand, isn't that the actress we met before the game who said she was approaching 40?

Casey: "From which direction? All I can see is her hat. By the way, have you learned anything about baseball?"

Pearl: "Well, I know the players get $18.50 a day meal money when they're on the road, which would have fed my family for a month when I was a kid."

Casey: "Excuse me Pearl, but I have to tell the fans that next Monday night we're being replaced by Charlton Heston and Woody Allen. Heston is going to read something about Cincinnati crossing the Red Sea and Allen is going to recite "Chuck Connors at the Bat."

Pearl: "Just a minute Casey, honey, but the producer is on the phone and wants to know what the score is?"

Casey: "Tell him Score is a small town down near Savannah, where I once played some minor league baseball. I remember because we dressed in a chicken house out beyond the left field fence. And the chickens didn't like it a bit!"

Provisions Slated For NBA Deadlocks

Combined AP & UPI

PHOENIX — National Basketball Association general managers have drafted provisions in the event of a tie for the conference championships to avoid embarrassments such as the one that occurred this year.

On the final day of meetings Friday, the general managers also recommended that the league delay its college draft until after the NBA playoffs.

They further recommended abolition of the present 17-city conference telephone call for the college draft and suggested that it be held in one central location.

The recommendations will be presented to the NBA Board of Governors, which meets June 27-28 in Los Angeles.

The five-step method of determining the homecourt advantage in the event of a conference tie was recommended to avoid situations such as the Los Angeles-Milwaukee furor last season.

With identical records, the Lakers won the Pacific Division and the Bucks the Midwestern Division, both in the Western Conference. The NBA announced a playoff game would be played, but the Players Association held out for a coin-flip which was used to determine first-round pairings.

Under provisions prepared by the general managers, in the event of identical records, the homecourt advantage in a playoff would go to the team that had the best record in season meetings between the two clubs involved.

If the teams were still tied, the advantage would go to the club with the best record in its division. If the tie remained, the homecourt edge would go to the team with the best record in its conference.

If still undecided, the homecourt edge would be awarded to the club with the point advantage in their season series and, if all else failed, a coin would be tosses.

Tennis

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Arthur Ashe, the only top seeded player still surviving, will meet Roscoe Turner and Cluff Richey will face Brian Gottfried in today's semi-final round of the $150,000 Alan King-Caesers Palace Tennis Classic, the game's richest tournament.

Ashe, dismissing the effects of a recurring bone spur ailment, outlasted Chile's Jaime Fillol 7-6, 6-2, and Richey overpowered South African Ray Moore 6-1, 6-4 in Friday's remaining quarter-final matches, played in 100 degree heat.

Swimming

PROVO, Utah — Mike Burton, 25, former captain of the U.S. Olympic swim team and holder of 10 world records, has been named head swimming coach at Brigham Young University.

Hockey

Marin Net Duo Falls In State Tournament

REDWOOD CITY — College of Marin's Mark Rodnick and Bill Kinser were defeated in the second round yesterday and eliminated from the state junior college tennis doubles championship at Canada College.

The Marin duo fell to Greg Lawrence and Brian Lee of Santa Monica College, 3-6, 6-3, 6-2, after winning its first-round match against Henri Elkins and Ron Low of Los Angeles City College, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2.

Marin Lacrosse Club Last In Standings

The Marin Lacrosse Club finished last with an 0-7 record, according to league standings released by the Northern California Lacrosse Association at the conclusion of its season.

Naval Postgraduate School 7-0, Golden Gate Lacrosse Club 6-1, University of California 5-2, San Francisco 4-3, Palo Alto 4-3, Stanford 2-5, Oakland 1-6, Marin 0-7.

Wood In Dramatic Pitching Triumph

BOSTON — There is a pitching showdown this afternoon in 1912 here. It is the long-awaited duel between Walter (The Big Train) Johnson and (Smoky) Joe Wood.

The Washington Senators are playing the Boston Red Sox. Johnson will be on the mound for the Senators. He is baseball's preimier pitcher. His fastball blazes. He holds the American League consecutive win record of 16.

Boston's Wood is a slightly-built twirler. He has won 13 straight going into today's game and is closing in on Johnson's record. Smoky Joe also relies on a scorching fastball.

The public has clamored for this showdown and Joe Wood is pitching out of his regular rotation in order to meet the "Big Train" head to head.

Five innings go by and neither team can score as both pitchers bear down on every pitch. In the bottom of the sixth with two outs, Red Sox outfielder Tris Speaker comes to the plate.

Aside from the Red Sox sixth, neither team can score off the offerings of these two brilliant right-handers. The fans who enjoy slugfests must be disappointed, but the fans here today came to see a pitching duel and they are seeing a great one.

The last Senator is out in the ninth and Smoky Joe Wood wins his 14th straight. He has also won a dramatic battle of pitching arms that may never be matched.

Hogan Wins By 3 Strokes In Rancho Golf

Hogan High School of Vallejo won the championship of the third annual Rancho Cotate Golf Invitational yesterday with a three-stroke victory over Novato, 393-396, while Terra Linda finished third, 10 strokes back.

Tom Costello of Cardinal Newman in Santa Rosa was the medalist, carding a 72 over the 6,900-yard Rohnert Park Municipal Golf Course, tying the tournament record set in 1971 by Ralph Wade of Rancho Cotate.

Steve McConnell of Vintage in Napa and Brent Jorgensen of Hogan tied for second with 73s. Mike Leach of Novato was the top Marin and Southern Sonoma finisher with a 75, good for a fourth-place tie.

TEAM LEADERS

INDIVIDUAL LEADERS

Escrow Tops Hobbit's In Softball Slugfest

In a good, old-fashioned slugfest last night at Albert Field, Paul Giampoli hit a three-run homer for Hobbit's Habit in the top of the fourth inning but Escrow scored eight times in the bottom half and went on to a 17-14 San Rafael Recreation Department adult softball league victory.

Other games saw Jim Schmidt single home the winning run in the last of the seventh to give MacArthur's a 3-2 triumph over Kentucky Fried Chicken, and Les Elite dump Marin Supply, 12-9.

Maddox Inches Up On Bat For Hits

By GORDON SAKAMOTO

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — When the San Francisco Giants brought up Garry Maddox last season, the young outfielder carried a power-type label.

Off his rocket start with the Giants' triple-A affiliate at Phoenix, the indicators were indeed favorable. In a span of only 11 games, Maddox tore up Pacific Coast League pitching for nine home runs, 22 runs batted in and a sky-high slugging percentage of 1.146.

But now, a short year later, all that has changed. From a down-at-the-knob belter, the willowy Maddox has inched up his hands on the bat handle—resulting in less power but a place among the top 10 hitters in the National League.

After his recall by San Francisco, Maddox made a self-examination of his role as a Giant and decided to shorten his stroke.

"I felt that on this club there were enough home run hitters," he said recently. "Besides, I wasn't hitting in the power slots (third, fourth and fifth in the batting order) so my job, I felt, was just to get on Base — to keep the ball in play."

He wound up with a .266 average and just 12 homers with San Francisco and when spring training rolled around this year, Maddox latched on to batting coach Hank Sauer and the two went to work.

All the tiring work and blisters have paid off as one can see in the daily averages.

The shorter stroke has also had another beneficial effect, according to Sauer. It has drastically cut Maddox' strikeout ratio which at season's end last year totaled 97.

"I'm not thinking at all about the long ball," Maddox said. "Late last season, I decided I just wanted to keep the ball in play. The only way I could do that was to make contact.

"That's when the idea of choking up on the bat handle occured to me. Sometimes I'd choke up on the bat with two strikes on me. Now, it's a natural thing for me."

BOWLING NOTES

San Quentin Man Bowls 701 Series

"It's about time!" exclaimed Norm Ouellette after bowling a 701 series in the Tahoe League at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael.

The 26-year-old San Quentin resident with a 173 average recorded his first 700 with games of 213, 233 and 255 on May 11. Although he was admittedly nervous during his effort, the fork lift driver was confident he could reach such a level of bowling competence.

WHILE OUELLETE'S series reflected steady improvement in each game, he could not match the consistency of Hamilton Air Force Base's Ann Coleman. Mrs. Coleman bowled a 143 triplicate (429 series) last Friday night at Hamilton Lanes. She was bowling in the Mixed League.

NAVE LANES will host qualifying rounds today through June 24 for the North Bay Summer Doubles. Two-man teams paying $7.80 at the desk may bowl three games to determine qualifiers for the finals June 14-15 at Sonoma Bowl in Sonoma. Total pins and handicaps will determine the one qualifier for each 10 entries in reaching the finals. The same bowling and scoring format will be used in the finals. The tourney will be repeated June 25-July 29 and July 30-Sept. 9.

SWENSEN ICE CREAM of Novato holds eighth place in the team (handicap) standings, while Phil Wallace of San Rafael has the sixth spot in the singles event (with handicap) in the 28th California State Men's Bowling Tournament at Grand Lanes and Holiday Bowl in Hayward. Wallace is 16 pins off the pace of San Francisco's Alvin Leung who has a 729 total going into this weekend's action. Wallace had games of 213, 209 and 235, plus a 56 handicap for his 713 total. Swensen has a 3,083 pin total (including a 396 handicap) and is 77 pins off the pace of Joney's Coffee Shop, the leaders from Pismo Beach.

You can tell by our used cars how good our new cars must be

The sparkling cars in our used car lot are in top condition, have low mileage on them, and have been carefully driven. The fact that they were traded on new Porsches and Audis means only one thing. People like Porsches and Audis more than anything. You will, too.

Drop by and we will show you more good things.

Market Suffers A Sharp Decline

NEW YORK (UPI) — Watergate, and gloomy economic news, sent tremors through Wall Street this week and knocked more than 32 points from the widely followed Dow Jones industrial average—one of its heaviest losses in history.

There were 1,647 issues closing lower on the New York Stock Exchange—a record—and only 176 higher out of a total 1,961 traded. There were 833 new 1973 lows, only 15 new highs.

The Dow industrial tumbled 32.81 to 895.17, its lowest level since Jan. 25, 1972. The drop was the sharpest since the week of April 27, when the indicator fell 41.01, its largest loss in postwar history. The Dow has dropped over 57 points in the past two weeks. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index, a broader market barometer, fell 4.31 to 103.86, its low for the year, and the NYSE index lost 2.47 to 54.96.

Investors were bombarded all week by inflationary omens and depressing developments in the world's monetary markets. On Monday, the Dow dropped over 18 points, partially due to a vote of no confidence in the dollar by European investors in foreign currency markets.

A technical rally, aided by Commerce Department statistics showing industrial output had gained a healthy one per cent during April, brought the list back a bit Tuesday.

An aimless downward drift in mid-week abruptly turned into a nosedive Friday when the Wall Street Journal published an article that quoted Geoffrey H. Moore, former U.S. Commissioner of Labor Statistics as sayingn "We now see clear evidence that a slowdown, very possibly a full-fledged recession, lies ahead."

That article, coupled with earlier moves by the Federal Reserve aimed at tightening the supply of money, sent stocks sharply lower at the opening Friday.

Later that session, Wall Street heard of testimony by James W. McCord Jr. in which he said he had been offered executive clemency-which only President Nixon could have granted—to keep silent about the Watergate bugging incident. On that news stock prices moved to even lower ground.

"The force and impact of Watergate will crest and fall in a fairly short time. The findings by the Senate committee soon will be boring and redundant,"

Market Suffers A Sharp Decline

NEW YORK (UPI) — Watergate, and gloomy economic news, sent tremors through Wall Street this week and knocked more than 32 points from the widely followed Dow Jones industrial average—one of its heaviest losses in history.

There were 1,647 issues closing lower on the New York Stock Exchange—a record—and only 176 higher out of a total 1,961 traded. There were 833 new 1973 lows, only 15 new highs.

The Dow industrial tumbled 32.81 to 895.17, its lowest level since Jan. 25, 1972. The drop was the sharpest since the week of April 27, when the indicator fell 41.01, its largest loss in postwar history. The Dow has dropped over 57 points in the past two weeks. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index, a broader market barometer, fell 4.31 to 103.86, its low for the year, and the NYSE index lost 2.47 to 54.96.

Investors were bombarded all week by inflationary omens and depressing developments in the world's monetary markets. On Monday, the Dow dropped over 18 points, partially due to a vote of no confidence in the dollar by European investors in foreign currency markets.

A technical rally, aided by Commerce Department statistics showing industrial output had gained a healthy one per cent during April, brought the list back a bit Tuesday.

An aimless downward drift in mid-week abruptly turned into a nosedive Friday when the Wall Street Journal published an article that quoted Geoffrey H. Moore, former U.S. Commissioner of Labor Statistics as sayingn "We now see clear evidence that a slowdown, very possibly a full-fledged recession, lies ahead."

That article, coupled with earlier moves by the Federal Reserve aimed at tightening the supply of money, sent stocks sharply lower at the opening Friday.

Later that session, Wall Street heard of testimony by James W. McCord Jr. in which he said he had been offered executive clemency-which only President Nixon could have granted—to keep silent about the Watergate bugging incident. On that news stock prices moved to even lower ground.

"The force and impact of Watergate will crest and fall in a fairly short time. The findings by the Senate committee soon will be boring and redundant," one broker predicted. But, he added, investors now are extremely sensitive to Watergate news, and would remain that way at least in the short-run.

Another broker, William Nelson of Moody Investors' Service said "Investors lately seem to be actively looking for 'the bad news of the day.' The accumulation of bearish news now is so great, I find it hard to imagine a positive development that could turn the market around."

TWA led the actives, falling 5 ⅛ to 25 ⅜ on 874,000 shares, including a block of 497,600 shares at 26.

Kaufman & Broad was second, off 9 ½ at 16 ¾ on 673,800 shares. Two major market journals published stories early in the week criticizing the company's accounting methods. The firm accused the journals of "innuendo, misinformation, and faulty analysis."

Seaboard Coast Line followed, and dropped 9 ⅞ to 24 ¾ on 618,300 shares. The company declined 10 points Thursday after it predicted a lower earnings trend, and the temporary substitution of stock dividends for the usual cash dividend starting the third quarter.

Glamors headed sharply lower, led by ARA Services off 10 ¾, Schlumberger 8 ⅞, Xerox 7 1/4 and Polaroid 5.

Electronics and computers were hard-hit. IBM dropped 16 ⅝, Texas Instruments 8 ⅝, Motorla 7 3-8, and Fairchild Camera 6 ½.

one broker predicted. But, he added, investors now are extremely sensitive to Watergate news, and would remain that way at least in the short-run.

Another broker, William Nelson of Moody Investors' Service said "Investors lately seem to be actively looking for 'the bad news of the day.' The accumulation of bearish news now is so great, I find it hard to imagine a positive development that could turn the market around."

TWA led the actives, falling 5 ⅛ to 25 ⅜ on 874,000 shares, including a block of 497,600 shares at 26.

Kaufman & Broad was second, off 9 ½ at 16 ¾ on 673,800 shares. Two major market journals published stories early in the week criticizing the company's accounting methods. The firm accused the journals of "innuendo, misinformation, and faulty analysis."

Seaboard Coast Line followed, and dropped 9 ⅞ to 24 ¾ on 618,300 shares. The company declined 10 points Thursday after it predicted a lower earnings trend, and the temporary substitution of stock dividends for the usual cash dividend starting the third quarter.

Glamors headed sharply lower, led by ARA Services off 10 ¾, Schlumberger 8 ⅞, Xerox 7 1/4 and Polaroid 5.

Electronics and computers were hard-hit. IBM dropped 16 ⅝, Texas Instruments 8 ⅝, Motorla 7 3-8, and Fairchild Camera 6 ½.

Too-Tough Rules Don't Save The Bay

"SAVE THE BAY" was the battle cry of those who succeeded a few years ago in establishing the Bay Conservation and Development Commission.

Since it came into being, BCDC has put the brakes on bay filling, sometimes at considerable expense to a land owner and/or developer, but mostly to the benefit of the general public — which doesn't want to see the bay completely filled in.

The City of San Rafael is among those who suffer some from BCDC action. Our San Rafael Canal needs periodic dredging to keep it in usable condition.

Petaluma, with Petaluma Creek is — pardon the expression — in the same boat.

For as long as San Rafael Canal and Petaluma Creek have been periodically dredged to keep them usable as waterways for commerce and recreational craft, dredged spoil has been tossed up on banks filling adjacent low lands.

Whenever it was time for a periodic dredging, the Corps of Engineers had only to find a low-lying piece of property whose owner was glad to have it filled with dredged material.

Since BCDC came into being, it has not been that simple; a BCDC permit to fill must first be obtained.

For the most part, BCDC officials have been reasonable, recognizing that the public benefits from a usable waterway and that the spoil must go somewhere close by so the cost of dreding dredging not become prohibitive.

In a pinch, spoil from Bay Area dredging projects could be hauled to an especially deep area off Alcatraz and simply dumped overboard. The Corp of Engineers supervised such dumping very closely to be sure that no more was dumped there than could be assimilated without causing problems.

THEN CAME the Regional Water Quality Control Board's ruling last spring which provides that dredged materials containing a certain level of heavy metal content may be disposed of only some 30 miles at sea.

The effect of this "interim" restriction has been paralyzing for some.

On San Rafael Canal, for instance, is a reasonably successful boat shop which periodically must dredge around its docks so customers can come and go by boat. Before necessary dredging permits can be obtained, it is necessary for the boat shop owner to submit bottom material samples to the Water Quality Control Board.

This boat shop is located downstream from the site of a boat yard which has operated on the canal for as long as anyone now living can remember. Part of its business is the periodic hauling of boats from the water to clean and repaint their bottoms. The cleaning process involves removal of marine growth and some of the paint under it. Bottom paint contains a variety of metallic compounds aimed at inhibiting marine growth.

The boat shop owner who must dredge to stay in business can dump the dredged material, the Water Quality Control Board requires, only 30 or more miles at sea.

This makes the cost of dredging prohibitive.

The boat shop owner is facing a critical problem.

AT A RECENT meeting, the Water Quality Control Board received testimony that its restrictions on dredging could have an extremely detrimental impact on 193,000 jobs and $2 billion in annual income which depends on navigability of the bay and its tributaries.

If costs continue to rise due to overly severe dredging restrictions, the result could be loss of deep water access to ports, marinas, and shipyards. Small boat harbors — which return millions in boat taxes — could be forced to close.

COMMERCIAL SHIPPING interests have understandably spoken out in opposition to the overly restrictive controls.

The California Marine Parks and Harbors Association has voiced the concerns of recreational boatmen and the relatively small businesses which exist to serve recreational boating.

"The least we can expect," says an association spokesman, "is a sharp rise in the cost of boating over the next five years. The more likely result may be the virtual closing down of some of our harbors and marinas... all due to the impracticality of raising the money necessary to pay for the inflated cost of maintenance dredging... Dredging costs are expected to increase from 200 to 300 per cent. We are not going to be able to afford to operate our marinas, harbors and launching ramps for long..."

The Marine Parks and Harbors Association has testified that little or no scientific evidence has thus far been produced to indicate that traditional dredging activities have been detrimental to the bay.

"Ecological niceties must be weighed against the impact upon people living around the bay who enjoy its waters for a wide range of recreational sports," the association has declared.

IN THE GEOLOGIC scheme of things, rainfall on hills and mountains carries soil to valleys and waterways below. Over the long haul of geologic time, inland waterways tend to grow increasingly narrow and shallow.

A century ago, you could still ride a steamboat most of the way to the mother lode gold mines. Today the upper reaches of many of those streams are so shallow it would be difficult to paddle a canoe on them.

Nature has been at work.

If we want to "Save the Bay" we must keep dredging so the forces of nature don't fill it.

It is proper to control dredging and filling, of course. But the controls must not have the effect of eliminating maintenance dredging if we really want to save the bay as a useful waterway.

San Rafael and Petaluma exemplify the problem.

Yacht Season Coverage Goes Into Scrapbook

My most sincere thanks and deep appreciation for the very excellent coverage given Corinthian Yacht Club's part in the Opening Day Program for the bay area yachting season.

The very fine articles by the writers and the beautiful photos by Alfred Arn certaily covered our program in excellent style. We were all most pleased to see the interest your paper displayed in this program.

We, at Corinthian, have all enjoyed the articles and photos and they will be a nice section of our 1973 opening day...

Warm Srpings Dam Necessity Questioned

Redwood Empire residents who are concerned about the environment and governmental expenditures resulting in increased taxes should be writing to the Public Works Committee of the House and Senate asking that no more money be alloted for the Warm Springs Dam until:

(1) the Army Corps completes an environmental impact statement on the dam..., (2) it is determined that there is an actual need for the water supply which this dam will produce..., (3) flood control as anticipated by the dam is actually determined as possible or even beneficial.

Gordon Miller of the Sonoma County Water Agency will be visiting the Public Works Committees in Washington, D.C., this month asking for more money when the appropriations bills come up for approval by Congress this June. The water agency has obligated the residents of Sonoma County to pay for 28 per cent (plus interest) of the constructions costs of the dam for water, 5 per cent (plus interest) for recreation costs and 33 per cent of the maintenance and operations costs yearly. County residents will pay for the water through a general county-wide tax. From an estimated $40,000,000, construction costs have spiralled up to over $102,500,000...

You Want To Wire The President? Well, There Are Few Restrictions

NEWS ITEM — It has just been revealed that the Committee for the Re-Election of the President sent thousands of telegrams to the White House supporting President Nixon's mining of Haiphong Harbor. The White House was then able to claim that the American people were in favor of the action by more than five to one.

"Hello, operator. I wish to send a telegram to the President of the United States at the White House."

"Yessir. Is this to be charged to the Committee for the Re-Election of the President?"

"No, dammit, I want it charged to my own telephone number."

"JUST A MINUTE. I'm not sure we can do that. If you charge it to the Committee for the Re-Election of the President we can give you a special group rate."

"I'm not interested in a group rate. I want to pay for this telegram in full."

"Well here's the problem, sir. If you charge it through the committee we can assure delivery. But if you send it on your own, it might take several days to get there."

"How's that?"

"The committee picks up the telegrams it sends and delivers them in its own truck. Of course, in order to qualify for this service, you would have to send a telegram favorable to the President."

"THIS TELEGRAM does not happen to be favorable to the President."

"Oh dear, that could be sticky for us. The White House refuses to sign a receipt for telegrams that are unfavorable to the President."

"Well I don't care if they sign for it or not. I just want it delivered. Now here's the text."

"Just a minute, sir. May I read you several form telegrams?

"You can send any one of them for 75 cents."

"No, I don't want to send a form telegram. Can't I just say what I want to?"

"The Committee for the Re-Election of the President won't like that.

"I DON'T GIVE a hoot about the Committee for the Re-Election of the President."

"Well, we do. They're our best customers. They send 1,000 telegrams to the White House every day. And they get very annoyed if someone sends one on his own."

"Look, just write down what I have to say."

"The President depends on their telegrams. It lifts his spirit to know the American people are behind him."

"But if all the telegrams are sent by the Committee for the Re-Election of the President, how does he know the American people are behind him?"

"The President doesn't know the telegrams come from the Committee for the Re-Election of the President, silly."

"But it's been in all the newspapers."

"THE PRESIDENT doesn't read the papers. He just reads the telegrams."

"Don't you ever get telegrams from people who don't support the President?"

"Oh, once in awhile someone calls in and takes issue with a particular presidential decision."

"What do you do about it?"

"We take his number and report it to the Justice Department."

"What do they do with it?"

"They tap his telephone."

"Maybe I'd better not send this telegram after all."

MARQUIS CHILDS

Selection Of David Bruce '10-Strike' For China Mission

PEKING — Arriving in Peking as ambassador of the United States to China in everything but name, David K. E. Bruce is initiating a new phase in the rapidly developing relationship between the two countries. The speed with which the exchange of missions between Peking and Washington came about is in itself remarkable.

When Henry Kissinger, the President's adviser on national security affairs, came here in February, the outside limit of his hope was to get agreement on trade offices in the two capitals.

This would be a modest establishment, without fanfare, intended to smooth the way for increased trade. He was astonished when Premier Chou En-lai suggested a liaison mission that would have diplomatic immunity and some diplomatic privileges.

THE CHOICE OF BRUCE was a ten-strike. Not only the United States senior diplomat serving as ambassador in Paris, Bonn and London, he is a scholar and a witty raconteur out of his wealth of experience. Yet, for all his many years in foreign posts he is unmistakably an American. His independence has been uppermost from the announcement of his appointment to his arrival in Hong Kong, the first stop on the way to Peking. He has a diplomatic assignment of the first importance and he intends to devote himself to that task with no distractions. He firmly resisted efforts to swell the mission with aides from Commerce, Agriculture and the USIA.

His age, 75, was a further compliment to the Chinese. It is the age of Chou En-lai, whose achievements as diplomat and administrator over every detail of the life of this vast land are without parallel in the contemporary world.

ON EACH OF HIS four visits to Peking, the first two years ago to lay the groundwork for the Nixon mission, Kissinger has spent many hours in discussion with Chou. Meeting in the late morning and in the early evening, they would often talk late into the night. Kissinger has said that conversation never lagged, no matter how long the discussion went on.

Transcripts were made of these conversations and as part of the preparation for his assignment, Bruce read the thousands of words exchanged between the two. It gave him an extraordinary insight into the mind of one of the commanding figures of the century. And that will be a marked advantage in forming what are certain to be his own close ties with the premier.

Having spent part of his youth in Paris where he first became a member of the Communist party, Chou speaks French fluently, as do Bruce and his wife. Like Bruce, he has strong feeling for antiques and art objects. When he was in Geneva as head of the Chinese delegation to the Indochina conference, he had in his villa porcelains of museum quality.

In this liaison mission Bruce, who does not speak Chinese, is backstopped by a new generation of China specialists. Eight of the 30 in the mission speak fluent Chinese. Since the older generation of China hands in the Foreign Service was destroyed in the McCarthy-Dulles era, it is the more remarkable that these younger men are ready to understand and interpret the new China.

ALMOST TO THE DAY 130 years ago, Sec. of State Daniel Webster sent Caleb Cushing, the first U.S. emissary to Peking, to negotiate a treaty to protect American businessmen and missionaries. One of Webster's worries was that Cushing would be required when presented to the emperor to perform the kowtow, which consisted of "three kneelings and nine prostrations" with the nose on the floor. It turned out that, while he did negotiate a treaty giving Americans extraterritorial privileges, Cushing never saw the emperor.

Some critics called Nixon's self-invited mission to Peking a kowtow. That was the beginning of the greatest diplomatic venture of our time. And Bruce, initiating a new era freed of the inhibitions of the past, is an ideal choice to carry on that adventure. His ruddy face, the mark of an American who has ridden hard over the hills of the Virginia he loves, is immediately identifiable. He and his beautiful wife, Evangeline, will represent the best of America.

WASHINGTON WINDOW

By ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK

That David Wise and Charles Goodell see themselves in a far different light is revealed in their books —different in content and style but sharing the conviction that official deception and repression are becoming increasingly dangerous.

Wise, who wrote "Lying", is the former Washington bureau chief of the New York Herald Tribune, which was staunchly Republican to the day it died. Goodell, author of "Prisoners", was a conservative Republican House member and a slightly more liberal senator until he was bushwacked by right wingers in New York.

BOTH BOOKS have historical references going back to the earliest days of the nation, but the common message is that since World war II we have been witnessing the rape of truth and the shackling of free expression. These books are intended to shake up Americans who still think the government never tells lies and that any citizen may speak his mind without fear of official retaliation.

They succeed in that. It is easy to see how anyone who has ever uttered a critical remark about those in authority could come down with the paranoid shakes after reading both books.

But if they have any lasting value, the two books should be read as object lessons demonstrating Lord Acton's observation that power corrupts.

WHAT THESE BOOKS tell us is that the worst depredations of citizen rights have been committed by people who really believed they were defending the security of the nation and the stability of society.

As far back as 1799, when Luther Baldwin of Philadelphia was convicted of sedition for declaring, in his cups, that he did not care if a 16-gun salute to John Adams was fired into the presidential backside, Americans in authority have been clutched with a kind of feverish righteousness that transforms disagreement into conspiracy and irreverence into treason.

These illusions of rectitude have no ideological persuasion —the attorney general in Woodrow Wilson's administration could sweep up thousands of persons accused of "evil thinking," and a White House aide in the Richard Nixon administration could order the burglary of a court defendant's psychiatric records in the name of "national security."

THE RECORD seems clear. It is fruitless to expect men who reach positions of power in this or any other political system to respect, let alone defend, the right of dissent.

This is a job the people must do. The Constitution is their protection against official tyranny; the courts are their bulwark against unchecked Presidents and Congresses; the press is their lever to pry open closed government.

People who have grievances, who see wrongs clothed as social tradition or national necessity, must use these tools. And, hardest of all, even those who are satisfied with the way things are must be prepared to defend the rights of those who are not.

Humans are the only animals who blush, psychiatrists tell us. Seems logical. We have more to blush about than our pets do.

One reason a homo sapien blushes is that he's unable to react by wagging his tail.

When a fellow receives an extravagant compliment what can he do but blush prettily?

"The President doesn't know the telegrams come from the Committee for the Re-Election of the President, silly."

"But it's been in all the newspapers."

"THE PRESIDENT doesn't read the papers. He just reads the telegrams."

"Don't you ever get telegrams from people who don't support the President?"

"Oh, once in awhile someone calls in and takes issue with a particular presidential decision."

"What do you do about it?"

"We take his number and report it to the Justice Department."

"What do they do with it?"

"They tap his telephone."

"Maybe I'd better not send this telegram after all."

"That's up to you, sir. After all, it's a free country."

MARQUIS CHILDS

Selection Of David Bruce '10-Strike' For China Mission

PEKING — Arriving in Peking as ambassador of the United States to China in everything but name, David K. E. Bruce is initiating a new phase in the rapidly developing relationship between the two countries. The speed with which the exchange of missions between Peking and Washington came about is in itself remarkable.

When Henry Kissinger, the President's adviser on national security affairs, came here in February, the outside limit of his hope was to get agreement on trade offices in the two capitals.

This would be a modest establishment, without fanfare, intended to smooth the way for increased trade. He was astonished when Premier Chou En-lai suggested a liaison mission that would have diplomatic immunity and some diplomatic privileges.

THE CHOICE OF BRUCE was a ten-strike. Not only the United States senior diplomat serving as ambassador in Paris, Bonn and London, he is a scholar and a witty raconteur out of his wealth of experience. Yet, for all his many years in foreign posts he is unmistakably an American. His independence has been uppermost from the announcement of his appointment to his arrival in Hong Kong, the first stop on the way to Peking. He has a diplomatic assignment of the first importance and he intends to devote himself to that task with no distractions. He firmly resisted efforts to swell the mission with aides from Commerce, Agriculture and the USIA.

His age, 75, was a further compliment to the Chinese. It is the age of Chou En-lai, whose achievements as diplomat and administrator over every detail of the life of this vast land are without parallel in the contemporary world.

ON EACH OF HIS four visits to Peking, the first two years ago to lay the groundwork for the Nixon mission, Kissinger has spent many hours in discussion with Chou. Meeting in the late morning and in the early evening, they would often talk late into the night. Kissinger has said that conversation never lagged, no matter how long the discussion went on.

Transcripts were made of these conversations and as part of the preparation for his assignment, Bruce read the thousands of words exchanged between the two. It gave him an extraordinary insight into the mind of one of the commanding figures of the century. And that will be a marked advantage in forming what are certain to be his own close ties with the premier.

Having spent part of his youth in Paris where he first became a member of the Communist party, Chou speaks French fluently, as do Bruce and his wife. Like Bruce, he has strong feeling for antiques and art objects. When he was in Geneva as head of the Chinese delegation to the Indochina conference, he had in his villa porcelains of museum quality.

In this liaison mission Bruce, who does not speak Chinese, is backstopped by a new generation of China specialists. Eight of the 30 in the mission speak fluent Chinese. Since the older generation of China hands in the Foreign Service was destroyed in the McCarthy-Dulles era, it is the more remarkable that these younger men are ready to understand and interpret the new China.

ALMOST TO THE DAY 130 years ago, Sec. of State Daniel Webster sent Caleb Cushing, the first U.S. emissary to Peking, to negotiate a treaty to protect American businessmen and missionaries. One of Webster's worries was that Cushing would be required when presented to the emperor to perform the kowtow, which consisted of "three kneelings and nine prostrations" with the nose on the floor. It turned out that, while he did negotiate a treaty giving Americans extraterritorial privileges, Cushing never saw the emperor.

Some critics called Nixon's self-invited mission to Peking a kowtow. That was the beginning of the greatest diplomatic venture of our time. And Bruce, initiating a new era freed of the inhibitions of the past, is an ideal choice to carry on that adventure. His ruddy face, the mark of an American who has ridden hard over the hills of the Virginia he loves, is immediately identifiable. He and his beautiful wife, Evangeline, will represent the best of America.

WASHINGTON WINDOW

By ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK

That David Wise and Charles Goodell see themselves in a far different light is revealed in their books —different in content and style but sharing the conviction that official deception and repression are becoming increasingly dangerous.

Wise, who wrote "Lying", is the former Washington bureau chief of the New York Herald Tribune, which was staunchly Republican to the day it died. Goodell, author of "Prisoners", was a conservative Republican House member and a slightly more liberal senator until he was bushwacked by right wingers in New York.

BOTH BOOKS have historical references going back to the earliest days of the nation, but the common message is that since World war II we have been witnessing the rape of truth and the shackling of free expression. These books are intended to shake up Americans who still think the government never tells lies and that any citizen may speak his mind without fear of official retaliation.

They succeed in that. It is easy to see how anyone who has ever uttered a critical remark about those in authority could come down with the paranoid shakes after reading both books.

But if they have any lasting value, the two books should be read as object lessons demonstrating Lord Acton's observation that power corrupts.

WHAT THESE BOOKS tell us is that the worst depredations of citizen rights have been committed by people who really believed they were defending the security of the nation and the stability of society.

As far back as 1799, when Luther Baldwin of Philadelphia was convicted of sedition for declaring, in his cups, that he did not care if a 16-gun salute to John Adams was fired into the presidential backside, Americans in authority have been clutched with a kind of feverish righteousness that transforms disagreement into conspiracy and irreverence into treason.

These illusions of rectitude have no ideological persuasion —the attorney general in Woodrow Wilson's administration could sweep up thousands of persons accused of "evil thinking," and a White House aide in the Richard Nixon administration could order the burglary of a court defendant's psychiatric records in the name of "national security."

THE RECORD seems clear. It is fruitless to expect men who reach positions of power in this or any other political system to respect, let alone defend, the right of dissent.

This is a job the people must do. The Constitution is their protection against official tyranny; the courts are their bulwark against unchecked Presidents and Congresses; the press is their lever to pry open closed government.

People who have grievances, who see wrongs clothed as social tradition or national necessity, must use these tools. And, hardest of all, even those who are satisfied with the way things are must be prepared to defend the rights of those who are not.

REMEMBER WHEN?

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

Humans are the only animals who blush, psychiatrists tell us. Seems logical. We have more to blush about than our pets do.

No wonder animals don't blush. They can't read modern novels or watch X-rated movies.

One reason a homo sapien blushes is that he's unable to react by wagging his tail.

When a fellow receives an extravagant compliment what can he do but blush prettily?

Cutting Down On Energy Use Tough But Less Costly

Self-Cleaning Ovens, Driving Fast Adds Up

By HARRY B. ELLIS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Is your wife pressing you for a new frost-free refrigerator and self-cleaning oven? If so, you may want to confront her with these facts:

"The frost-free refrigerator," says Concern, Inc., "requires 50 per cent more energy to operate than a standard model."

Self-cleaning ovens are "large consumers of energy," adding materially to the cost of running a stove, according to this public-service organization of Washington women.

If you, as man of the family, enjoy flashing along the highway in a large powerful car, you might think twice about advising your wife to defrost her own refrigerator and clean her own oven.

She might have a comeback. Such as — speeding costs money. A car going 75 to 80 miles an hour consumes "almost twice as much fuel per mile" as the same car driven 50 miles an hour.

Even cutting your speed from 60 to 50 miles an hour, says William E. Simon, chairman of the U.S. Government's Oil Policy Committee, increases mileage from 5 to 10 per cent.

Also, if your current Detroit model weighs 5,000 pounds, it consumes more than twice as much gasoline as a small car weighing 2,000 pounds.

There are, it seems, any number of ways to cut down a family's consumption of energy on the road and in the home and save money at the same time.

It isn't easy, of course, for your wife to do some of the tougher kitchen chores herself, or much fun to chug along the highway at modest speed in a small car.

Such disadvantages have to be weighed against a family's need to save money, and against one's own desire or lack of it to help everyone concerned by cutting down on the consumption of energy.

The mounting world scramble for energy means, among many other things, that probably 200 million Americans — 6 per cent of the earth's population — cannot go on consuming one-third of the world's total energy output.

If you think one family's contribution is insignificant, consider the following:

Electric energy consumed by small appliances — irons, hedge clippers, shavers, and the like — constitutes nearly 10 per cent of all residential demand, which is more than 3 per cent of total U.S. electric energy demand.

"This 3 per cent," notes Concern, Inc., "becomes significant when compared with the Atomic Energy Commission's use of 5 per cent, the aluminum industry's use of 7 per cent, and the steel industry's use of 5 per cent of our electric output."

Recommendation: "Eliminate use of unnecessary appliances."

Founded in 1970, Concern, Inc. is a nonprofit, tax-exempt organization, staffed by Washington women "determined to harness the vast consumer power of this country to help solve environmental problems."

Concern conducts intensive research on low-lead gasoline, detergents, recycled paper, returnable bottles, and a host of other products, large and small, and publishes its findings in a series of consumer guides called Eco-Tips.

Public utility companies, increasingly hard-pressed for supplies, also distribute to their customers free booklets on how to save power.

Some of these tips require of the comsumer little more than forethought. Other suggestions cost money to implement.

A pilot light consumes at least 10 per cent of the gas used by a stove. Tip: Subsitutue a switch-operated electric starter for the continuous burning pilot light.

Demand returnable bottles for your soft drinks. The returnable bottle system, according to a University of Illinois study, "uses approximately 28 per cent of the energy of the throwaway bottle system or the bimetal can system."

Buy paper towels, napkins, tissues, and writing paper of recycled paper. All these items are on the market. Pulp made from recycled waste paper uses 30 to 40 per cent of the energy needed to make pulp from wood.

Take newspapers to your local recycling center. Recycled newsprint equals in quality virgin newsprint and uses 60 per cent less energy than pulp prepared from new materials.

Close your refrigerator door on a new dollar bill. "If you can pull it out easily, you're wasting cold air." Have the gaskets replaced.

And so on, up to recommendations that cost a good deal of money, like improving the insulation of your home. Proper insulation, experts say, greatly reduces the energy required to heat and air-condition a building.

A simple recommendation — insulate yourself by wearing a sweater and set your thermostat lower. "By lowering the daytime setting of your thermostat . . . 5 degrees, you use 15 to 20 per cent less fuel."

Someone planning a new home should work closely with the contractor, to insure that the most efficient insulation for that house is installed.

Readers wanting a complete set of Eco-Tips should write to Concern, Inc., 2233 Wisconsin Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20007.

The charge is small, the tips are many, and they come to you on recycled paper.

Capital Punishment Pendulum Swings

The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Capital punishment — is it becoming obsolete?

A survey of many countries around the world indicates a long-term trend in that direction, despite an undercurrent of public support for the supreme penalty.

A recent United Nations report says the movement for restriction of the capital penalty is slow — "usually marked by many ups and downs."

Opinion polls, the U.N. study says, show a majority of people favoring the penalty. For every U.N. member committed to abolition, there are three member governments in favor of retaining it.

The United States is watching what is happening in the remainder of the world.

Last June the Supreme Court of the United States ruled capital punishment, as it was being administered, unconstitutional. Now 13 states have enacted new capital-punishment acts, and bills are being considered in a number of other U.S. states. Also, President Nixon has urged Congress to enact supreme-penalty legislation for certain crimes.

In some places where the penalty is still on the books, it has been used seldom or not at all in recent years.

Canada is an example. While capital punishment still exists for murderers of on-duty policemen and prison employees (under an experimental partial ban enacted in 1968), the federal Cabinet has commuted all such sentences since the early 1960's.

But, Federal Justice Minister Otto Lang says the "pendulum of public opinion is swinging in the direction of capital punishment." Public opinion polls back him up.

In Canada, as elsewhere, the issue of capital punishment as a deterrent to crime is argued.

Montreal criminologist Ezzat Abdel Fattah concludes that the increase in criminal homicide in Canada during recent years cannot be attributed to the partial ban on the capital penalty. He rejects the theory of capital punishment as a deterrent, even though there has been a slight increase in the criminal homicide rate.

For example, in Mexico abolition of capital punishment has come by stages. Some Mexican states ended the use of the penalty as far back as the 1920's. By 1960, a total of 25 of Mexico's 29 states had abolished it. Today it is not used anywhere in Mexico.

The death penalty long has been seen in Latin America as something of an anachronism with penologists believing that it is not a deterrent to crime.

However, Argentina, which earlier abolished capital punishment for all crimes, reimposed it in 1970 for kidnapping. The lame-duck military government of Lt. Gen. Alejandro Agustin Lanusse abolished it totally in January of this year. But with leftist terrorism, including kidnapping, on the upswing, the penalty has been reinstated.

The capital penalty continues in France and Spain. In France the punishment can be inflicted for a wide variety of crimes — but there has been a steady trend away from its use. However, a majority of the public favors its retention. The French penal code specifies, "All those condemned to death shall have their heads severed."

In Spain, where capital punishment is the penalty for murder and terrorism, two forms of execution are used; garroting and the firing squad. While there has been no movement toward abolition of the capital penalty in Spain, commutation of the sentences has increased.

Capital punishment was abolished in Italy after the collapse of Fascism in 1944. And West Germany's postwar constitution states briefly, "Capital punishment shall be abolished."

From early medieval times to the end of World War II, the job of executioner in Germany was a trade passed on from father to son. One ninth-generation professional still lives in Bavaria today. During his career from 1924 to 1945 he executed 3,010 persons — most during the Third Reich.

The abolition of capital punishment apparently has not encouraged violent crime in West Germany. Crimes rates there are low by standards of other industrialized nations. And in Italy crimes of violence against persons have shown a slight decrease according to latest official figures.

In practice, there is no capital punishment in Britain, where there have been no executions for more than seven years. It is authorized only for treason, piracy, and certain military offenses.

A rise in violent crimes in Britain led to a campaign for a return of the capital penalty. But the House of Commons last month rejected an attempt to bring back the penalty for some categories of murder.

All the East European Communist states retain capital punishment. However, they have used it less and less frequently. For "political" offenses it has virtually lapsed altogether.

Czechoslovakia's seven executions since 1971 have all been for murder.

In 1968, Bulgaria's new code reduced the number of capital crimes. And it limited the penalty to cases where "the purposes of punishment cannot be achieved by lighter sentence."

Only Yugoslavia (which surprised everyone, including Yugoslavs in April by executing three Croat "terrorists" in the first such sentences carried out in that country for 20 years) has ever considered abolition. Its jurists urged some years ago that capital punishment was demonstrably no deterrent. But the issue was shelved.

The Soviet criminal code describes punishment by shooting as an "extraordinary penalty that may be applied pending its abolition."

Although Soviet legal authorities look to the day when such punishment may become unnecessary — as the phrasing of the law indicates —they proclaim it essential meanwhile and publicize such sentences for deterrent effect.

During the past three months the press has reported execution of three who killed payroll guards in a Tashkent armed robbery and of one for armed robbery and murder of an Armenian scientist.

Also executed were a bank bookkeeper who embezzled almost 300,000 rubles and two who were discovered to have served in a Nazi punitive detachment that wiped out several thousand civilians in Kursk during World War II.

The last person hanged in Australia was a convict involved in the killing of a prison warden during as escape. This was in 1967. The furor this caused virtually meant the end of capital punishment in that country. However, it remains on the statute books in a number of Australian states.

Japan imposes the capital penalty for a variety of crimes. The country has a low crime rate and capital punishment is not an issue.

The trend in Africa appears to be toward capital punishment, particularly if one includes political crimes for which 12 persons, for example, recently were executed in Uganda.

Some months ago the police commissioner of Nigeria's Lagos state claimed that public executions of armed robbers has appreciably lowered the number of robberies in the state. But this assertion was widely questioned and no statistical proof was offered.

South Africa accounts for about 50 per cent of all non-Communist country executions each year.

The Arab states and Iran prescribe capital punishment for some offenses, but there is wide variation among them in its use.

There have been five executions in Lebanon, all for murder, since its independence in 1946. And controversy has been sharp over whether it is a deterrent, with no clear consensus.

In Egypt there have been two or three public executions for murder since President Nasser's revolution of 1952 and four known ones for espionage on behalf of Israel, in 1955.

Jordan has executed perhaps half a dozen murderers and as many convicted spies since the Arab-Israel war of 1967. There have been many reports of summary executions and some secret trials of Palestine guerrillas captured during and after the Jordan civil war of 1970.

Unlike Arab governments, Iran imposes the capital penalty for narcotics smugglers or pushers, and the Shah's firing squads have executed more than 100 narcotics offenders in the past three years.

China retains capital punishment, but reported instances of its use are rare.

Says it wasn't so

THIS WEEK In The World

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The seemingly endless assortment of incidents of political espionage, sabotage, manipulation of funds, and coverup known as the Watergate scandal moved into a new phase.

Thursday it began to unfold in public hearings on live, nationwide TV by a Senate select committee examining wrongdoing in the 1972 presidential campaign.

Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, both indicted in a related case in New York, were expected to be asked to testify.

Acting FBI director William D. Ruckelshaus disclosed wiretapping of newsmen and government officials from 1969 to 1971 requested by top Nixon aides.

Several Congressional committees explored connections between the CIA and Watergate figures. White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, it was disclosed, tried to get the CIA to stop the FBI's investigation of Watergate funds channeled through Mexico.

President Nixon's Aug. 29 assurance to the American people that a "complete investigation" cleared top aides became questionable. Dean, the man Nixon said made the investigation, said he never made a formal report on the subject.

One of the leadoff witnesses was Robert Cadle Jr., a former Nixon campaign official.

G. Bradford Cook, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, resigned. A grand jury accused Cook of yielding to pressure to delete from an SEC suit any reference to a $200,000 campaign contribution by financier Robert Vesco. Cook was not indicted.

Around The World, Around The Clock

The launching of the Skylab 1 astronauts was twice postponed. The first delay came Tuesday when it was discovered that the orbiting laboratory was overheating and with a curtailed power supply. The second delay was to give the three astronauts time to practice installing a plastic awning to replace the missing thermal shield. The Skylab is an eightmonth, $2.5 billion effort to determine man's ability to live and work for long periods in space.

The price of gold skyrocketed Monday and at one point reached $114 in London and $128 in Paris, all-time highs. The markets cooled two days later, but not before the dollar was subjected to the worst attack in months. The official price of gold is $42.22. Denials that the dollar would be devalued again helped stem the gold buying fever.

Three nuclear devices seven times more powerful than the Hiroshima atom bomb were exploded beneath the Rocky Mountains in a test to free natural gas. Environmentalists lost a federal court attempt to block the test. It will take three months to know if the explosion produced anything more than a slight tremor.

Gasoline supplies were reported shorter than expected and the situation is expected to get worse this summer.

Martha Mitchell was reportedly secreted in a mental hospital last week, but Sunday, the wife of former Attorney General denied it. "Anybody who says that, why they're just as crazy as can be," she told The New York Times by telephone.

National Little League headquarters ordered uniform patches removed from eight Ypsilanti, Mich., teams because one of the teams has a 12-yearold female centerfielder in violation of the "No girls" rule.

Six members of a farm family were shot to death at Donalsonville, Ga. Police theorize that one of four fugitives from a Maryland prison work camp followed pretty 24-yearold Mrs. Mary Alday home, sexually molested her and then killed her, her husband, his two brothers, their father and uncle.

The ruling four-man political council of Cambodia installed a new government headed by Prime Minister In Tam. The new 24-man cabinet included 12 holdovers and political opponents of President Lon Nol. Heavy fighting and U.S. bombing raids continued during the week, despite moves in the U.S. Congress to cut off funds.

Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi negotiator Le Duc Tho, who hammered out the Vietnam cease-fire agreement, met in Paris to discuss violations of the peace agreement. Kissinger reported the talks were proceeding "okay."

North Vietnam for the second time charged that U.S. planes struck areas of South Vietnam held by the Communists, and the U.S. again denied it.

In Spain, where capital punishment is the penalty for murder and terrorism, two forms of execution are used; garroting and the firing squad. While there has been no movement toward abolition of the capital penalty in Spain, commutation of the sentences has increased.

Capital punishment was abolished in Italy after the collapse of Fascism in 1944. And West Germany's postwar constitution states briefly, "Capital punishment shall be abolished."

From early medieval times to the end of World War II, the job of executioner in Germany was a trade passed on from father to son. One ninth-generation professional still lives in Bavaria today. During his career from 1924 to 1945 he executed 3,010 persons — most during the Third Reich.

The abolition of capital punishment apparently has not encouraged violent crime in West Germany. Crimes rates there are low by standards of other industrialized nations. And in Italy crimes of violence against persons have shown a slight decrease according to latest official figures.

In practice, there is no capital punishment in Britain, where there have been no executions for more than seven years. It is authorized only for treason, piracy, and certain military offenses.

A rise in violent crimes in Britain led to a campaign for a return of the capital penalty. But the House of Commons last month rejected an attempt to bring back the penalty for some categories of murder.

All the East European Communist states retain capital punishment. However, they have used it less and less frequently. For "political" offenses it has virtually lapsed altogether.

Czechoslovakia's seven executions since 1971 have all been for murder.

In 1968, Bulgaria's new code reduced the number of capital crimes. And it limited the penalty to cases where "the purposes of punishment cannot be achieved by lighter sentence."

Only Yugoslavia (which surprised everyone, including Yugoslavs in April by executing three Croat "terrorists" in the first such sentences carried out in that country for 20 years) has ever considered abolition. Its jurists urged some years ago that capital punishment was demonstrably no deterrent. But the issue was shelved.

The Soviet criminal code describes punishment by shooting as an "extraordinary penalty that may be applied pending its abolition."

Although Soviet legal authorities look to the day when such punishment may become unnecessary — as the phrasing of the law indicates —they proclaim it essential meanwhile and publicize such sentences for deterrent effect.

During the past three months the press has reported execution of three who killed payroll guards in a Tashkent armed robbery and of one for armed robbery and murder of an Armenian scientist.

Also executed were a bank bookkeeper who embezzled almost 300,000 rubles and two who were discovered to have served in a Nazi punitive detachment that wiped out several thousand civilians in Kursk during World War II.

The last person hanged in Australia was a convict involved in the killing of a prison warden during as escape. This was in 1967. The furor this caused virtually meant the end of capital punishment in that country. However, it remains on the statute books in a number of Australian states.

Japan imposes the capital penalty for a variety of crimes. The country has a low crime rate and capital punishment is not an issue.

The trend in Africa appears to be toward capital punishment, particularly if one includes political crimes for which 12 persons, for example, recently were executed in Uganda.

Some months ago the police commissioner of Nigeria's Lagos state claimed that public executions of armed robbers has appreciably lowered the number of robberies in the state. But this assertion was widely questioned and no statistical proof was offered.

South Africa accounts for about 50 per cent of all non-Communist country executions each year.

The Arab states and Iran prescribe capital punishment for some offenses, but there is wide variation among them in its use.

There have been five executions in Lebanon, all for murder, since its independence in 1946. And controversy has been sharp over whether it is a deterrent, with no clear consensus.

In Egypt there have been two or three public executions for murder since President Nasser's revolution of 1952 and four known ones for espionage on behalf of Israel, in 1955.

Jordan has executed perhaps half a dozen murderers and as many convicted spies since the Arab-Israel war of 1967. There have been many reports of summary executions and some secret trials of Palestine guerrillas captured during and after the Jordan civil war of 1970.

Unlike Arab governments, Iran imposes the capital penalty for narcotics smugglers or pushers, and the Shah's firing squads have executed more than 100 narcotics offenders in the past three years.

China retains capital punishment, but reported instances of its use are rare.

THIS WEEK In The World

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The seemingly endless assortment of incidents of political espionage, sabotage, manipulation of funds, and coverup known as the Watergate scandal moved into a new phase.

Thursday it began to unfold in public hearings on live, nationwide TV by a Senate select committee examining wrongdoing in the 1972 presidential campaign.

Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, both indicted in a related case in New York, were expected to be asked to testify.

Acting FBI director William D. Ruckelshaus disclosed wiretapping of newsmen and government officials from 1969 to 1971 requested by top Nixon aides.

Several Congressional committees explored connections between the CIA and Watergate figures. White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, it was disclosed, tried to get the CIA to stop the FBI's investigation of Watergate funds channeled through Mexico.

President Nixon's Aug. 29 assurance to the American people that a "complete investigation" cleared top aides became questionable. Dean, the man Nixon said made the investigation, said he never made a formal report on the subject.

One of the leadoff witnesses was Robert Cadle Jr., a former Nixon campaign official.

G. Bradford Cook, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, resigned. A grand jury accused Cook of yielding to pressure to delete from an SEC suit any reference to a $200,000 campaign contribution by financier Robert Vesco. Cook was not indicted.

Around The World, Around The Clock

The launching of the Skylab 1 astronauts was twice postponed. The first delay came Tuesday when it was discovered that the orbiting laboratory was overheating and with a curtailed power supply. The second delay was to give the three astronauts time to practice installing a plastic awning to replace the missing thermal shield. The Skylab is an eightmonth, $2.5 billion effort to determine man's ability to live and work for long periods in space.

The price of gold skyrocketed Monday and at one point reached $114 in London and $128 in Paris, all-time highs. The markets cooled two days later, but not before the dollar was subjected to the worst attack in months. The official price of gold is $42.22. Denials that the dollar would be devalued again helped stem the gold buying fever.

Three nuclear devices seven times more powerful than the Hiroshima atom bomb were exploded beneath the Rocky Mountains in a test to free natural gas. Environmentalists lost a federal court attempt to block the test. It will take three months to know if the explosion produced anything more than a slight tremor.

Gasoline supplies were reported shorter than expected and the situation is expected to get worse this summer.

Martha Mitchell was reportedly secreted in a mental hospital last week, but Sunday, the wife of former Attorney General denied it. "Anybody who says that, why they're just as crazy as can be," she told The New York Times by telephone.

National Little League headquarters ordered uniform patches removed from eight Ypsilanti, Mich., teams because one of the teams has a 12-yearold female centerfielder in violation of the "No girls" rule.

Six members of a farm family were shot to death at Donalsonville, Ga. Police theorize that one of four fugitives from a Maryland prison work camp followed pretty 24-yearold Mrs. Mary Alday home, sexually molested her and then killed her, her husband, his two brothers, their father and uncle.

The ruling four-man political council of Cambodia installed a new government headed by Prime Minister In Tam. The new 24-man cabinet included 12 holdovers and political opponents of President Lon Nol. Heavy fighting and U.S. bombing raids continued during the week, despite moves in the U.S. Congress to cut off funds.

Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi negotiator Le Duc Tho, who hammered out the Vietnam cease-fire agreement, met in Paris to discuss violations of the peace agreement. Kissinger reported the talks were proceeding "okay."

North Vietnam for the second time charged that U.S. planes struck areas of South Vietnam held by the Communists, and the U.S. again denied it.

Violence Cancels Brezhnev Visit

BONN (UPI) — Club-swinging police battled thousands of pro-Chinese demonstrators in Dortmund Saturday and Soviet party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev called off a prospective visit to the Ruhr industrial city.

In Bonn, about 1,000 Germans marched silently in protest against alleged persecution of Christians and Jews in the Soviet Union while pro-Soviet German Communists staged a much larger rally to welcome the Kremlin leader.

In the Foreign Ministry, about half a mile from the competing Bonn rallies, Brezhnev capped the second day of his five-day visit by signing a 10-year economic pact with West Germany. He then posed for television cameras with a smile on his face and a glass of champagne in his hand. Chancellor Willy Brandt signed for the Bonn government.

The largest security force ever deployed by West Germany—27,000 men—was on the alert to keep order during Brezhnev's visit. The rival demonstrations in Bonn were peaceful.

In Dortmund, however, police spokesmen said about 4,000 police cleared about 2,000 German Maoist radicals off downtown squares with repeated baton charges. Officers took more than 300 demonstrators off to "temporary custody," some of them dragged off in strangleholds.

The Soviet Union is holding a cultural festival in Dortmund, in the Ruhr 78 miles north of Bonn, and Brezhnev had scheduled a visit there Monday. Dortmund is also headquarters of the pro-Chinese German Communist wing and members had promised protest actions.

Saturday, however, spokesman Leonid Zamyatin told newsmen Brezhnev had canceled his visit in order to continue "intensive talks" with West German leaders.

Lucky Taking Out Ads On Beef Labeling Suit

SAN LEANDRO (UPI) — Lucky Stores has taken out legal notices in 27 California newspapers as a result of a lawsuit attacking practices in the labeling of ground beef, the company said today.

The notices were provided by a proposed consent judgment approved May 8 in Los Angeles by Superior Judge Joseph A. Wapman.

The suit, originated by Los Angeles attorney Alan J. Maler, two other lawyers and their wives, was filed Aug. 13, 1971, to challenge industry practices of denominating meat as ground beef, ground round and ground sirloin.

The practice was said to be misleading and to violate state law because the labels were based on fat content rather than on origin.

Lucky switched to a labeling system, based on relative fat content, referring to ground, lean and extra lean. Some other defendants have insisted the old practice is legal.

In the settlement as to Lucky, Lucky agreed to continue its present labeling practice and to continue a consumer education program, involving handbills and advertising.

The suit was a class action, and the legal notices announce all consumers affected can comment at a hearing July 13.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Many Different Things Cause Bad Breath, Not All In Mouth

Foul breath (halitosis) can put a crimp in our social life. However, poor dental hygiene is not the only cause of the disagreeable symptom. It may also stem from infection, allergy, or an abnormality, often far from the mouth. For example, a liver disorder may create an odor resembling indol. Those with a fecal impaction, acute dilatation of the stomach, or peritonitis, have a breath that resembles boiled cabbage.

But, in most instances, bad breath stems from the nose, throat, or mouth. Decaying teeth and unhealthy gums are well-known culprits. Natural or artificial ivories may also trap food particles when the teeth are not brushed after meals. A small pocket on the back of the tongue may do the same. Crypts in the tonsils also are food catchers.

IF THE TRAPPED food ferments, the breath may become somewhat offensive. This is why good oral hygiene is crucial. Many dentists not only stress brushing, but the use of a pulsating water device and dental floss. Good gargles can be purchased at the drug store, but the lease expensive is prepared by mixing a teaspoonful of salt in a glass of water.

Prolonged mouth breathing may also be associated with foul breath. Nasal obstruction from swollen turbinates, enlarged adenoids, polyps, or an allergic condition is the basic cause. These must be corrected because prolonged mouth breathing tends to dry out the normal secretions which, in turn, invites infection.

EVERYONE IS familiar with the unpleasant odor associated with a sore throat, tonsilitis, and a congested nose. As a rule, this is temporary, but it might linger in persons with a chronic infection of these parts. Nasal irrigations with saline solution or Argysol (5 per cent solution) drops may be most helpful. In many instances, a postnasal drip, which leads to hacking, coexists. Smoking usually aggravates these conditions. Alcohol may do the same by increasing the congestion. Too mcuh bubbly usually is responsible for the nasal obstruction and raspy throat the morning after the night before.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal.

NIGHTMARES

REPLY

Radioactive iodine, propylthiouracil, or surgery.

Cotton Growers Are All Smiles

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There are smiles on the faces of cotton farmers in California's San Joaquin Valley these days.

In spite of the terrible winter weather, estimates are that acreage will increase this year.

And the price per pound is causing the grins to stretch even wider. It has doubled in the last five months.

The price has been floating near 50 cents a pound for 1 3-32 inch staple middling cotton for the past several weeks, compared with a price of 25 cents a pound in December and January.

Gene Egan, vice president of producers Cotton Oil Co. says, "anyone who can't make it at these prices shouldn't be in the cotton business."

The price is so good that one grower reportedly planted melons earlier in the year, allowed them to come up and then ripped them out to put in cotton.

DRUG RAID MISTAKE

Mrs. Louise Giglotto (right), a member of one of two Collinsville, Ill., families whose homes were invaded by federal agents in mistaken drug raids April 23, yesterday showed letters of sympathy she received from Senators Charles Percy (left), R-Ill., and Sam Nunn, D-Ga., who conducted a Senate subcommittee hearing into the matter in Chicago. Agents carrying arms and without search warrants also forced their way into the Collinsville home of Donald Askew.

Watergate Scandal Spurs Newspaper, Weekly Sales

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Newspaper and newsweekly street sales have increased as much as 20 per cent since the White House involvement in the Watergate scandal has become a fixture in the news, a United Press International survey showed Friday.

Two major news magazines, Time and Newsweek, reported increases in circulation of up to 20 per cent.

The newspaper circulation hikes were most pronounced in New York and less so in other parts of the country.

In New York, readers are buying roughly 10 per cent more newsstand copies of the three major dailies than normal, said a spokesman for the Union News Co., overseer of almost 200 newsstands in the city's subway stations.

The Washington Post, which spearheaded the investigation into the Watergate affair, said it adds a few thousand papers on any big news break, but has not seen any tremendous increase in circulation. In San Francisco, street sales of the Chronicle increased by only 2 or 3 per cent during the height of the Watergate disclosures several weeks ago, a spokesman said.

The most dramatic increases in newsstand sales were recorded by the two major news magazines, Time and Newsweek.

Time's director of circulation, George Wiedemann, said the magazine was up between 15 and 20 per cent on its last three Watergate cover issues.

Newsweek's circulation chief, Robert Riordan, said over the last six-week period, which included four Watergate issues, nationwide sales climbed 16 per cent compared to 1972. "We know we're doing even better than that in the New York City area," Riordan said.

The Los Angeles Times, the country's second largest newspaper, said its circulation seemed to be unchanged, although sales generally begin dropping this time of year as vacation approaches. The newspaper attributed approximately 1 to 3 per cent of the seasonal bulge to Watergate coverage. The Los Angeles Herald-Examiner would only say circulation was "above normal."

The Daily News of New York, the circulation giant of American newspapers with 2,300,000 copies daily, now is printing an additional 30,000 to 40,000 copies a day in the New York area. Carleton Rosenburgh, circulation sales manager, said, "Watergate has increased sales for the News, but we've also had other big New York stories such as Biaggi (the Conservative mayoral candidate) and the Knicks."

Newsstand sales of the New York Times in the metropolitan area and in Washington have been up 8 per cent since the week prior to President Nixon's April 30 speech on Watergate, according to Barry McCarthy, corporation communications director. The impact of Watergate on the paper's national circulation has been minimal, however, he said. The Times normal circulation is 900,000 copies daily.

The Wall Street Journal said its circulation figures were basically unchanged at 1.3 million. Walter Doyle, sales administration manager for the Journal, said, "basically, we've experienced no change since 80 per cent of our circulation is by mail."

He said The Journal was running into "some slowness in the New York City area" in comparison to The New York Times and Daily News. The New York Post said its six-month daily circulation figure ending March 31 was 630,621, but refused to comment on the effect, if any, of Watergate news on street sales.

In Chicago, Sun-Times circulation chief Sid Minch said the paper has had an unprecedented record for the last two months, with circulation up daily and Sunday every day from a year ago. "Watergate certainly increased readership, but it's impractical to evaluate (by) how much," he said. The Chicago Tribune said it registered no increase in circulation during the Watergate developments.

Detroit, home of the News and Free Press, is not a street sales city, making it difficult to assess the effect of Watergate on circulation. Edward J. Murray, associate editor of the Free Press, said, however, that circulation rose during the Watergate buildup "by a healthy few thousand. Murray said Watergate was one of several factors. News national editor Al Blanchard said the paper's sales have been going up for some time, but in his opinion, Watergate hasn't made that much of a difference.

"The reader reaction to the issue indicates an interest in Watergate certainly," he said, "but not particularly any more than on everything else that is happening in the world."

In Philadelphia, Al Heltman, circulation manager for the Inquirer, said it was impossible to measure the impact of Watergate on street sales because it is an ongoing story like the Vietnam War.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Venus and Saturn.

American philanthropist John Hopkins was born May 19, 1795.

On this day in history:

In 1895, an advertisement in a Chicago newspaper offered "Modern dancing lessons, three and one-half hours, 25 cents."

In 1940, Editor William Allen White of the Emporia, Kan., Gazette started organizing a committee to defend America by aiding the Allies in World War II.

In 1945, more than 400 American Superfortress planes bombed Tokyo.

In 1964, Alabama Gov. George Wallace won 42 per cent of the vote in a Maryland presidential primary. Four years later, he was defeated as a third party candidate.

A thought for the day: Editor William Allen White said, "Company merges into the family when clean towels are not kept in the bathroom every morning."

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.

Other areas:

San Francisco, clean air.

San Jose, significant air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Violence Cancels Brezhnev Visit

BONN (UPI) — Club-swinging police battled thousands of pro-Chinese demonstrators in Dortmund Saturday and Soviet party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev called off a prospective visit to the Ruhr industrial city.

In Bonn, about 1,000 Germans marched silently in protest against alleged persecution of Christians and Jews in the Soviet Union while pro-Soviet German Communists staged a much larger rally to welcome the Kremlin leader.

In the Foreign Ministry, about half a mile from the competing Bonn rallies, Brezhnev capped the second day of his five-day visit by signing a 10-year economic pact with West Germany. He then posed for television cameras with a smile on his face and a glass of champagne in his hand. Chancellor Willy Brandt signed for the Bonn government.

The largest security force ever deployed by West Germany—27,000 men—was on the alert to keep order during Brezhnev's visit. The rival demonstrations in Bonn were peaceful.

In Dortmund, however, police spokesmen said about 4,000 police cleared about 2,000 German Maoist radicals off downtown squares with repeated baton charges. Officers took more than 300 demonstrators off to "temporary custody," some of them dragged off in strangleholds.

The Soviet Union is holding a cultural festival in Dortmund, in the Ruhr 78 miles north of Bonn, and Brezhnev had scheduled a visit there Monday. Dortmund is also headquarters of the pro-Chinese German Communist wing and members had promised protest actions.

Saturday, however, spokesman Leonid Zamyatin told newsmen Brezhnev had canceled his visit in order to continue "intensive talks" with West German leaders.

Lucky Taking Out Ads On Beef Labeling Suit

SAN LEANDRO (UPI) — Lucky Stores has taken out legal notices in 27 California newspapers as a result of a lawsuit attacking practices in the labeling of ground beef, the company said today.

The notices were provided by a proposed consent judgment approved May 8 in Los Angeles by Superior Judge Joseph A. Wapman.

The suit, originated by Los Angeles attorney Alan J. Maler, two other lawyers and their wives, was filed Aug. 13, 1971, to challenge industry practices of denominating meat as ground beef, ground round and ground sirloin.

The practice was said to be misleading and to violate state law because the labels were based on fat content rather than on origin.

Lucky switched to a labeling system, based on relative fat content, referring to ground, lean and extra lean. Some other defendants have insisted the old practice is legal.

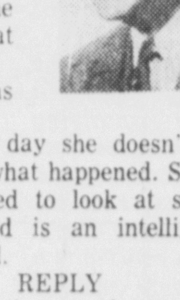
In the settlement as to Lucky, Lucky agreed to continue its present labeling practice and to continue a consumer education program, involving handbills and advertising.

The suit was a class action, and the legal notices announce all consumers affected can comment at a hearing July 13.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Many Different Things Cause Bad Breath, Not All In Mouth



Foul breath (halitosis) can put a crimp in our social life. However, poor dental hygiene is not the only cause of the disagreeable symptom. It may also stem from infection, allergy, or an abnormality, often far from the mouth. For example, a liver disorder may create an odor resembling indol. Those with a fecal impaction, acute dilatation of the stomach, or peritonitis, have a breath that resembles boiled cabbage.

But, in most instances, bad breath stems from the nose, throat, or mouth. Decaying teeth and unhealthy gums are well-known culprits. Natural or artificial ivories may also trap food particles when the teeth are not brushed after meals. A small pocket on the back of the tongue may do the same. Crypts in the tonsils also are food catchers.

IF THE TRAPPED food ferments, the breath may become somewhat offensive. This is why good oral hygiene is crucial. Many dentists not only stress brushing, but the use of a pulsating water device and dental floss. Good gargles can be purchased at the drug store, but the lease expensive is prepared by mixing a teaspoonful of salt in a glass of water.

Prolonged mouth breathing may also be associated with foul breath. Nasal obstruction from swollen turbinates, enlarged adenoids, polyps, or an allergic condition is the basic cause. These must be corrected because prolonged mouth breathing tends to dry out the normal secretions which, in turn, invites infection.

EVERYONE IS familiar with the unpleasant odor associated with a sore throat, tonsilitis, and a congested nose. As a rule, this is temporary, but it might linger in persons with a chronic infection of these parts. Nasal irrigations with saline solution or Argysol (5 per cent solution) drops may be most helpful. In many instances, a postnasal drip, which leads to hacking, coexists. Smoking usually aggravates these conditions. Alcohol may do the same by increasing the congestion. Too mcuh bubbly usually is responsible for the nasal obstruction and raspy throat the morning after the night before.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal.

NIGHTMARES

A. C. writes: A 12-year-old girl has us worried. She wakes up at night screaming frequently and dashes to her parents' room looking scared to death. The next day she doesn't remember what happened. She is not allowed to look at spook shows and is an intelligent, quiet child.

REPLY

This is the age for terrible nightmares and little can be done except what you are trying — the avoidance of terrifying movies, TV shows, and books. Remember to be sympathetic and give her extra attention during the day.

INFECTED BONE

V. A. writes: Is operation needed for osteomyelitis?

REPLY

In some instances, the antibiotics eliminate the bone infection but, more often than not, surgical drainage plus the antibiotics are needed.

OVERACTIVE THYROID

REPLY

Radioactive iodine, propylthiouracil, or surgery.

Cotton Growers Are All Smiles

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There are smiles on the faces of cotton farmers in California's San Joaquin Valley these days.

In spite of the terrible winter weather, estimates are that acreage will increase this year.

And the price per pound is causing the grins to stretch even wider. It has doubled in the last five months.

The price has been floating near 50 cents a pound for 1 3-32 inch staple middling cotton for the past several weeks, compared with a price of 25 cents a pound in December and January.

Gene Egan, vice president of producers Cotton Oil Co. says, "anyone who can't make it at these prices shouldn't be in the cotton business."

The price is so good that one grower reportedly planted melons earlier in the year, allowed them to come up and then ripped them out to put in cotton.

DRUG RAID MISTAKE

Mrs. Louise Giglotto (right), a member of one of two Collinsville, Ill., families whose homes were invaded by federal agents in mistaken drug raids April 23, yesterday showed letters of sympathy she received from Senators Charles Percy (left), R-Ill., and Sam Nunn, D-Ga., who conducted a Senate subcommittee hearing into the matter in Chicago. Agents carrying arms and without search warrants also forced their way into the Collinsville home of Donald Askew.

Watergate Scandal Spurs Newspaper, Weekly Sales

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Newspaper and newsweekly street sales have increased as much as 20 per cent since the White House involvement in the Watergate scandal has become a fixture in the news, a United Press International survey showed Friday.

Two major news magazines, Time and Newsweek, reported increases in circulation of up to 20 per cent.

The newspaper circulation hikes were most pronounced in New York and less so in other parts of the country.

In New York, readers are buying roughly 10 per cent more newsstand copies of the three major dailies than normal, said a spokesman for the Union News Co., overseer of almost 200 newsstands in the city's subway stations.

The Washington Post, which spearheaded the investigation into the Watergate affair, said it adds a few thousand papers on any big news break, but has not seen any tremendous increase in circulation. In San Francisco, street sales of the Chronicle increased by only 2 or 3 per cent during the height of the Watergate disclosures several weeks ago, a spokesman said.

The most dramatic increases in newsstand sales were recorded by the two major news magazines, Time and Newsweek.

Time's director of circulation, George Wiedemann, said the magazine was up between 15 and 20 per cent on its last three Watergate cover issues.

Newsweek's circulation chief, Robert Riordan, said over the last six-week period, which included four Watergate issues, nationwide sales climbed 16 per cent compared to 1972. "We know we're doing even better than that in the New York City area," Riordan said.

The Los Angeles Times, the country's second largest newspaper, said its circulation seemed to be unchanged, although sales generally begin dropping this time of year as vacation approaches. The newspaper attributed approximately 1 to 3 per cent of the seasonal bulge to Watergate coverage. The Los Angeles Herald-Examiner would only say circulation was "above normal."

The Daily News of New York, the circulation giant of American newspapers with 2,300,000 copies daily, now is printing an additional 30,000 to 40,000 copies a day in the New York area. Carleton Rosenburgh, circulation sales manager, said, "Watergate has increased sales for the News, but we've also had other big New York stories such as Biaggi (the Conservative mayoral candidate) and the Knicks."

Newsstand sales of the New York Times in the metropolitan area and in Washington have been up 8 per cent since the week prior to President Nixon's April 30 speech on Watergate, according to Barry McCarthy, corporation communications director. The impact of Watergate on the paper's national circulation has been minimal, however, he said. The Times normal circulation is 900,000 copies daily.

The Wall Street Journal said its circulation figures were basically unchanged at 1.3 million. Walter Doyle, sales administration manager for the Journal, said, "basically, we've experienced no change since 80 per cent of our circulation is by mail."

He said The Journal was running into "some slowness in the New York City area" in comparison to The New York Times and Daily News. The New York Post said its six-month daily circulation figure ending March 31 was 630,621, but refused to comment on the effect, if any, of Watergate news on street sales.

In Chicago, Sun-Times circulation chief Sid Minch said the paper has had an unprecedented record for the last two months, with circulation up daily and Sunday every day from a year ago. "Watergate certainly increased readership, but it's impractical to evaluate (by) how much," he said. The Chicago Tribune said it registered no increase in circulation during the Watergate developments.

Detroit, home of the News and Free Press, is not a street sales city, making it difficult to assess the effect of Watergate on circulation. Edward J. Murray, associate editor of the Free Press, said, however, that circulation rose during the Watergate buildup "by a healthy few thousand. Murray said Watergate was one of several factors. News national editor Al Blanchard said the paper's sales have been going up for some time, but in his opinion, Watergate hasn't made that much of a difference.

"The reader reaction to the issue indicates an interest in Watergate certainly," he said, "but not particularly any more than on everything else that is happening in the world."

In Philadelphia, Al Heltman, circulation manager for the Inquirer, said it was impossible to measure the impact of Watergate on street sales because it is an ongoing story like the Vietnam War.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, May 19, the 139th day of 1973 with 226 to follow. 226 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Venus and Saturn.

American philanthropist John Hopkins was born May 19, 1795.

On this day in history:

In 1895, an advertisement in a Chicago newspaper offered "Modern dancing lessons, three and one-half hours, 25 cents."

In 1940, Editor William Allen White of the Emporia, Kan., Gazette started organizing a committee to defend America by aiding the Allies in World War II.

In 1945, more than 400 American Superfortress planes bombed Tokyo.

In 1964, Alabama Gov. George Wallace won 42 per cent of the vote in a Maryland presidential primary. Four years later, he was defeated as a third party candidate.

A thought for the day: Editor William Allen White said, "Company merges into the family when clean towels are not kept in the bathroom every morning."

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, clean air.

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.

Carbon monoxide, clean air.

Smoke particles, clean air.

Other areas:

San Francisco, clean air.

San Jose, significant air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

X-Rated Films May Be Banned

X-rated films may be dealt a blow at the Petaluma City Council meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. at city hall.

The council will consider adopting an ordinance to prohibit the showing of explicit sexual material in drive-in or outdoor theaters.

Representatives of church groups were unsuccessful two weeks ago in urging the council to halt the showing of "Deep Throat" in a downtown theater, but got council assuarance it would consider banning such films at drive-ins where they may be viewed from streets and homes.

Profile Of A Marinite

"I don't stay out all night, I only drink occasionally, and I don't smoke. Also I don't worry about things; I just take it as it comes," is the way George Kappas explains his youthful looks and his great vitality at the age of 73.

By PAT ANGLE

They laughed back in 1949 when George Kappas shelled out good money to buy 75 acres of unimpressive mudflats along the shores of Richardson Bay.

"In those days, the Sausalito Land and Ferry Company couldn't give this place away; nobody wanted to get stuck with it," Kappas recalled, his eyes twinkling. "One of the people from that company told me, 'George, I can't sell anything, even if I give the clients cigars.'"

The same people who sneered then are probably still kicking themselves today, wishing they had had the foresight to realize the muddy, soggy acres would some day become one of the most valuable pieces of real estate in Marin County.

BUT KAPPAS had watched the increasing traffic on nearby Highway 101 and realized the property would have to be a moneymaker, even in the days before "a little place on the water" had become the American dream.

"I saw a piece of land and I saw the traffic and I knew that land would be bound to improve in value," he said.

People were even more amused when the ambitious Greek immigrant announced he intended to fill the flats.

A man from the Northwestern Pacific Railroad who had to give Kappas a permit for a right-of-way across the railroad tracks to his property didn't even want to provide the necessary document when he learned what he was up to.

"THERE'S NO bottom, my boy," he warned, then asked, tongue-in-cheek, if Kappas was a relative of A. P. Giannini, founder of the Bank of America.

"He said: 'If you're Giannini's son, you can afford it; if not. I don't want to give you a permit, because you will lose money,'" Kappas recalled with a grin.

Kappas still owns 45 acres of the land and water, most of it in the Gate 6 area. He is in the process of a complete renovation of his property, now the site of a houseboat colony.

When the refurbishment is complete, he will have a harbor for 150 pleasure boats, a 120-houseboat marina, paved roads and a flock of small businesses and offices — a tidy. accomplishment for a man whose family came to this country in 1916 with a total of $9 in their coffers.

THE KAPPAS family — father Constantine, mother, 15-year-old George and his 14-year-old brother Themestocles (Tom) — almost didn't get here at all.

First there was the hassle at the ticket office in Athens, where the agent pretended to know nothing about the deposit his father had earlier put down toward the cost of the passage.

"They wanted more money and my father wouldn't give it to them. He was so mad he was going to sue. Athens was full of people and we couldn't get a hotel, so we slept outside a coffee house," Kappas said.

BUT THE NEXT morning, after an uncomfortable night, George managed to convince his irate father to pay the difference "so we can get the hell out of this damned country."

The family's problems weren't over, however, when they arrived at Ellis Island, the immigrant receiving center in New York Harbor.

All of a sudden, officials decided that Mrs. Kappas couldn't enter the country because she was unable to read and write, and threatened to send the whole family back.

"My mother was going to jump in the ocean. She wouldn't eat. She couldn't sleep. How can you learn in a condition like that?"

BUT EITHER Mrs. Kappas did learn or the authorities decided not to be hard-nosed. "They took her in a room and then told us she'd passed," Kappas said. "We never knew just what had happened. Maybe they got tired of her."

There were no jobs available in New York, so the Kappases went on to Manchester, N.H., where a fairly large Greek settlement was entrenched.

They rented a flat atop an all-night saloon and the next days all had jobs in the many factories in the area. Goerge's first post was as a leather softener in a shoe factory.

"I WOULD soften the leather on a bar, all day, and my weekly take-home pay was $3.50." At night, instead of hanging around the coffee houses so beloved of Greeks, he worked in a tobacco shop where he had an opportunity to learn English.

He changed jobs frequently, working as a dishwasher in a big candy store, an ice cream maker and a soda jerk. When many of the New Hampshire factories closed after World War I, he went to New York job hunting.

But for every job opening listed in the newspapers' classified ads, there were hundreds of applicants and Kappas was about to give up when he hit on a scheme.

HE WENT TO the newspaper office and convinced the advertising manager to let him see the help-wanted ads before they went in the paper. The same day, he was hired by a large candy store.

One day in 1921, a friend of Kappas father arrived in New Hampshire from California and the elder Kappas asked him what the Golden State was like.

"Just like the old country," the man replied.

That was enough to convince the family to head West and they arrived in San Francisco in 1921.

THE FAMILY had saved about $13,000 from their five years of hard work and Kappas convinced them to open a small grocery store at the corner of Eddy and Taylor streets.

"We Greeks are devils," he said with a laugh. "I had one month of experience in the grocery store business when I went into business for myself."

Kappas' father was "always afraid I'd tangle with the ladies" and so ordered his son to be home by 9 p.m. the day he left to open his store for the first time.

But, by the time closing time came, there was only $35 in the cash register and, in desperation, he decided to stay open another hour, "because if I went home with only that amount of money, the old guy would kill me."

IN THE NEXT hour, he collected another $35 and "began to feel warm" So he stayed until 1 a.m. — until he had $150 — then closed up and went home, only to find his family up in arms because he was so late.

"My mother said: 'I told you this guy was going to go out with women.' My father told me: 'If that's the life you want, my boy, I know how you're gonna end up.'"

When he finally had a chance to explain, the family calmed down and decided he should keep the store open all night.

For the next 15 years, Kappas lived a life which revolved totally around the grocery store. "I had no fun," he said. "For all that time I worked from 2 p.m. to 8 a.m., seven days a week. I never had girl friends or went to dances; I just worked."

IN 1938, THE long hours and hard work began to tell on Kappas. "I started getting nervous and not feeling well and closing up the store before midnight. After that, the business went down the drain."

His disenchantment with the demanding grocery store led to a whole new career — in real estate — which eventually led him to the Sausalito waterfront.

He bought a large complex on San Francisco's Market Street which included 65 apartments and 10 stores and then became a real estate broker. After "making a few deals" in San Francisco, he began looking around Sausalito and elsewhere in Marin County, and finally bought the Richardson Bay property.

DESPITE HIS many real estate successes, Kappas didn't always snap up the good investments. "I could have bought 100 acres of land from the center of Mill Valley to the Richardson Bay Bridge once; I could have had it for $75,000, but I didn't buy," he said in mock dismay.

It was after he closed the grocery store that Kappas finally had "time for the ladies." He met his wife, Dorli, owner of a Los Angeles health food store, at a picnic and courted her a year before they married.

THE COUPLE has two daughters, Helen Wolf, who helps him run Kappas Yacht Harbor at Gate 6, and Dorothy Steckler, who, with her husband, owns a large plumbing business in San Francisco.

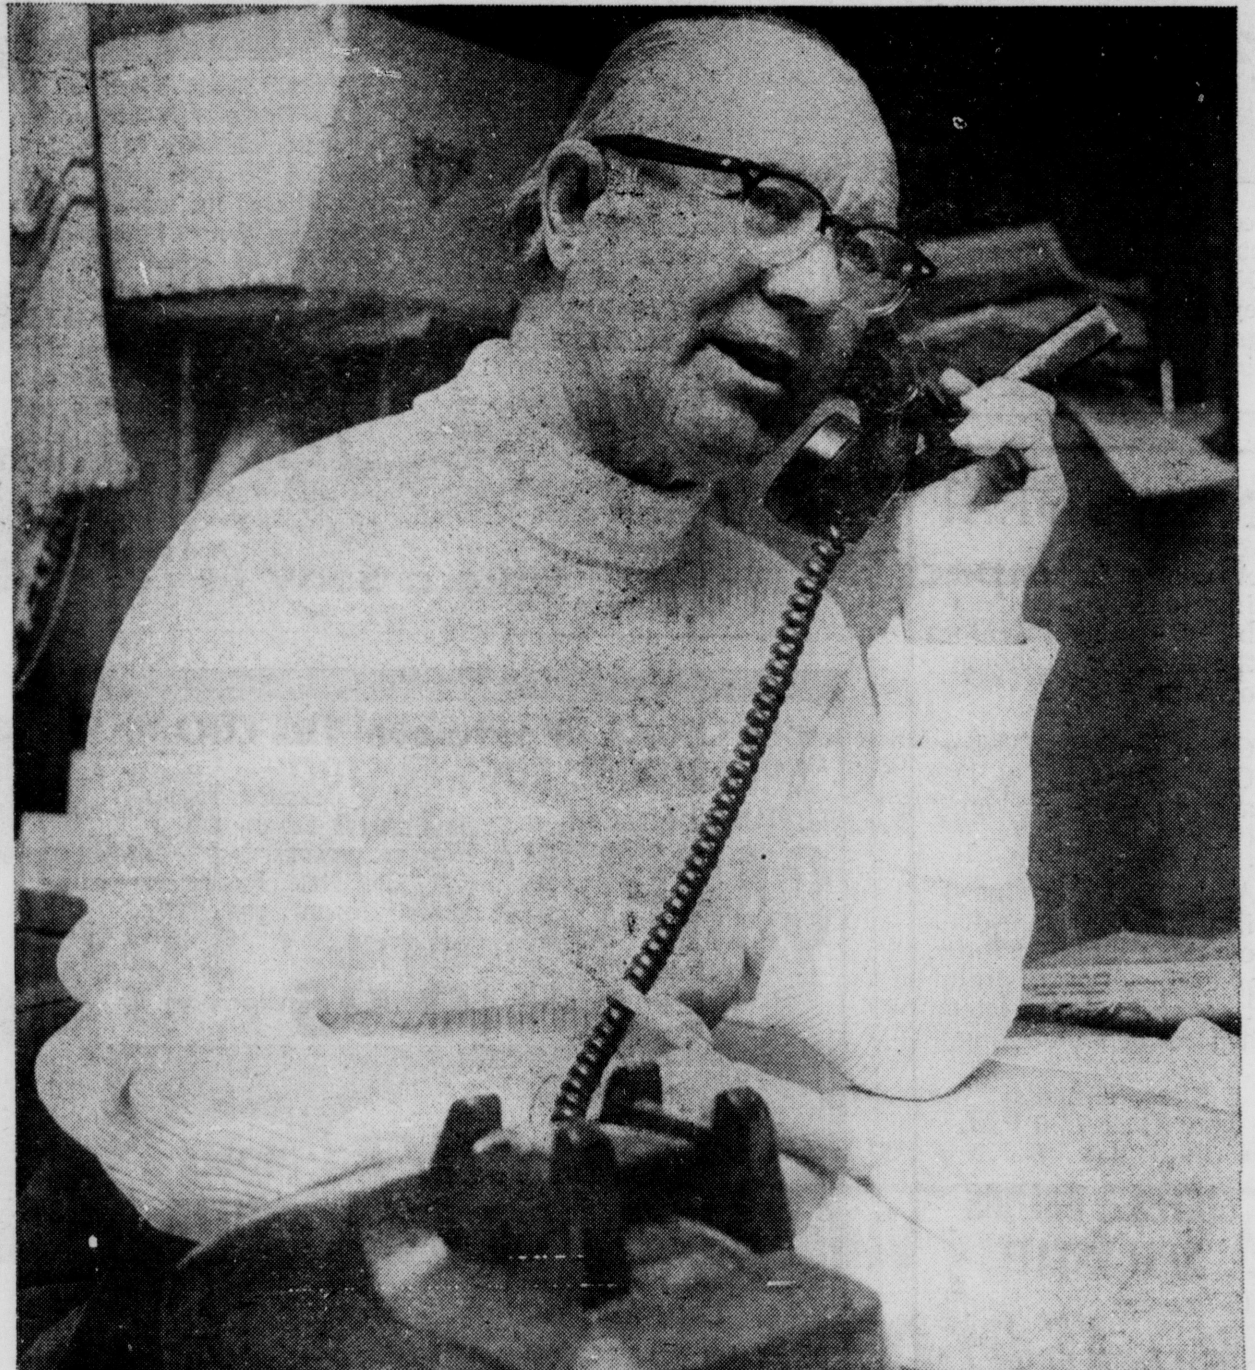
Time has been good to Kappas and at 73 he is still a lively, youthful-looking man, full of enthusiasm.

Although he is semi-retired, he spends almost every afternoon around the harbor office and plans to help oversee the transformation of his Gate 6.

He attributes his good health and vitality to his wife's and his passion for natural foods and "living a clean life."

"I DON'T STAY out all night, I only drink occasionally and I don't smoke. Also, I don't worry about things; Ijust take it as it comes."

He also believes in spending only as much as you have and looks askance at the modern credit system. "If you have $2, don't spend $3 or you'll get into trouble. It's better to spend only $1.50."



THE STORY OF George Kappas is the story of hard work and sagacious investments. At 73, Kappas is "semi-retired." But he still keeps an active hand in the management and the improvement of his yacht harbor property on Richardson Bay at Sausalito's Gate 6.

But, by the time closing time came, there was only $35 in the cash register and, in desperation, he decided to stay open another hour, "because if I went home with only that amount of money, the old guy would kill me."

IN THE NEXT hour, he collected another $35 and "began to feel warm" So he stayed until 1 a.m. — until he had $150 — then closed up and went home, only to find his family up in arms because he was so late.

"My mother said: 'I told you this guy was going to go out with women.' My father told me: 'If that's the life you want, my boy, I know how you're gonna end up.'"

When he finally had a chance to explain, the family calmed down and decided he should keep the store open all night.

For the next 15 years, Kappas lived a life which revolved totally around the grocery store. "I had no fun," he said. "For all that time I worked from 2 p.m. to 8 a.m., seven days a week. I never had girl friends or went to dances; I just worked."

IN 1938, THE long hours and hard work began to tell on Kappas. "I started getting nervous and not feeling well and closing up the store before midnight. After that, the business went down the drain."

His disenchantment with the demanding grocery store led fo a whole new career — in real estate — which eventually led him to the Sausalito waterfront.

He bought a large complex on San Francisco's Market Street which included 65 apartments and 10 stores and then became a real estate broker. After "making a few deals" in San Francisco, he began looking around Sausalito and elsewhere in Marin County, and finally bought the Richardson Bay property.

DESPITE HIS many real estate successes, Kappas didn't always snap up the good investments. "I could have bought 100 acres of land from the center of Mill Valley to the Richardson Bay Bridge once; I could have had it for $75,000, but I didn't buy," he said in mock dismay.

It was after he closed the grocery store that Kappas finally had "time for the ladies." He met his wife, Dorli, owner of a Los Angeles health food store, at a picnic and courted her a year before they married.

THE COUPLE has two daughters, Helen Wolf, who helps him run Kappas Yacht Harbor at Gate 6, and Dorothy Steckler, who, with her husband, owns a large plumbing business in San Francisco.

Time has been good to Kappas and at 73 he is still a lively, youthful-looking man, full of enthusiasm.

Although he is semi-retired, he spends almost every afternoon around the harbor office and plans to help oversee the transformation of his Gate 6.

He attributes his good health and vitality to his wife's and his passion for natural foods and "living a clean life."

"I DON'T STAY out all night, I only drink occasionally and I don't smoke. Also, I don't worry about things; Ijust take it as it comes."

He also believes in spending only as much as you have and looks askance at the modern credit system. "If you have $2, don't spend $3 or you'll get into trouble. It's better to spend only $1.50."

THE STORY OF George Kappas is the story of hard work and sagacious investments. At 73, Kappas is "semi-retired." But he still keeps an active hand in the management and the improvement of his yacht harbor property on Richardson Bay at Sausalito's Gate 6.

There's No Nonsense In The Shop Classes

Drake High Program Typical Of Today's Serious Approach

Gone are the days, at least at Sir Francis Drake High School in San Anselmo, when a shop student spent the first nine weeks of a term turning a table leg or pounding out a metal bracelet.

Officially it's called "Woods, Metals, Plastics 1-8," which means students may take as many as eight semesters. In practice it's a barn-like arena of intense activity throughout the school day. Storti and Nagel move in perpetual circulation, from one work station to another, where students are indeed working with woods, metals and plastics in an infinite variety of shapes and stages of sophistication and completion.

BACK IN THE office there are banks of files and worksheets, a running record of individual student progress. For that's the emphasis on the team-taught course — individual development of skills, continuous challenges of problem-solving, the process of learning to conceive an idea, construct a plan, follow the plan and complete a project which produces a material item.

The course description, in the language of that form of literature, puts it this way:

"A team-taught class where students will learn to use tools, machines and special equipment safely and skillfully. Emphasis on individualized instruction encourages the student to produce creative products which contain a combination of useful materials."

LEARNING BY doing is nothing new, of course. But Nagel and Storti insist on step-by-step demonstration of progress by individual students. First off, students must prove they've mastered safety skills and specified safety procedures for particular tools and machines.

Next, in the basics phase, they're given a problem in design, urged to take it and run, being as creative as possible. Then, provided with necessary materials with which they must become familiar before working them, the students are given a time in which to complete the project.

Along with the material result, the instructors try to lead each student into attaining gradual, planned successes, instilling a sense of accomplishment and individual pride in the work. Those who succeed to STUDENT Dave Ward at Sir Francis Drake High School, San Anselmo, decided to build a table as his shop project, and here he uses the wood lathe to turn a leg, just as have generations of high school shop students before him. But shop classes today are a very different kind of learning from shop classes of yesterday. Today's students work with metals and plastics as well as woods, in an infinite variety of shapes and degrees of sophistication that challenge their creativity as well as their skill. And the attitude in the school shop is one of "no nonsense."

MIKE NIELSEN'S shop project at Sir Francis Drake High School is the building of a desk. When it is finished, its builder will have a functional piece of furniture in which he can take personal pride. And while working on his project, he will have acquainted himself with the safe and skillful use of a variety of shop tools and techniques. One such step is the orbital sanding he is shown performing here. Throughout the shop instruction and practice, the team of instructors at Drake High places heavy emphasis upon safety. Personal creativity in the planning and the design of projects is also encouraged in the shop.

THE INSTRUCTORS conduct numerous demonstrations, both for groups with common needs at the time and for individual students. Specified accomplishment is agreed upon, depending on where the student is at the time and the relative complexity of his project.

The teachers are keen on individual responsibility: "Students must attend class and participate fully each day. Safety rules must be followed. Assigned duties must be completed properly. Students must make up absences, tardies and missed tests. Fooling around in class will not be tolerated."

Classes are supplemented by "lab" work. Students with free time during working hours, i.e., 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. can come back to the shop to work.

Those who are serious can go on, limited only by their other school demands. Those who would rather fool around go out. Storti and Nagel don't kid around with skill training.

THE MAN BEHIND the iron mask is student John Everett, applying the arc welder to a motorcycle trailer he is building in the Drake High shop. Everett drew up the specifications, acquired the materials and carried the project through to its conclusion.

Banker With A Yen For Music—

Frank Dicker Writes His Own

FOLK AND ROCK MUSIC is a family activity for bank vice president Frank Dicker as his wife Donna, vocalist, and son Frank Jr., drummer, join him in the group they call the Deepstone Drive Family Band.

Younger son Jim also sometimes performs with the combo on bongo and trumpet. The Dicker residence: 206 Deepstone Drive, San Rafael.

It is doubtful if any banker today has to sing for his supper, as did the character in the old nursery rhyme. But Frank Dicker of San Rafael could, if he had to.

And the United California Bank vice president admits there are times when he would rather sing than eat.

Dicker is one of the new breed of bankers, moderately long in hair and stylish in dress, who grooves on folk and rock music. He not only enjoys the music, he also writes lyrics and music. He has his own family group and is a member of a new four member rock group.

"THE POPULAR music area has changed in the past few years, mostly since the Beatles," Dicker observed. "Now successful artists do their own material. Nowadays it's rare to record somebody else's work. Today's music has to say something, establish some part of the dialogue or it just won't make it."

Dicker has been a banker since 1955 and a musician all his life. He thrives as a singer and also plays the acoustic and electric guiatr. Four of his 15 songs have been published and recorded.

"I haven't made it yet," Dicker admits, "but that's my life's ambition, the recognition as a musician and to be in Variety. Part of the dream came true when on October 18 his record "Goin Fishin" was reviewed in Variety.

Music is more than an avocation for the young banker.

"There's a real outlet for me," Dicker said. "There's a quality of recreation and deep satisfaction. I can take something out of me and put it in words and that's a form of creativity that's realized when I'm able to play it."

His pubished songs include "Girl in My Life," "Going Fishin," "Movin Too Fast," and "My Song." The lates unpublished song begins:

> The longer I live the less I know about people.
> The longer I live the less I expect from people.
> Sometimes it's hard to know that people still care.
> And when you're low, where's the hand you need so bad?
> From people, people, yeah people.
> But just when I get that feeling
> Somebody proves me wrong.
> Says peace be with you mister,
> I hope your life is long.

UNITED California Bank first became aware of Dicker's strong hobby when he served with United Bay Area Crusade as a "Sponsored Executive." During this period he composed a 50th anniversary United Crusade song. He performed this song at several Crusade rallies along with answering Crusade questions and lending general support to the company campaign chairman.

His family group is known as the Deepstone Drive Family Band. It is a strong family affair that includes Frank, his wife, Donna, who does back-up voice; and son, Frank Jr., on drums. The youngest boy, Jim, is also finding a place in the group with bongos and trumpet.

On several occasions, Frank Jr.'s teacher, Mark White, has sat in.

Dicker has played at several Bay Area clubs and has made many concerts for charitable organizations, as well as several bank functions.

Dicker's banking career is oriented toward operations. He served in several UCB branches in the San Joaquin Valley and in the San Francisco main office. He was appointed a vice president in April 1971, and currently oversees regional operations within a corporate banking group.

"I haven't made it yet," Dicker admits, "but that's my life's ambition, the recognition as a musician and to be in Variety. Part of the dream came true when on October 18 his record "Goin Fishin" was reviewed in Variety.

Music is more than an avocation for the young banker.

"There's a real outlet for me," Dicker said. "There's a quality of recreation and deep satisfaction. I can take something out of me and put it in words and that's a form of creativity that's realized when I'm able to play it."

His pubished songs include "Girl in My Life," "Going Fishin," "Movin Too Fast," and "My Song." The lates unpublished song begins:

The longer I live the less I know about people.
The longer I live the less I expect from people.
Sometimes it's hard to know that people still care.
And when you're low, where's the hand you need so bad?
From people, people, yeah people.
But just when I get that feeling
Somebody proves me wrong.
Says peace be with you mister,
I hope your life is long.

UNITED California Bank first became aware of Dicker's strong hobby when he served with United Bay Area Crusade as a "Sponsored Executive." During this period he composed a 50th anniversary United Crusade song. He performed this song at several Crusade rallies along with answering Crusade questions and lending general support to the company campaign chairman.

His family group is known as the Deepstone Drive Family Band. It is a strong family affair that includes Frank, his wife, Donna, who does back-up voice; and son, Frank Jr., on drums. The youngest boy, Jim, is also finding a place in the group with bongos and trumpet.

On several occasions, Frank Jr.'s teacher, Mark White, has sat in.

Dicker has played at several Bay Area clubs and has made many concerts for charitable organizations, as well as several bank functions.

Dicker's banking career is oriented toward operations. He served in several UCB branches in the San Joaquin Valley and in the San Francisco main office. He was appointed a vice president in April 1971, and currently oversees regional operations within a corporate banking group.

A Treasure Trove For Alemany Library

Dominican College's Archbishop Alemany Library has been enriched with the gift of the Payson J. Treat Collection of 1200 volumes on Japan, China and the Pacific area that doubles the San Rafael college holdings in the area of non-Western civilizations.

The books are from the library of the late Dr. Payson Jackson Treat, professor of history at Stanford University from 1909 to 1945, and were presented to Dominican College by his niece and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Davis of San Rafael.

According to Sister Marguerite Stanka, head librarian, Mrs. Davis wished to place the Treat Collection in Marin's only four-year College so that it would be accessible to history scholars from other areas as well as to Dominican students and the faculty.

THE COLLEGE has long contained books to supplement and serve existing programs in Oriental art, political history and Eastern religions. The expanded library holdings will pave the way for additional courses on non-Western civilizations planned within the next five years, with the possibility of a future major field of study, according to the college administration.

Dr. Treat's library was the result of a lifetime of research into the political, diplomatic and cultural aspects of the Far East with particular emphasis on Japan. He traveled extensively in the Far East and Australasia, and was the author of a number of books on American-Japanese diplomatic relations from 1853 to 1921.

The historian was born in New York in 1879 and died in Palo Alto in 1972. He was awarded his Ph.D. at Stanford in 1910 and remained on the faculty until 1945 with the exception of a few years away as a visiting lecturer at Harvard, University of California at Berkeley; Johns Hopkins and Columbia universities.

DURING HIS lifetime, he was a member of the American Historical Assn., Royal Geographical Society (London) and the Asiatic Society of Japan.

The collection includes a number of bound sets of papers such as the "Transactions of the Asiatic Society of Japan" from 1913 to 1968, covering a wide range of cultural studies by both Japanese and Western Scholars; "The Japan Yearbook" for 1914-1941; and "The China Yearbook," 1912-1939.

ic and political background of World War II, especially the war in the Pacific," Sister Marguerite reported.

"There is some coverage of various aspects of Chinese history and culture," she added, "and a small amount of material dealing with Korea. Finally, there are a few biographies of American public figures and a group of studies relevant to American diplomacy in the Far East and political problems arising during the post World War I period."

Among the latter are two volumes of "Treaties and Agreements With and Concerning China, 1894-1910," edited by John V. A. MacMurray for the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, 1921, and "China's Management of the American Barbarians," edited by Earl Swisher and published for the Far Eastern Assn. in 1951. The last is a translation from the Chinese documentary history of relations with the United States from 1841 to 1861.

ONE OF THE rare books is a limited edition, in French, containing illustrations of art works, titled "Grandeur et Suprematie De Peking" by Alph. Hubrecht, printed in Peking in 1928. There is also a five-volume set of the "History of the Mongols," written in 1876 by Henry H. Howorth; an 1898 edition of "A Chinese Biographical Dictionary" by Herbert A. Giles; and two volumes published in 1863 by Harper and Brothers, written by Sir Rutherford Alcock and entitled "The Capital of the Tycoon, A Narrative of Three Years' Residence in Japan."

Each of the 1,200 volumes from Dr. Treat's library will contain a memorial booksplate bearing the name of the collection and the donors, Mr. and Mrs. Davis.

The books will be integrated into the Alemany Library collection as soon as the cataloguing is completed.

COMPLETED IN 1963, the library is located in the heart of the San Rafael campus and houses about 70,000 volumes and 400 periodicals. Planned for growth, the facility has space for a maximum of 120,000 volumes.

Mannequin Leaguers: Models For A Cause

Fashion Shows By Marin Women Earn Thousands Of Dollars For Charity

By DON KEOWN

Just as the fashions in women's clothing change, so do the techniques of the models who display the new styles.

So notes Mrs. Mylo Peterson, former professional model and current president of the Mannequin League of Marin.

"Today the emphasis in fashion modeling is upon simplicity," she says. "We are even getting away from some of the fancy, flairing turns."

THE MORE masculine appearance of much women's clothing has had its influence upon fashion modeling as well, encouraging a more mannish stance — "the hand in the pocket kind of thing" — that best displays "the very, very popular levi type of garment."

Now, however, the pendulum is starting to swing the other way, and there is a reverse trend in the direction of more feminine, frillier clothing. And this, too, is certain to have its affect upon the mannerisms of the fashion model.

Angela Peterson and the 31 other Marin women —all former professional models — in the Mannequin League of Marin keep in close touch with developments in the fashion and modeling fields. They have to, for their organization, 14 years old, is called upon to model at from 25 to 30 shows a year for charitable causes.

LAST YEAR, for example, the Mannequin League turned over $3,400 to the Marin Community Workshop out of fees for the work of its members at non-charity shows. And the organizations sponsoring charity shows at which Mannequins appeared raised another $15,000 for their own community and philanthropic causes.

This year the Mannequin Leaguers are working for Magnolia Park, a training center for the retarded in the upper Lucas Valley. They hope, and expect, to surpass the 1972 figure of $3,400.

The Mannequin League of Marin was formed in 1959 by a group of former professional models who had left that career to become homemakers or to go into other vocations. They had observed the difficulties encountered by Marin organizations and businesses in arranging for experienced models for the always popular charity style shows.

ADELE DEETHE McCormick took the lead in the organizing of the new group. And Mrs. McCormick was the first chairman.

Charter and planning committee members were Mrs. John Bellamy, Mrs. George Coburn, Mrs. Lewis Denton, Mrs. Corky Jones, Mrs. Luciano Sabella, Mrs. Norman Sanguinetti, Mrs. Les Vogel and Mrs. Eugene Wilson.

Until very recently, when she retired to an inactive status, Gladys Sanguinetti continued to model at Mannequin shows, the last charter member still participating.

THE LEAGUE has a membership ceiling of 35, and is restricted to Marin residents with at least some professional modeling experience. Mrs. Peterson, for instance, did her modeling in San Francisco before going to work for an airline as a secretary while preparing for a career as a stewardess or PICTURES FROM Mannequin League of Marin fashion shows in recent years show, at left, Gladys Sanguinetti, charter member, modeling the popular Capri of that time before masked patients in the tuberculosis ward of San Francisco General Hospital in 1966; Angela Peterson, center, now League president, in a summery semi-mini at Stonestown Shopping Center in 1971, and Eva Bakke, right, displaying a Cossack-type midi at the height of that fashion some three years ago.

MANNEQUIN LEAGUE of Marin members donned ski garb for a National Ski Patrol show in the winter of 1968-69. Ski fashions, they say, have changed much less than most styles, except for perhaps more color.

PHYLLIS DILLER, predictably, couldn't resist a chance to clown with Mannequin League fashion commentator Virginia O'Brien when she joined the former models for a 1969 fashion show in conjunction with the Concours d'Elegance at Peacock Gap Country Club.

hostess. Marriage cut short her plans for hostessing.

She has been with the Mannequins for five years.

"Like so many of the women, I was inactive outside my home while I had and reared a small child," she says. "But as my child grew older, I found I had time for outside activities. And the Mannequin League seemed a natural worthwhile outlet for my energies.

MEMBERSHIP in the League has two requisites: The applicant must reside in Marin County; and she must have had at least some professional modeling experience. Some still work professionally on a part-time basis.

Tryouts for new members are held at least once a year. Mrs. Peterson estimates that at least 50 per cent of the women who apply qualify for membership.

All fees from the womens' appearances go to charity. Each year the League selects a single agency or institution as the recipient of its philanthropy.

A TOTAL OF $15,000 has gone to such varied causes as the Humane Society of Marin, the Juvenile Hall, Marin Society for Crippled Children and Adults, the Muscular Dystrophy association, California Epilepsy Society, St. Vincent's School for Boys, and in 1970, 1971 and 1972, the Marin Community Workshop.

Annual contributions have risen from $350 the initial year to last year's $3,400.

Sponsoring charitable organizations have supported a host of programs and facilities, including the Cancer Society, Louise A. Boyd Museum, the Jolly Rogers, San Francisco Lighthouse for the Blind, Sonoma State Hospital, Children's Home Society, Home of the Good Shepherd, cerebral palsy, Marin Foundation, Marin Aid to the Retarded.

REGULAR workshops, with instruction from personnel of professional modeling schools, keep the Marin women well advised on the latest fashion and modeling trends.

MODEL Eva Bakke of the Mannequin League of Marin adjusts the sleeves of a safari-type outfit during a fashion show at the San Geronimo Country Club.

"We are able to adapt ourselves to the changes," Mrs. Peterson says, "and because of this, the stores have no problems as far as fitting us for clothes and having them presented effectively to the audiences, with the complete look and feeling of today."

The Mannequin Leaguers take special pleasure in demonstrating along with the clothing the proper uses of accessories and cosmetics.

"THE MANNEQUIN League of Marin is not a social group, but a working group that performs a service for its community," Mrs. Peterson stresses.

There are, however, in addition to the shows and workshops, and to regular monthly meetings held at members' homes, other activities.

In June the women hold a luncheon for all members, hosted by the board members who prepare the food.

In October there is an annual ball for which the members make the decorations, working for months. It is a black tie affair that has been staged since 1961.

There are also family-oriented functions such as the picnic trip to Angel Island.

Money from the ball and its companion raffle, and other fund-raising activities such as a junk sale, also go toward the benefit of the League's charity recipient.

But modeling is the name of the game for the Mannequin League women.

THE MEMBERSHIP, ranging in ages from young girls "to those who might be called matrons if they weren't so active, and who are grandmothers," can look back upon a variety of experiences.

They can recall modeling atop freezer cases after dressing behind the vegetable department partition amidst potatoes, bananas and other produce at the P & X Market's grand opening.

They modeled in the window of Argonaut Savings and Loan, and at the busy corner of Kearny and Sutter streets in San Francisco, both times for the Easter Seals cause.

For a P & O fashion show for patients and staff of the tuberculosis ward of San Francisco General Hospital, they modeled Saks Fifth Avenue-designed sequin-trimmed versions of the patients' own gauze masks, and distributed them to the patients.

THEY WERE privileged to model reproductions of the ball gowns of United States First Ladies, through Patricia Nixon, for the Republican Women.

They joined wacky Phyllis Diller for a March of Dimes benefit performance in conjunction with the Concours d' Elegance at San Rafael's Peacock Gap Country Club, and columnist Count Marco for a Northgate Shopping Mall appearance for the muscular dystrophy cause.

For the opening of the big new Sears store at Northgate, the Mannequin League women experimented with freeze modeling — striking held poses in imitation of the actual store mannequins. So realistic was their work that one child attempted to remove a ring from the finger of one of the "frozen" models.

THERE WERE fashion shows at the Marin Art and Garden Fair, in conjunction with house tours such as the Fairhills Tour, and in the rooms of Designer Showcase homes —the last for the benefit of the Volunteer Bureau auxiliary.

The Mannequin League strikes its most active period around Easter time when public clothes-consciousness is at its peak. Summer is relatively quiet.

"WHEN THERE are women only, it is usually the very strict fashion commentary-type thing, keyed just for women, to tell them what the fashionable look is today.

"But when the man attends, he is there to enjoy the whole thing —the fun clothes, the pretty girls, the handsome women. Everyone relaxes, and the whole affair is much lighter."

The group least touched today by fashions and their modeling, Mrs. Peterson admits, are the young girls.

"Most, although far from all, of our spectators are in their 20s, 30s and 40s," she says.

BUT, SHE adds, it is not accurate to say that the very young are not interested in clothing or fashions. "They are very much interested. It is simply a matter of the emphasis they place upon doing their own thing. They like to feel that they are a generation apart."

This very often changes, Mrs. Peterson notes, as the girl nears or enters the 20s and moves into the business world.

"She begins to become fashion-conscious in the more orthodox meaning of that phrase. She realizes that the clothing she wore to school or for leisure won't always do at the office."

MRS. PETERSON is pleased generally with the waning of the "levi syndrome" and the reappearance of frillier things. But she hopes the pendulum won't swing all the way.

"What I like is diversity," she says. "It is fun to have a choice between the pants suit and the frilly dress."

And it is up to the members of the Mannequin League of Marin to learn the special little individual touches that show off each contrasting style to its best advantage.

THAT IS WHAT fashion modeling is all about. It has adjusted to the sack dress — "pretty hysterical when you look back at them" —, to the mini, to the midi, to the flaired slack and to all the other changes and trends that style-setters have decreed and women have more or less accepted. It is continuing to make those adjustments now as fashions come and go in waves. Marin's Mannequin League keeps abreast of such changes.

"We try to be professional about our modeling in every respect, except the pay," says Angela Peterson. "There's a certain pride in being a model. And a responsibility, too — to the stores, to the sponsoring organizations and agencies, and most of all to the women and men who attend. We feel that responsibility and accept it willingly."

And consequently worthwhile organizations such as the Marin Community Workshop and St. Vincent's School for Boys have benefited by thousands of dollars.

"The Mannequin League is not a social group, but a working group that performs a service for its community," emphasizes Angela Peterson, president of the former professional models who average 25 to 30 charity shows every year.

About CARPETS

By Doug Emerson

To obtain utmost satisfaction from carpet and rugs, think over carefully your needs in your own home and make a decorating plan that will help you in buying your carpet wisely. Consider several points in making your plan. In small rooms, wall-to-wall carpet in a solid color, simple design, or texture, give a feeling of spaciousness . . . Patterned tone-on-tone or striking carved effects in carpet look attractive in a large room. If you use a rug, the edges should be not more than eight inches, if possible, from the wall in a small room and twelve inches in a large room.

Style of furniture should also be considered. Your carpet can coordinate all furnishings and reflect the personality of the room. Since the floor is the largest area of color, it may well be the dominant color in the room. Wall, draperies and upholstery may introduce secondary colors to harmonize or contrast pleasingly with the carpet. A sunny room calls for cool color in the carpet, such as green or blue. For a north exposure, or a dark room, you might select gold or beige. Choose the best quality your budget will allow, when you divide the price by the years of service and enjoyment, the annual cost of carpet is surprisingly low.

At RAFAEL FLOORS we offer a complete selection of carpet in both price and style. See us soon for an estimate of what your carpet needs may be.

Where The Dinosaur Walked—

By COLIN MANN

DARWIN, Australia — In the ingredients for a really good fright, the Cretaceous Age had a lot to offer.

The world was shaky, feverish and breaking out in mountains. The sea was wild - it came in and covered a third of Australia and then went out again. Lizards flew. They had 20 foot wingspans. Birds were not much smaller, and they had teeth. Giant reptiles were the lords of the earth.

One day, about 130 million years ago, one of them, a carnivorous dinosaur thought to be the Megalosaurus, took a walk. He was heading south from what is now the port to Broome in the far northwest of Western Australia.

He left 10 clear footprints. They lie in sandstone about 150 feet seawards from the cliffs at Gantheaume Point, near Broome, where a lighthouse stands. There are other prints in the general area, but ill-defined. A group of 10 of them lie 50 feet further out to sea, and a group of three are in the rock at the western end of nearby Riddell Beach.

THE PRINTS ARE three-toed. They immediately suggest that a huge bird made them and, in fact, local Aboriginals associated them with a giant legendary emu.

Two scientists, Drs. E.H. Colbert of the American Museum of Natural History and Columbia University, New York City, and D. Merrilees of the Western Australian Museum, Perth, visited the site and later produced a joint paper entitled "Cretaceous Dinosaur Footprints from Western Australia."

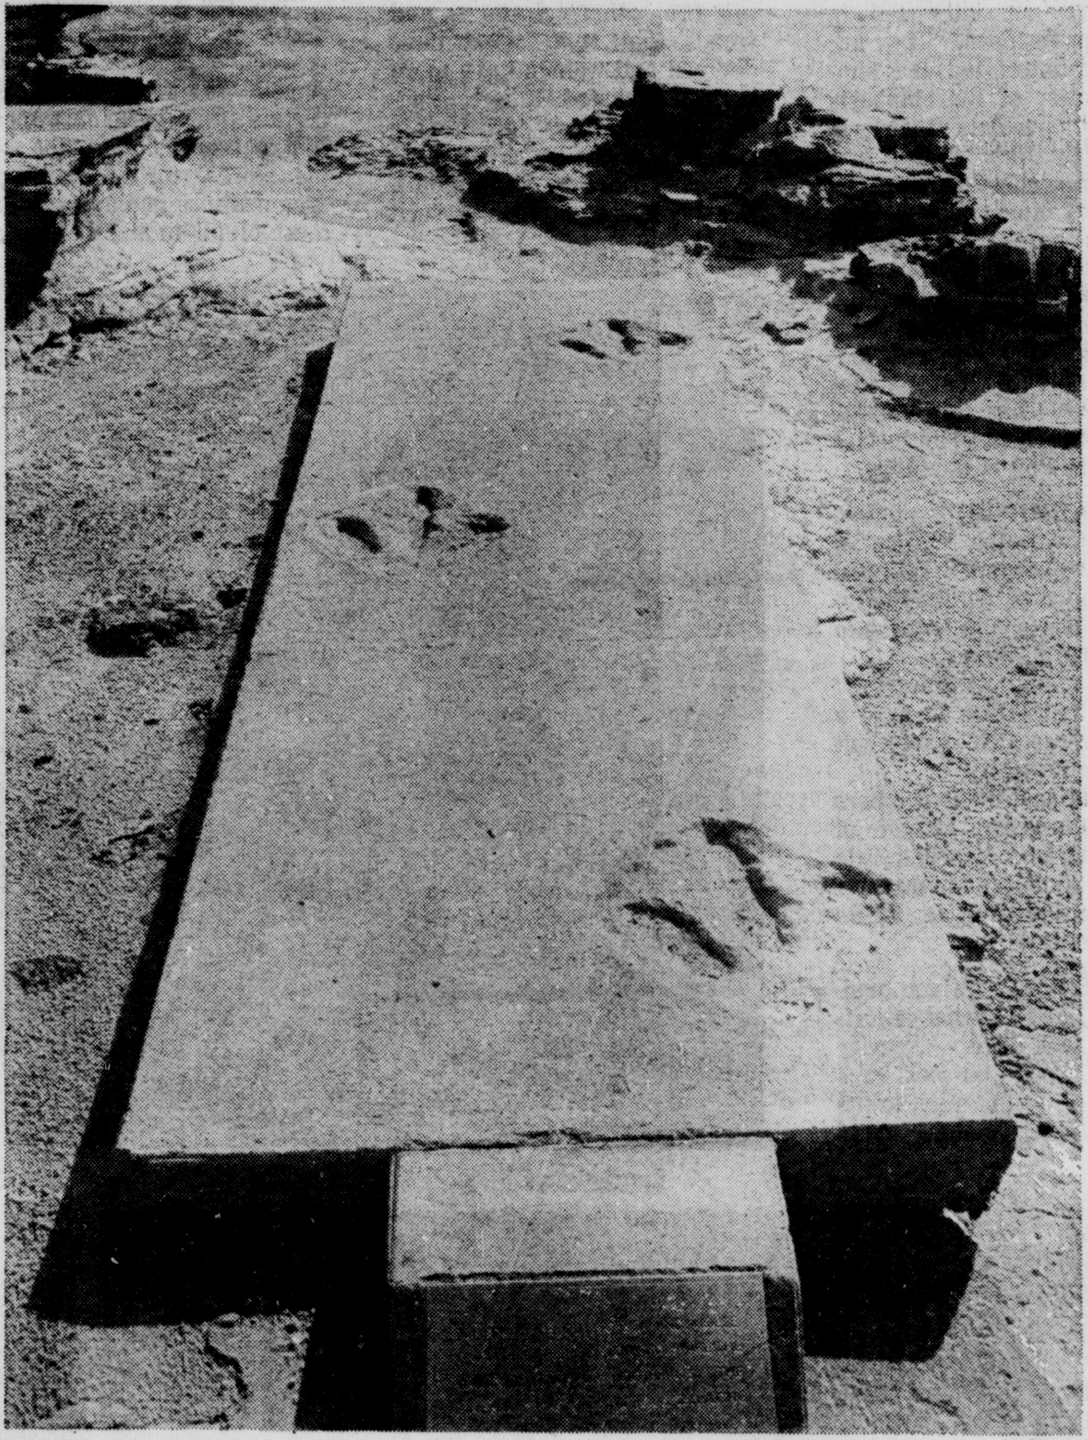
They noted that all three groups of prints are normally covered by the sea and are easily accessible only at rare very low tides.

They found that the creature was a biped, with a stride of about six and a half feet at a normal walk. The three toes were angled at about 35 to 45 degrees. They diagnosed that the trackways were probably those of a megalosaurian carnosaur.

One print was about 13 inches in length, the middle toe being the longest. The print indicated a very bird-like foot with slender toes terminating in sharp claws, and with no webbing between the toes.

THEY FOUND THAT four of the prints form a trackway, similar to a dinosaur's trackway made up of five prints from the Lower Cretaceous Glen Rose Formation in Texas, USA., and now on display in the Brontosaur Hall of the American Museum of Natural History.

On this similarity they wrote: "In the Glen Rose trackway the strides range between 10 feet two inches and 10 feet four inches. The Texas prints are larger than those at Gantheaume Point, so the difference between the stride in the two dinosaurs is not surprising. The ratio of track length to stride is remarkably similar . . . The Gantheaume Point trackways show that the feet were oriented in a fore and aft fashion; that is, the axis of the middle toes is more or less in line with the direction of the stride. The same is true of the Glen Rose trackway . . ."



THIS CEMENT CASTING of three-toed dinosaur tracks near Broome in the northwest corner of Western Australia show the size of the feet and the length of the stride of the huge creature from the Cretaceous Age. The real tracks are nearby, but are covered by the sea except at rare times of extremely low tides. Scientists place the age of the footprints at some 130 million years, and identify the maker tentatively as the carnivorous Megalosaurus.

Summing up, they noted that "close resemblances exist between the impressions made by large predatory dinosaurs that were living on opposite sides of the world during early Cretaceous time.

"Moreover, these resemblances are one indication of the wide distribution of the large therapod dinosaurs, during early Cretaceous history, and by inference of the various gigantic herbivorous dinosaurs upon which they fed."

BROOME'S PRINTS, of course, are a first-rate tourist attraction. But the fact that they are exposed so infrequently at the very lowest tides was, for a time, a great frustration to those trying to build up Broome's tourist traffic.

A further frustration was that this dinosaur had left his best prints on what had become a very large and solid piece of sandstone, almost impossible to remove and lift without damage.

Local physician and Shire President Dr. Peter Reid helped to solve the problem this way:

Three townspeople - a dentist, a builder and himself - waited until dead low tide. The doctor assisted the dentist who scaled down the cliff to the footprints and took what is probably the biggest impressions of his career,

He helped the builder then set the impressions along a neat strip of wet cement he had prepared at the cliff top, at a point easily accessible to tourists. And he saw that a plaque was added to explain the odd footprint impressions.

Now, anyone going to Broome can see how a dinosaur trod, no matter what the tide is doing.

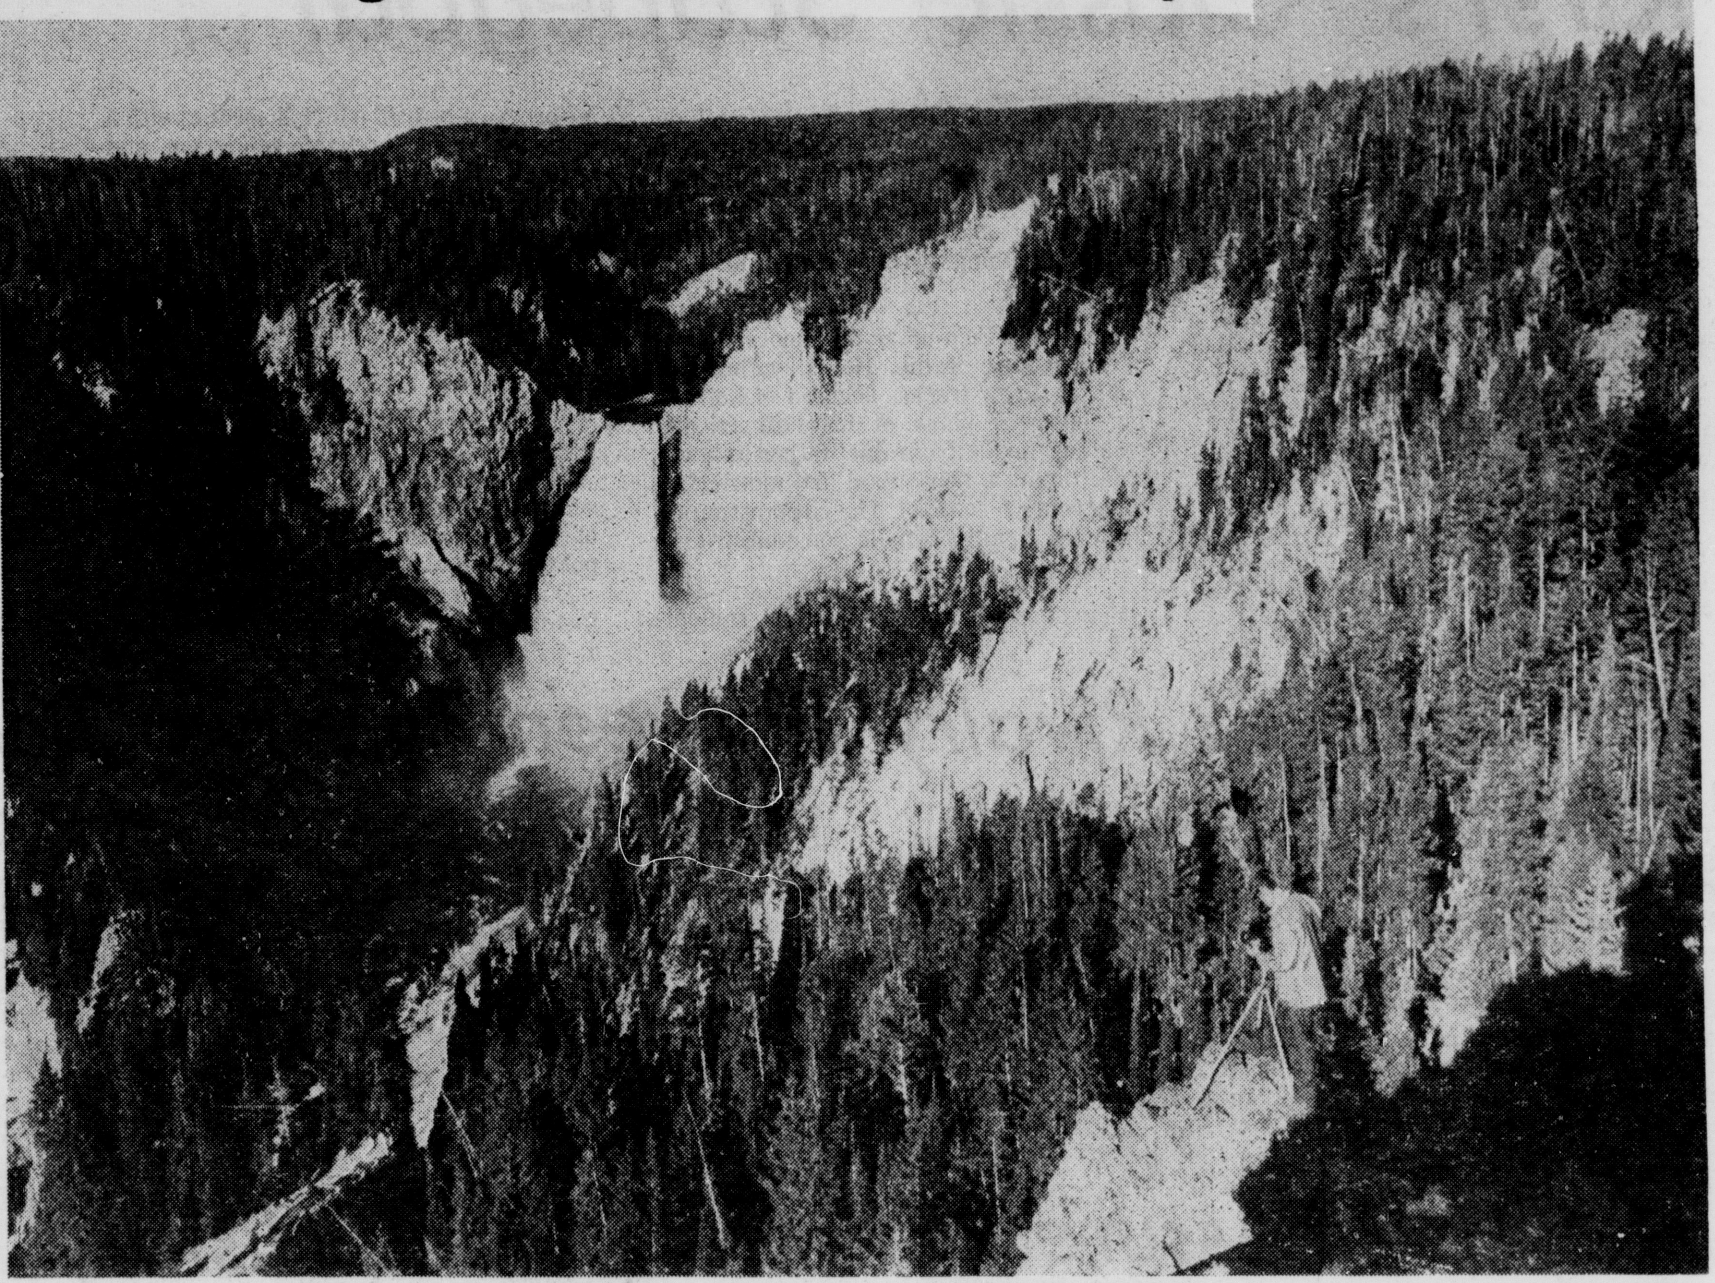
Yellowstone Park Begins Another Century



THE LOWER FALLS plunge 308 feet into the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone, a gaping, yellow-hued chasm of volcanic rock that is just one of the many natural wonders that have attracted visitors from around the world to America's Yellowstone National Park. The waterfall is twice the height of Niagara.

Yellowstone National Park begins its second century beautifully unchanged.

The world's first national park last year celebrated the birth of the national parks idea with a world conference and ceremonies attended by distinguished guests, including the nation's First Lady, Mrs. Richard M. Nixon. With all the celebration's festivities put aside now, Yellowstone Park returns to its quiet and inspiring beauty.

If there is any change in the nation's favorite parks, it can be noticed in the different pattern of visitations.

FOR THE PAST two years, the number of visitors during the traditionally heavy months of June, July and August has increased only slightly while significant increases of spring and fall visitors have occurred. With the popularity of snowmobiling and other winter recreational activities, Yellowstone National Park is truly becoming a year-around vacation destination.

While Yellowstone's magnificent attractions have changed little, the visitors who come to view the famed geysers, the free roaming herds of elk and bison, the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone, have changed.

"They seem to be less hurried, to be spending more time on the trails and nature walks," noted Assistant Supt. Vern Hennesay. With a thousand miles of trails over which to hike or ride horseback there is certainly room for more leisurely visit.

YELLOWSTONE is the largest national park in the United States, encompassing over two million acres. With all its vastness, Yellowstone might actually be thought of as five parks in one.

Within its far-reaching borders is the Old Faithful Area, a wonderland of geysers and bubbling, hissing mudpots and pools. Old Faithful Geyser dominates the area with her predictable eruptions which cast 11,000 gallons of steaming water high into the air. Yet, world famous Old Faithful is only one of some 10,000 thermal attractions in Yellowstone Park.

The Yellowstone Lake area is alpine country with crystal clear waters nestling amid the Rocky Mountain Peaks at over 7,700 feet above sea level. Extraordinary fishing for cutthroat trout await the Yellowstone Lake area visitor. Scenic boat excursions poke among the lake's tree lined shores and islands.

THE GRAND Canyon of the Yellowstone area is dominated by the breathtaking beauty of the 1,200 foot deep canyon. Here, the Lower Falls of the Yellowstone River plunge over 300 feet to the canyon floor, a spectacular, roaring fall twice as high as Niagara Falls.

The historic Roosevelt Lodge and Tower Falls area brings the flavor of the Old West to Yellowstone Park. Trail rides, stagecoach excursions, campfire cookouts and rustic accommodations add the excitement of dude ranch living.

The Mammoth Hot Springs area is rich in park history, for this northwest section of the park was its first gateway. Graceful and multi-colored terraces have been formed over centuries of conflict between limestone and boiling water.

Graphic guide booklets are available at trail heads to describe the phenomena of nature in action before the visitor's eyes. Spectacular trail rides and wilderness pack trips emanate from the Mammoth area.

THERE IS a vacation world for everyone in the world apart of Yellowstone National Park. Fishing, hiking, photography, boating, natural history and unique natural attractions are surrounded by the quiet magnificence of Yellowstone Park.

The five parks in one, the attractions and accomodations for each and the special services available are all described in the free booklet, "Yellowstone Vacation Adventure Guide," available by writing Yellowstone Park Co., Room 903, Yellowstone National Park, Wyo., 82190.

Why They Come Back

Victoria, B.C., is fast getting the reputation as a vacation city where people come first for a holiday, then return to spend their retirement years in congenial surroundings.

What "sells" the senior citizens are: A "Mediterranean"-type climate with over 2,200 hours of sunshine yearly; annual average temperatures of 40 to 60 degrees; little or no snow; annual rainfall below 30 inches; and recreation such as gardening, walking, hobbying, visiting, golfing and swimming.

It is easy to "get acquainted" in Victoria, especially through the friendly, 5,000-member Silver Threads Center which organizes special classes, trips, art activities, and volunteer work to suit all tastes.

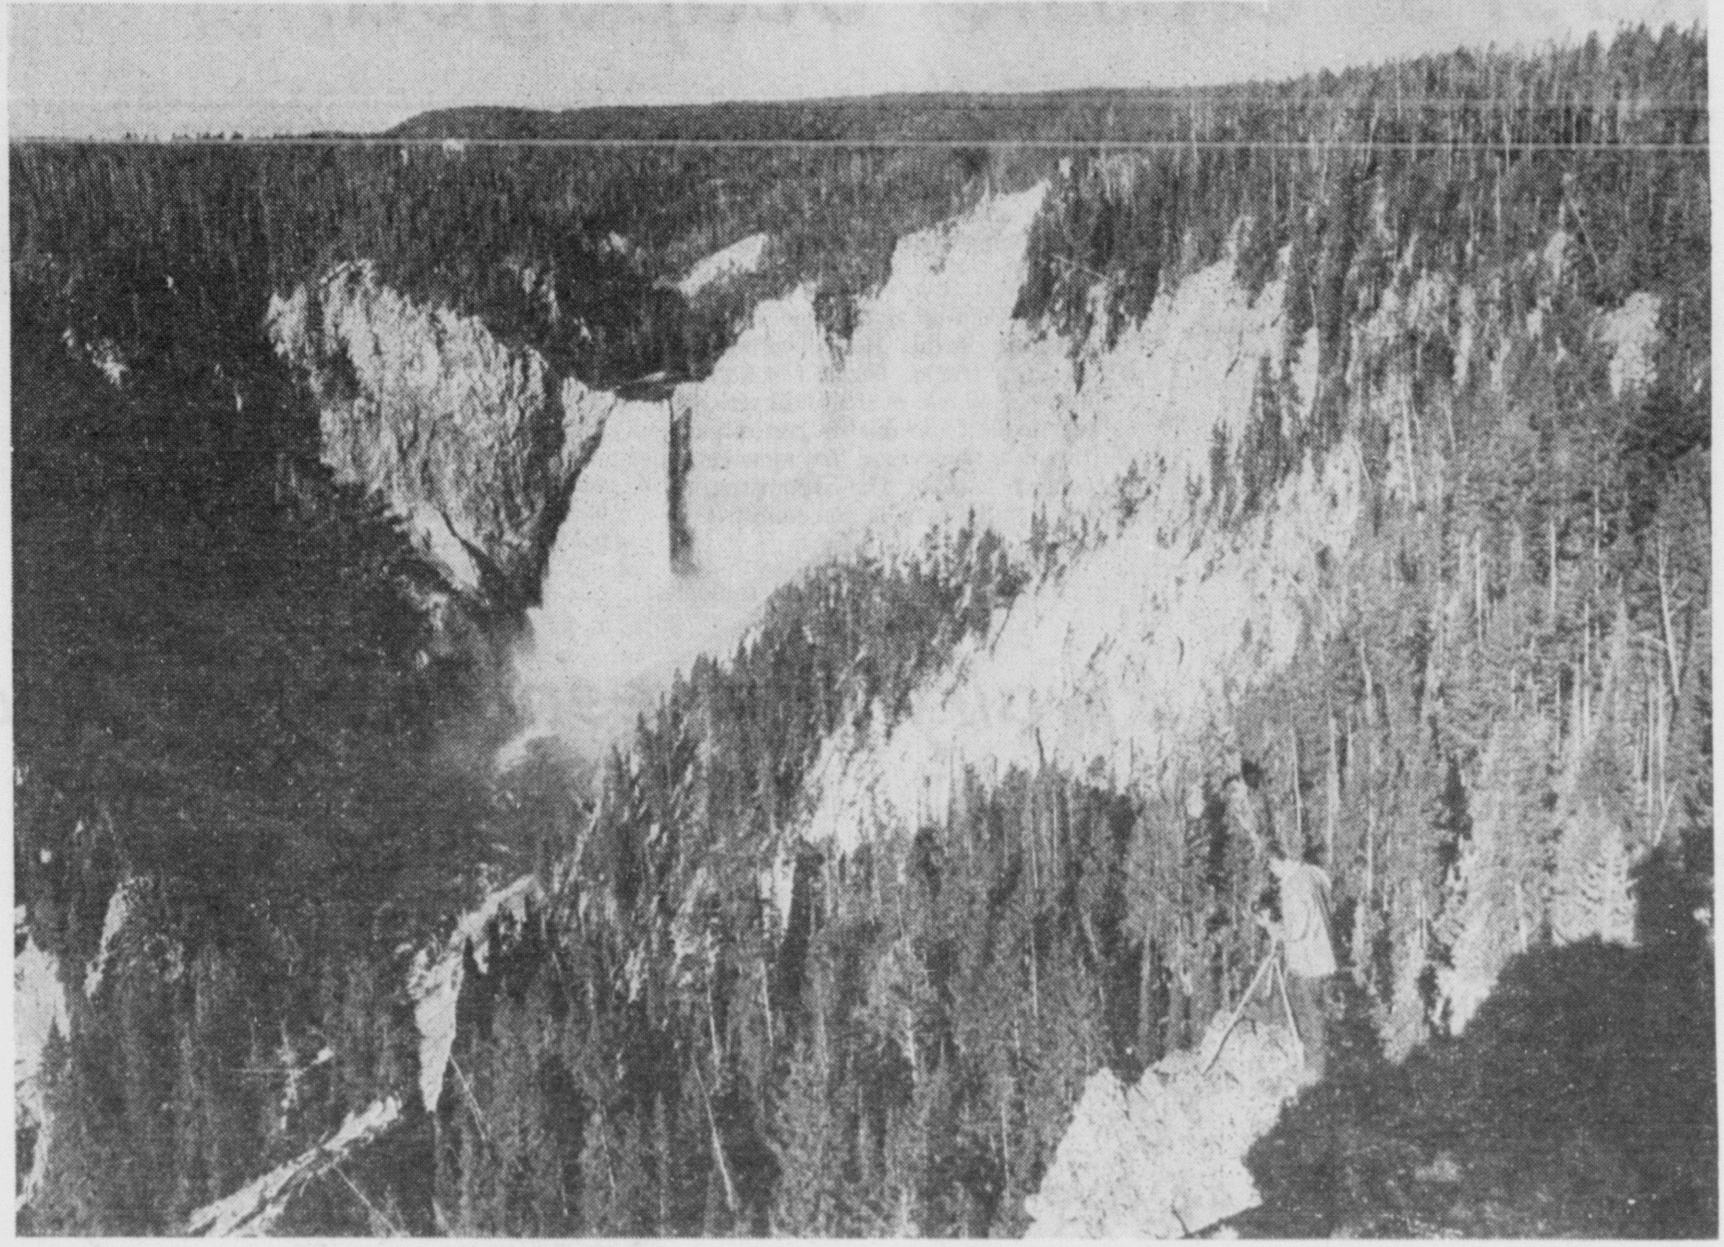
Yellowstone Park Begins Another Century



THE LOWER FALLS plunge 308 feet into the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone, a gaping, yellow-hued chasm of volcanic rock that is just one of the many natural wonders that have attracted visitors from around the world to America's Yellowstone National Park. The waterfall is twice the height of Niagara.

Yellowstone National Park begins its second century beautifully unchanged.

The world's first national park last year celebrated the birth of the national parks idea with a world conference and ceremonies attended by distinguished guests, including the nation's First Lady, Mrs. Richard M. Nixon. With all the celebration's festivities put aside now, Yellowstone Park returns to its quiet and inspiring beauty.

Kirst's Classic Scapegoat

DAMNED TO SUCCESS by Hans Hellmut Kirst; Coward, McCann and Geoghegan, 255 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Alice Dalbey.

Yet master story-teller Hans Hellmut Kirst (author of "The Night of the Generals" and the more recent "Hero in the Tower") makes Fein a sympathetic, believable character — an "everyman" who is a classic scapegoat for the forces of evil.

Fein's habitat is today's Munich — a jungle that has much in common, if we believe Kirst, with Isherwood's Berlin of the 1930s.

The creatures who stalk Fein include his father-in-law, a wealthy contractor almost too evil to be true; his wife and her elegant chum, a couple of bi-sexual jet-setters; and a business rival who balks at nothing — theft, assault or even murder.

Kirst sets Fein up as the innocent prey of a gigantic frame. He is, within the span of a few weeks, accused of betraying business plans of his best friend, stealing funds from his father-in-law's safe, raping a housemaid and murdering an expensive call-girl. The circumstantial evidence against him is substantial and, damning.

Fein has a few friends: a radical attorney, a retired police inspector with a conscience, an unreliable hippy son, and a loving daughter who becomes a sacrificial lamb.

But Fein's most faithful friend and companion is Anton, a handsome mongrel who can smell murder, and murderers, from the confines of a Mercedes 230SL. (Kirst dedicates this book to his dogs, "fellow creatures to whom I am indebted for moments of unadulterated joy.")

The plot, laced with psychological and sexual overtones, is an intricate scheme of business and political corruption, of police manipulations and accusations.

The Complex Rivalry Between The Two Red Giants

THE SINO-SOVIET TERRITORIAL DISPUTE by Tai Sung An; Westminister Press, 254 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Larry Kramer.

One of the predicaments that confronts a reviewer occasionally is how to review an important book of very limited appeal.

There are some books — "Huckleberry Finn," "The Odyssey," "Alice in Wonderland" — that have a demonstrated appeal to large and varied audiences. Such works are easy to review for the readers of a general circulation newspaper.

Other books, like "The Sino-Soviet Territorial Dispute," have great meaning and significance for a comparatively narrow and specialized reading public. They are difficult to review in a way that deceives neither the casual reader nor the well-informed specialist because the quality of the writing and the scholarship are not the determining factors — the interest and background of the reader are the essential elements.

For the person deeply concerned about relationships between Russia, China and the U.S., who is concerned with the history of China and Russia, "The Sino-Soviet Territorial Dispute" is an invaluable brief narrative and interpretation of a complex, little-understood rivalry. Prof. Tai Sung An has gathered together the major documents bearing on centuries-old border disputes between China and Russia and has included a map illustrating the controversial frontier. His documentation is careful and detailed — the work contains 449 footnotes, primarily from English and Chinese sources.

On this scholarly base, Professor An has built a picture of an international rivalry dating back to the 17th Century which has explosive implications as the 20th Century wanes. He analyzes the present and near-future objectives of the Soviet Union and the Chinese, and outlines the pressures and constraints on each.

The Russians want to avoid a war on two fronts so they woo the U.S. and Western Europe while they strengthen their forces in Siberia and Outer Mongolia. The Chinese, always expansive under a strong central regime, want the return of territory taken from them during their years of weakness. At the same time, the Chinese realize that their military technology is inferior to that of the Russians, so they want to buy time while they develop their nuclear capabilities, even if that involves modifying their aggressive posture towards the U.S.

Professor An makes clear that the fraternal ties of a common ideology are threads too weak to withstand the pull of historic national interests.

From his study, the author concludes that nuclear war between China and Russia is unlikely in this decade unless hotheads on one side or the other are carried away by irrational arguments of national honor, misjudge the reactions of the opponent, or if the U.S. attempts to fish in troubled waters too brazenly. These are important, well-reasoned and well-supported hypotheses that may affect the lives of all of us.

Nevertheless, the reader who does not bring a great deal of prior knowledge to "The Sino-Soviet Territorial Dispute" is likely to bog down in the dates and places that enlighten and edify the specialist while confusing and frustrating the ingenue.

There you have the paradox — "The Sino-Soviet Territorial Dispute" is at the same time a deft and clarifying piece of scholarship, or a boring technical monograph, depending on the reader. You choose for yourself.

Huey Has Assured Place In Black History

REVOLUTIONARY SUICIDE by Huey P. Newton; Harcourt Brace Joudnovich, 333 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Francis M. Dozier Jr.

Not very long ago in Oakland, anyone looking for Huey P. Newton had only to turn his head. Newton was everywhere. Lecturing, brawling, observing street procedures of the police, he seemingly wielded a law book or gun with equal profiency.

No more. Freed on a overturned manslaughter charge three years ago, the Black Panther Party co-founder is currently maintaining the lowest of profiles. Esconced in a luxurious apartment overlooking Lake Merritt and, ironically, the Alameda County Courthouse, he seldom appears in public.

The Party, he contends is now well into in "community survival" phase, emphasizing dental and medical clinics and free food programs. Even greater change is seen in a more unexpected area. Five years ago who could have foreseen Bobby Seale, his sad-eyed, venom-spouting lieutenant, running for mayor and forcing the incumbent into a runoff election?

Not that Newton has mellowed completely. He is not above introducing his autobiography with an incendiary manifesto explaining his credo of fighting for freedom and dignity at all costs.

Now in his early 30s, Newton-is today a man who can render such as the erudite William F. Buckley tense and restively defensive during a debate. Yet, incredibly, as a high school senior, he was unable to read or write. Still he yearned to go to college. By poring meticulously over Plato's "Republic" as a primer he taught himself the skills.

But his energies were also channeled into another direction. He engaged in such escapades as wheeling up to a likely-appearing home in the Oakland Hills with a group of friends. After a momentary diversion like mowing the lawn, they would then enter the house and haul away everything worthwhile. Newton also concocted ingenious schemes which bilked downtown merchants. He welcomed criminal charges because he was felt the acts were justified and he was well-versed in law.

This should not surprise. Rather, it merely reflects the reasoning endemic among ghetto youth that is created by the oppressive conditions and nurtured by the example of American acts of imperialism abroad.

The Amboy Dukes Are Back With Us

THE DEVIL'S KNEE by Irving Shulman; Trident Press, 445 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Lee Hopkins.

Back in the early 1950s as a junior high school student in Hollywood, I sat in class surreptitiously reading "The Amboy Dukes" by Irving Shulman behind my algebra book.

His novel about a gang of young hoods was pretty hot stuff in those straight-laced days. And it certainly was more exciting than algebra. Since then, a lot has changed, but not Irving Shulman novels, to judge from his most recent, "The Devil's Knee."

What has happened here is that we have the latest of his tetralogy dealing with the life stories of the same characters whose callow, knee-jerk corruption we first encountered so long ago draped in the pieties of social science. For the Amboy Dukes alumni still pound the pavements after all this time, though only Larry "Tunafish" Tunig and Simon "Bull" Bronstein are still with us. It is a bit like watching old Judy Garland movies: she never really got older or grew up; she just got bigger.

Larry is now an aging mobster, and Simon has become a religious nut prone to maniacal violence, strong figures Shulman has tried to etch in acid. Yet they still seem flaccid and lack real fictive authority because they are not hammers but anvils. They react, but cannot initiate; their pose is the stale inertia of defeat which masks itself as stoicism.

This could be an interesting theme, yet Shulman himself doesn't perceive such a crucial distinction any more than his characters have the capacity for self knowledge. They are taffy tough guys making muscles at each other, poor counterfeit Edward G. Robinsons.

Between reprises of the old teen-age days, and set pieces of Mexican travelogue during our heroe's exile, we meet the former hustler Joyce, now widow of a big mob boss and naturaly unchanged in flawless body except for puffy eyes. Her first person recollections chronicle the decline of organized vice in a permissive age, and also serve to introduce her daughter Veronica. Verney, as the girl is known to her intimates, of whom there must be a considerable number as she has two abortions by age 15, goes on (maybe predictably) to become a rock star.

Still, Shulman tells a well-paced story. He entertains and has an ear for dialogue. Someday the Amboy Dukes may be resurrected on a TV series, more sweaty and less socially acceptable than Galsworthy's Forsyte clan, yet surely as indestructable and tedious.

"The only 'solution' to government lying is for government to tell the truth. But given the combination of factors that has led to government deception in America on such an unprecedented scale, merely wishing it to go away will not help very much." — David Wise in "The Politics of Lying."

The Roots Of Distrust

By DON KEOWN

THE POLITICS OF LYING by David Wise; Random House, 415 pages, $8.95.

There was a time when a man accepted the foreign affairs pronouncements of his own country's government as gospel, at the same time discounting all others as propaganda.

And when a man had total belief in the domestic ideals and activities of his own political party, while distrusting automatically the opposition.

Those naive days are gone forever in America, washed away finally by the corruption and stupidity of Watergate. But the erosion of confidence, particularly in the executive branch of our federal government, had begun long before then.

David Wise, former chief of the Washington bureau of the now defunct New York Herald Tribune, co-author of "The U-2 Affair" and "The Invisible Government," traces this disintegration of belief and poise in his new and important book, "The Politics of Lying."

The title is not as broad as it might have been, for Wise's book is as much or more concerned with government secrecy as it is with falsehoods.

The U.S. government has always lied to and withheld information from the people it supposedly serves, Wise points out. Indeed, all governments have.

But most Americans maintained an exploitable faith in their government and in the party of their choice through the first half of the 20th Century. Ironically, it was a much revered President, Dwight D. Eisenhower, who told the "whopper" that was to create the first real breach in the wall of public confidence. Many Americans first became aware their leaders could not be trusted to tell the truth when Eisenhower lied about the U-2 overflight by Francis Powers, and became enmeshed in those fabrications.

Since then, many Americans have been appalled by a growing proclivity of succeeding administrations for dealing loosely with the truth. And at the same time, they have become aware of the vast amount of information withheld from them by bureaucrats, thwarting the development of the informed citizenry necessary to make a democracy function.

The issue of government lying came to the forefront with the Vietnam War that triggered an epidemic of deception lasting through several administrations, directed not only at the public generally, but at the press, and at the legislative branch of the government itself. The Watergate disgrace represents a continuation of the trend, and efforts to separate it from government and from mainstream American politics ignore the record and the roots.

At the same time, the Pentagon Papers controversy has spotlighted the issue of needless, excessive and often harmful government secrecy.

"The government lies to manipulate public opinion, to generate public support for its policies, and to silence its critics," Wise tells us. "Ultimately, it lies to stay in power."

And he adds: "To attempt to describe in detail all of the untruths told by the government over the past four administrations would require more than one volume; Vietnam alone could run to several." So Wise contents himself with a resume that points out the typical and the worst, with the Tonkin Gulf incident as restructured by the Johnson administration accorded top "honors" as "the most crucial and disgraceful episode in modern history of government lying."

Wise describes in detail the weird, senseless, "Kafkaesque" system of government classification for secrecy — a system that exists "not so much to protect national security as to provide a flexible tool of power for political leaders."

While Daniel Ellsberg was put on trial for leaking secret documents, former President Lyndon B. Johnson used classified papers freely in his book, in defiance of the new administration's refusal to declassify.

Government information policies and procedures are at once both frightening and hilarious, Wise finds.

Due notice is taken of the Nixon administration's efforts to intimidate the press. Quite accurately, Wise notes that Richard Nixon had assembled an arrogant team of bureaucrats and advisers lacking in the vital sense that government belongs, not to them, but to the people. "The Nixon administration attacks on the press have been politically motivated," he states flatly. "They are designed . . . to destroy the credibility of the news media, build political support, and influence the content of the news, especially . . . radio and television."

And, if writing now, Wise might add: "And they have backfired disastrously."

"Government deception, supported by a pervasive system of official secrecy and an enormous public relations machine, has reaped a harvest of massive public distrust," Wise concludes, and "has shattered the bond of confidence between the government and the people. It has diminished our confidence in ourselves and in our ability as a people to overcome the problems that confront us."

And then: "Lying and secrecy have no place in a democracy . . . For democracy to work, the governed must know to what they are consenting. If they are misled, if the truth is concealed from them by the same government that demands their sons, their loyalty and their treasure, then the American experiment is doomed to end in repression and failure."

David Wise's exposition is a thoughtful if sometimes angry one, well researched, with copious footnotes and chapter notes that — and this is unusual — are well worth the reading in themselves.

Wise has sounded this warning: "An American President . . . can no longer assume a majority of the people will believe him . . ." Such skepticism is not without cause, as Wise demonstrates, and as events since the writer completed his manuscript even more convincingly underscore. Nor is the problem limited to lying and secrecy. There's also the matter of money — big money — and its evil and greedy influence upon government.

There may lie the greatest threat of all. And the subject for another David Wise book.

Beyond debate, Ross Macdonald (Kenneth Millar) is champion among America's crime novelists. Even his less successful efforts, such as "Sleeping Beauty," are highly entertaining. And such is his reputation now that his novels have built-in best-seller status.

For his newest Lew Archer yarn, Macdonald borrows, from personal experience, the oil spill that soiled the coastline of his home town of Santa Barbara. He moves the disaster south to the Los Angeles area, and zooms in on the family whose offshore drilling platform caused the crisis. There's a present-day kidnaping, staged or real, and there are dark secrets in the family's past into which "private eye" Archer must probe when he accepts the assignment to find the missing girl.

ROSS MACDONALD
He's the champion

Macdonald has the gift to get by with almost outrageously complicated and coincidental relationships that would be rejected in another writer. In "Sleeping Beauty" he almost carries this too far. So involved is the plot that his usual sharp social bite is dulled. Still, the pace is fast, the characters colorful yet human, if sometimes despeciable, and the setting real.

"The only 'solution' to government lying is for government to tell the truth. But given the combination of factors that has led to government deception in America on such an unprecedented scale, merely wishing it to go away will not help very much." — David Wise in "The Politics of Lying."

The Roots Of Distrust

THE POLITICS OF LYING by David Wise; Random House, 415 pages, $8.95.

There was a time when a man accepted the foreign affairs pronouncements of his own country's government as gospel, at the same time discounting all others as propaganda.

And when a man had total belief in the domestic ideals and activities of his own political party, while distrusting automatically the opposition.

Those naive days are gone forever in America, washed away finally by the corruption and stupidity of Watergate. But the erosion of confidence, particularly in the executive branch of our federal government, had begun long before then.

David Wise, former chief of the Washington bureau of the now defunct New York Herald Tribune, co-author of "The U-2 Affair" and "The Invisible Government," traces this disintegration of belief and poise in his new and important book, "The Politics of Lying."

The title is not as broad as it might have been, for Wise's book is as much or more concerned with government secrecy as it is with falsehoods.

The U.S. government has always lied to and withheld information from the people it supposedly serves, Wise points out. Indeed, all governments have.

But most Americans maintained an exploitable faith in their government and in the party of their choice through the first half of the 20th Century. Ironically, it was a much revered President, Dwight D. Eisenhower, who told the "whopper" that was to create the first real breach in the wall of public confidence. Many Americans first became aware their leaders could not be trusted to tell the truth when Eisenhower lied about the U-2 overflight by Francis Powers, and became enmeshed in those fabrications.

Since then, many Americans have been appalled by a growing proclivity of succeeding administrations for dealing loosely with the truth. And at the same time, they have become aware of the vast amount of information withheld from them by bureaucrats, thwarting the development of the informed citizenry necessary to make a democracy function.

The issue of government lying came to the forefront with the Vietnam War that triggered an epidemic of deception lasting through several administrations, directed not only at the public generally, but at the press, and at the legislative branch of the government itself. The Watergate disgrace represents a continuation of the trend, and efforts to separate it from government and from mainstream American politics ignore the record and the roots.

At the same time, the Pentagon Papers controversy has spotlighted the issue of needless, excessive and often harmful government secrecy.

"The government lies to manipulate public opinion, to generate public support for its policies, and to silence its critics," Wise tells us. "Ultimately, it lies to stay in power."

And he adds: "To attempt to describe in detail all of the untruths told by the government over the past four administrations would require more than one volume; Vietnam alone could run to several." So Wise contents himself with a resume that points out the typical and the worst, with the Tonkin Gulf incident as restructured by the Johnson administration accorded top "honors" as "the most crucial and disgraceful episode in modern history of government lying."

PEACE

Flash! You're there.
The memory lingers.
The war is won,
Or lost.

What happens now?
Am I the same?
It's been a long time.

The things can be repaired,
But so much time has been lost.
Your memories are beautiful

I can see you now.
Yes, I still love you.
I'm coming home.

NOVATO — JAMES MYERS

SPEAK OUT FREELY

There are those who speak
Out freely under any kind
Of circumstances, while others
Hesitate to allow circumstances
To speak the hidden truths,
Which only God knows.

PEACE

Flash! You're there.
The memory lingers.
The war is won,
Or lost.

What happens now?
Am I the same?
It's been a long time.

The things can be repaired,
But so much time has been lost.
Your memories are beautiful

I can see you now.
Yes, I still love you.
I'm coming home.

NOVATO JAMES MYERS

SPEAK OUT FREELY

There are those who speak
Out freely under any kind
Of circumstances, while others
Hesitate to allow circumstances
To speak the hidden truths,
Which only God knows.

How About A Lawn Of Beautiful Dichondra?

A new dichondra lawn in your plans?

You'll be choosing one of the most popular of all lawns — a lawn that offers both utility and beauty. But before you rush into seeding, you can save many hours of future work by putting special effort into laying the proper groundwork for that dichondra lawn.

This preparation includes spading or rototilling a seedbed to a depth of at least six inches — deeper is even better —, adding weed-free organic matter if the soil is heavy or tends to compact, and raking the seedbed until it is smooth and free of low spots where water could puddle. The ground should be gently sloped away from the house for drainage purposes.

And, this is the time to pay particular attention to controlling weeds — before they gain a toe-hold that could turn into a strangle hold on your lawn. Fumignats or pre-emergent herbicides, carefully chosen, can provide this pre-plant weed control.

Fumigants, available in many different forms, kill existing weeds and unsprouted weed seeds. They are very effective but can be dangerous to apply because of their fumes and can damage or kill nearby trees, shrubs or flowers if not used with extreme care. Often it's best to have fumignats applied by professionals, unless you are experienced at this kind of thing.

The pre-emergent herbicides also can do an effective job, but normally are not as thorough as the fumigants. However, the preemergents usually are safer and easier to use.

Diphenamid is one of the most commonly-used pre-emergent weed killers for dichondra lawns. It is sold under such brand names as "Enide" or "Dymid" and is included in many dichondra combination weed and feed products. When applied at the correct rate, diphenamid will kill most annual grasses and many other weeds as they sprout, without hurting the sprouting dichondra.

Follow-up application of herbicides will be needed. But a good share of the weeds can be eliminated before your dichondra lawn becomes established . . . and this will save considerable work later on.

The "ounce of prevention's worth a pound of cure" saying fits perfectly when it comes to preparing for a dichondra lawn.

Alcoa® Country Oak Siding will give your home the warmth and beauty of wood. And just as important, it will look new and fresh for years with little maintenance.

Country Oak Siding has an attractive woodgrain finish. And the pattern is completely random for that natural look. It's available in five decorator-chosen colors to complement any home—White, Fern Green, Colonial Blue, Sierra Tan and Sandtone.

We cover Country Oak Siding with a double coating of new, extremely tough and chemically resistant paint that lasts longer with less chalking and fading. It's a baked-on finish that won't peel, crack or blister. And it's put on Alcoa's new Super 40 Alloy, the strongest, most rigid aluminum siding on the market. It is easily applied over stucco.

Your home can be a showplace. Get the facts on Country Oak today.

Heavy On The Bloom

There is nothing shy about hydrangeas. They are, beyond a doubt, the boldest, showiest, and heaviest bloomers.

This wasn't always the case.

Longtime gardeners may remember when hydrangeas were a rangy sort, and less interesting shrubs. Their blooms had size, but lacked oomph and were less than spectacular. Luckily, the French supplied the oomph.

It was in France, decades ago, that these color-bearers started through the hybridizing mill from which new spectacular varieties have been emerging ever since. Today's hydrangea is more compact, a better mixer in the garden and as colorful as any landscape shrub could be.

PLANTED NOW, the hydrangea can be relied upon for summer color in years to come. It should be given partial shade at least, the amount increasing as you garden away from the coast.

Hydrangeas like plenty of summer water and a rich, well-drained soil This can be achieved by incorporating organic materials —peat moss, leafmold, wood bark products, etc. — in the soil as you plant the shrubs. Nurseries have special ready-to-use planter mixes.

Blue-flowered Hydrangeas, especially favored by many, are the result of acid soils, so consider this when planting.

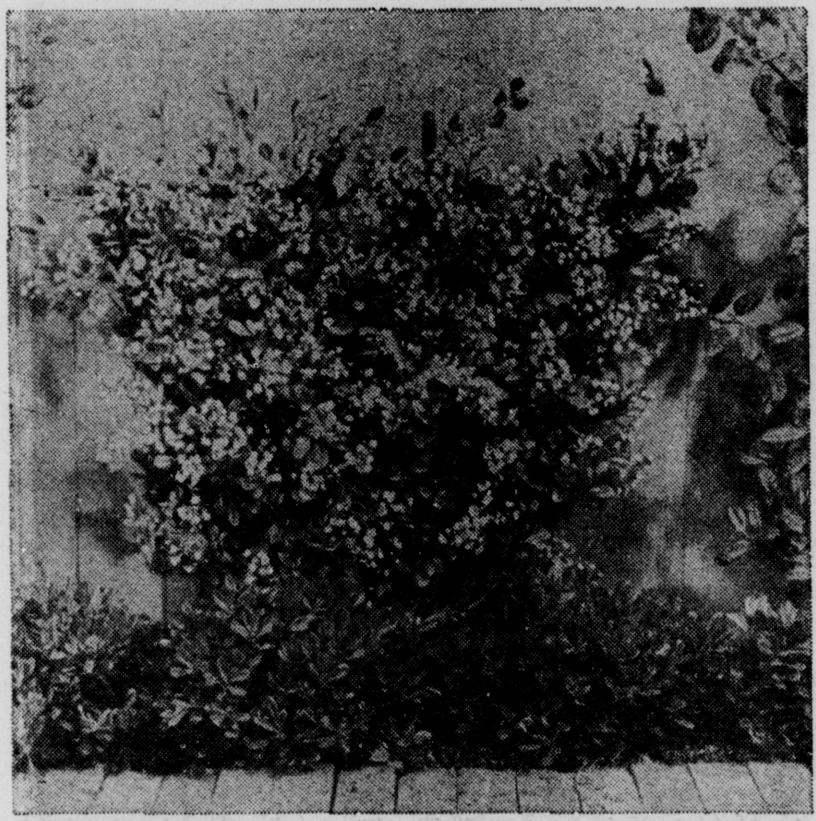
THE LIST OF named varieties is long. There are shades of pink suggestions of reds, orchids and blue — as well as white hydrangeas.

Best bet is to visit your local nursery and choose a favorite by sight. Many are to be found in bloom now — or will be in flower in the coming weeks — ready to liven-up your garden from the outset.

Some gardeners are inclined to shear hydrangeas back each year as a hedge. The result is a tight mass of foliage and a host of smaller flowers.

A recommended practice would be to head back the canes to different lengths during each dormant season and remove some canes entirely, to open-up the shrubs. Blooms will be larger and the growth habit much more interesting.

Hydrangeas, however, can adapt to just about any kind of pruning treatment — even no pruning. Then they soon become a hedge.



SPRINGTIME IS an aptly-named member of the Raphliolepsis family that does handsomely as an espalier, valuable in limited space such as a narrow planter set against a wall. There is year-around beauty, but it is at its best in spring with a profusion of pink bloom.

(California Assn. of Nurserymen photo)

Difficult To Pronounce, But Very Easy To Like

One of the most enthusiastically endorsed, and planted, evergreen shrubs in the Golden State has the unlikely name of Raphiolepis.

Like many other five syllable plant names, its pronunciation varies a great deal (the accent should properly be placed on the third syllable, "ol"). But, there is no doubt about the dependable beauty Raphiolepis brings to our gardens.

The several different Raphiolepis varieties also form a versatile group of landscape shurbs. There are such moderate growers as pink Springtime and Coates' Crimson — excellent go-togethers with other shrubs in the foundation planting. The leathery, textured foliage is distinctive and during the cool season, the weeks and weeks of spectacular bloom is frosting on the cake.

Ballerina and Enchantreress, to name but two of the compact growers, provide clusters of flowers from late winter into early summer. The dwarf habit and luxuriant green foliage is showcased to perfection in border situation and foreground plantings.

Nurseries have Paphiolepis for planting now. Shopping will turn up varieties in rose, pink and reddish shades — and even white.

FASCINATION, a relative newcomer, boasts clusters of late spring flowers with deep rose petals surrounding a white center. Its compact growth forms small mounds of texture-rich dark green foliage.

In addition to the indescribable dimension the foliage adds to the surroundings, the floral beauty of Raphiolepis, and the many uses of the different varieties, there is even more versatility offered by these hardy performers. Raphiolepis will thrive in partial shade, though it is essentially a sun-loving group of plants. This solves the traditional problem of securing a flowering choice for difficult, semi-shaded garden spots, suggests the California Assn. of Nurserymen.

Nurseries often have certain Raphiolepis shaped into patio trees, and as pre-started espaliers on redwood trellises. This means the popular plants can be used in limited space — against a wall or fence, in a narrow planting area.

Lawns Have Their Organic Yield Too

Vegetation growing on an acre of land creates approximately three tons of tissue each year. This contains around 140 pounds of mineral nutrients, the equivalent of one or two lawn feedings.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

✓There is still time to plant tomato plants and seeds of such hot weather vegetables as corn, beans, cucumbers and summer-type squash.

✓If you would grow your own chrysanthemums, for fall color, hurry to select and plant the small, rooted cuttings which are available in nurseries this month. The color choices, and myriad flower forms, are super.

✓Mulch now around your shrubs and plants, especially the water-lovers, to make summer irrigating more economical and more effective.

✓Remove faded flower heads on rhododendrons. Simply snap them off at the stalk.

✓Lift and divide tall Bearded Iris when they have gone out of bloom. They should be divided every three or four years and reset in a dry, sunny location.

Keep Right On With Your Plantings Of The Glads

This is no time to stop. By continuing to plant gladiolus this monty, you can enjoy the magnificent spikes of color into late summer.

Californians are blessed by favorable weather that allows gardeners to start planting Gladiolus bulbs (corms) about Jan. 1, and continue planting into the warm season — months later. By planting Gladiolus every few weeks, the gardener assures himself a succession of color — and flowers to cut for indoor arrangements.

Most nurseries will still have a good selection of Glads this month.

Gladiolus are true ego builders, they are so easy to grow; and for color and variety, these heavy-flowering favorites are hard to beat. Hurry to shop for Gladiolus. You'll be glad you did when you see the rainbow colors beautifying the summer garden.

Put A Rug On The Floor—With Paint

By VIVIAN BROWN

Paint a rug on your den or foyer floor.

The idea is not unique — decorators do it all the time. But you don't want to experiment with good floors.

The porch floor is ideal. Usually it is old. A foyer is another area where you might risk such artistry. But if you decide to go into the living area of the home to paint floors, be sure you are up to it emotionally and artistically.

IN ADDITION to being conversational pieces perhaps while rugs are being cleaned and stored, painted rugs may be cared for easily — just mop up footprints.

Decorators usually make a design on paper, gradually transferring the pattern to the floor. It works well if you don't become too ambitious.

One decorator likes a simple big circle with dots, squares and smaller circles within the area. But another decorator likes involved all-over-the-floor designs that becomes a big project with plumb lines, cord, chalk and so on.

Better to keep it simple, if one is an amateur. And the design should be inspired by the place where it will go.

FLOOR PAINTING isn't a job to be sluffed off. Paint experts advise using good bristle brushes in sizes needed for the job and they suggest letting one color dry for 24 hours before another is added. And if you use a stencil, you must be especially wary. It might smear.

Freehand is likely to be easier and more pleasing to the eye because of its randomness. The design need not be perfect.

If you actually want a rug look with nappiness and all that, the paint people suggest stippling after the background color is painted. Dip a real sponge into a shade of paint slightly darker than the background color and after squeezing it dry, lightly pat the sponge onto the area of the same basic color.

In fact it is suggested that several shades of paint lighter and darker than the background may be used to give the rug an even nappier appearance.

AND IF YOU want to carry the real-rug look even further, put a fringe around the design by using a thin brush and applying one fine stroke at a time. (A good back pays off in such a project.) Depth might be given to the rug by adding faded yellow and black strokes to give the illusion of deep fringe, they explain.

Decorators usually avoid the real rug look, preferring to use a pretty design that takes the place of a rug. But they often use designs even when they use rugs.

That conservative design was chosen because that second-floor porch, which opened off a bedroom, was decorated with wrought iron furnishings that blended extremely well with it.

On a bright orange floor, one might paint daisies or large red poppy-like flowers. Any flower can be stylized to provide a pretty effect. Or you might use a forsythia or bridal wreath bush as a pattern — use great swirls of limbs or one limb beladened with the little yellow or white flowers which might be easily dabbed on with a sponge.

A FLORAL THEME may be used in a foyer of an apartment or house. A rose forms the entranceway of one such place with its wide curving stem with green leaves leading to the dining and living areas.

Other foyer ideas include: on a white floor a large (six-foot diameter) black circular stripe, two inches wide, with radiating strokes from center to perimeter . . . a large black square in the middle of a red-painted floor . . . a handsome large (24 inch) checkboard design in blue and white covering the entire foyer floor.

This latter design is often used in living rooms by decorators. Sometimes it is put on very good floors, but more often it is used as a cover-up of old floors.

The rug or other design should be thoroughly dry before you walk on it, and paint experts advise using top coats over the design and applying many coats of varnish to further its life. If the basic floor cover is unusual — dark brown, black, white or one of the other modern color paints or stains — check with the person who refinished the floors to see whether varnish is the proper finish.

Put Doors To Work In Your House

Want to shut the door on the rising costs of major home renovation? Then use doors to do it, substituting them for the much higher-cost installation of walls or partitions.

That's the suggestion of Barry Muir, architectural consultant for Scovill's Caradco wood window and door division.

Advises Muir:

You have an L-shaped living-dining area, but would prefer to have a separate dining room. Simple: Put up a "wall" of interior doors where the dining area meets the living room.

Your street door opens directly into the living room, but you don't care for this arrangement. One solution: Create a foyer effect using a pair of interior doors and sidelights.

Space or lack of it, is an annoying problem in your kitchen, especially for the storage of little items such as herbs and spices. What to do? Cut an opening in the wall between the studs. Install stud-width shelves and cover the opening with a trim paneled interior door.

A window in your living room has an unsightly view. But you don't want to seal it off permanently, because there are times when you need the light. One solution: Use a pair of interior doors as "fine furniture" window covers.

A hinged door that swings causes a cramped condition in a bathroom-dressing room. One way to cope: Build a pocket for a sliding, interior door, thus eliminating the swing.

THE PATIO BEYOND the glass doors extends the breakfast nook and assures seclusion for indoor or al fresco meals, as the weather permits or the mood strikes. A jogged screen of one-by-two-inch cedar slats blocks the frontyard exposure effectively. Slant-back cedar benches around the center table provide an inviting reading and relaxing area in the outdoor living space.

Starting The Day Off Right, By Breakfasting Informally

It's a well-known fact that good breakfasts make better days. It's also true that an old-fashioned breakfast room can be a great place to start each day.

With plenty of light, a cheerful outlook and space for the whole family to sit down together, you'll feel the difference, whether you wake brisk and chipper or rely on steam from that first cup of coffee to unseal your eyelids.

WHEN ONE family with four teen-agers and a communal breakfast habit outgrew the kitchen nook and moved to the formal dining room for daily meals, all missed the casual note in the morning ritual.

In their case the family eating area was restored when a wall adjoining the small side entry came out and that space was joined with the breakfast nook.

Another wall fell, visually, when sliding glass doors and a screened patio were added to give the new room delightful outdoor dimension.

FENCING OF one-by-two inch western cedar slats was jogged around three sides of the patio, creating a secluded setting for indoor or alfresco meals while blocking front yard exposure.

Comfortable slant-back benches around a permanent center table invite use. Seats are two-by-four-inch cedar laid flat, backs are two-by-fours and two-by-eights bolted to the screen through wood triangles (cut from two-by-eights), which rest on stringers.

The small patio is a constant pleasure for reasons as simple as ABC — accessibility, built-ins and complete privacy.

It's just a step to relax over dessert on the terrace — or brunch on a sunny Sunday — with seasonal choices in container plantings to brighten the view. All of this in the kind of relaxing atmosphere that can make breakfast one of the high-points of the day.

Window Seat Will Serve Two Purposes

A storage window seat added in a youngster's room provides a well-lighted place to sit and read, or just daydream as many do.

A simple box framing of two-by-four-inch western wood 18 inches deep will hold several drawers or a large cabinet for storage below the seat.

It is just the place for him to keep toys, sports gear or his hobby supplies.

Extending the unit a foot on each side of the window allows addition of bookshelves on each side, reaching from seat to ceiling. Suggested woods for this purpose are western fir, pine or hemlock.

Put A Rug On The Floor—With Paint

By VIVIAN BROWN

Paint a rug on your den or foyer floor.

The idea is not unique — decorators do it all the time. But you don't want to experiment with good floors.

The porch floor is ideal. Usually it is old. A foyer is another area where you might risk such artistry. But if you decide to go into the living area of the home to paint floors, be sure you are up to it emotionally and artistically.

IN ADDITION to being conversational pieces perhaps while rugs are being cleaned and stored, painted rugs may be cared for easily — just mop up footprints.

Decorators usually make a design on paper, gradually transferring the pattern to the floor. It works well if you don't become too ambitious.

One decorator likes a simple big circle with dots, squares and smaller circles within the area. But another decorator likes involved all-over-the-floor designs that becomes a big project with plumb lines, cord, chalk and so on.

Better to keep it simple, if one is an amateur. And the design should be inspired by the place where it will go.

FLOOR PAINTING isn't a job to be sluffed off. Paint experts advise using good bristle brushes in sizes needed for the job and they suggest letting one color dry for 24 hours before another is added. And if you use a stencil, you must be especially wary. It might smear.

Freehand is likely to be easier and more pleasing to the eye because of its randomness. The design need not be perfect.

Hacksaw Still A Must In Any Shop

By ANDY LANG

Any home handyman knows that no matter how many power tools he has in his workshop, there are certain basic hand tools which must always be kept on hand.

One of these is the hacksaw, used principally for cutting metal. Although in many cases it may not be used more than four or five times a year, it is well worth its moderate cost when those occasions arise.

ADEPTNESS IN using the ordinary crosscut saw for wood is no guarantee of equal skill in manipulating a hacksaw.

For one thing, the hacksaw is held and used horizontally, whereas a crosscut saw is pushed and pulled at a decided angle. Also, a crosscut saw may be used on a piece of wood held in place with one hand and a knee, while a hacksaw should be used only on a piece of metal clamped in a vise or otherwise solidly secured.

Hacksaw blades are placed into metal frames, preferably adjustable to take blades of different sizes. The blades are rated by their pitch, a technical word that refers to the number of teeth per inch. A blade with a pitch of 18 has 18 teeth per inch.

FOR GENERAL use, the pitches range from 14 to 32. Those with 14 and 18 teeth per inch work best on the heavier metals, those with larger pitches are recommended for tubing and thin metals.

When a blade is inserted into a frame, the teeth should point away from the handle. In using, place one hand on the handle and one hand at the part of the frame the farthest away from you. Apply light pressure on the forward stroke with light materials, heavier pressure on heavy materials. Remember that the cutting is done only on the forward stroke, so release the pressure entirely as you bring back the saw.

Try to get into some kind of rhythm so that you take long, even strokes, bringing all or most of the blade's teeth into contact with the metal.

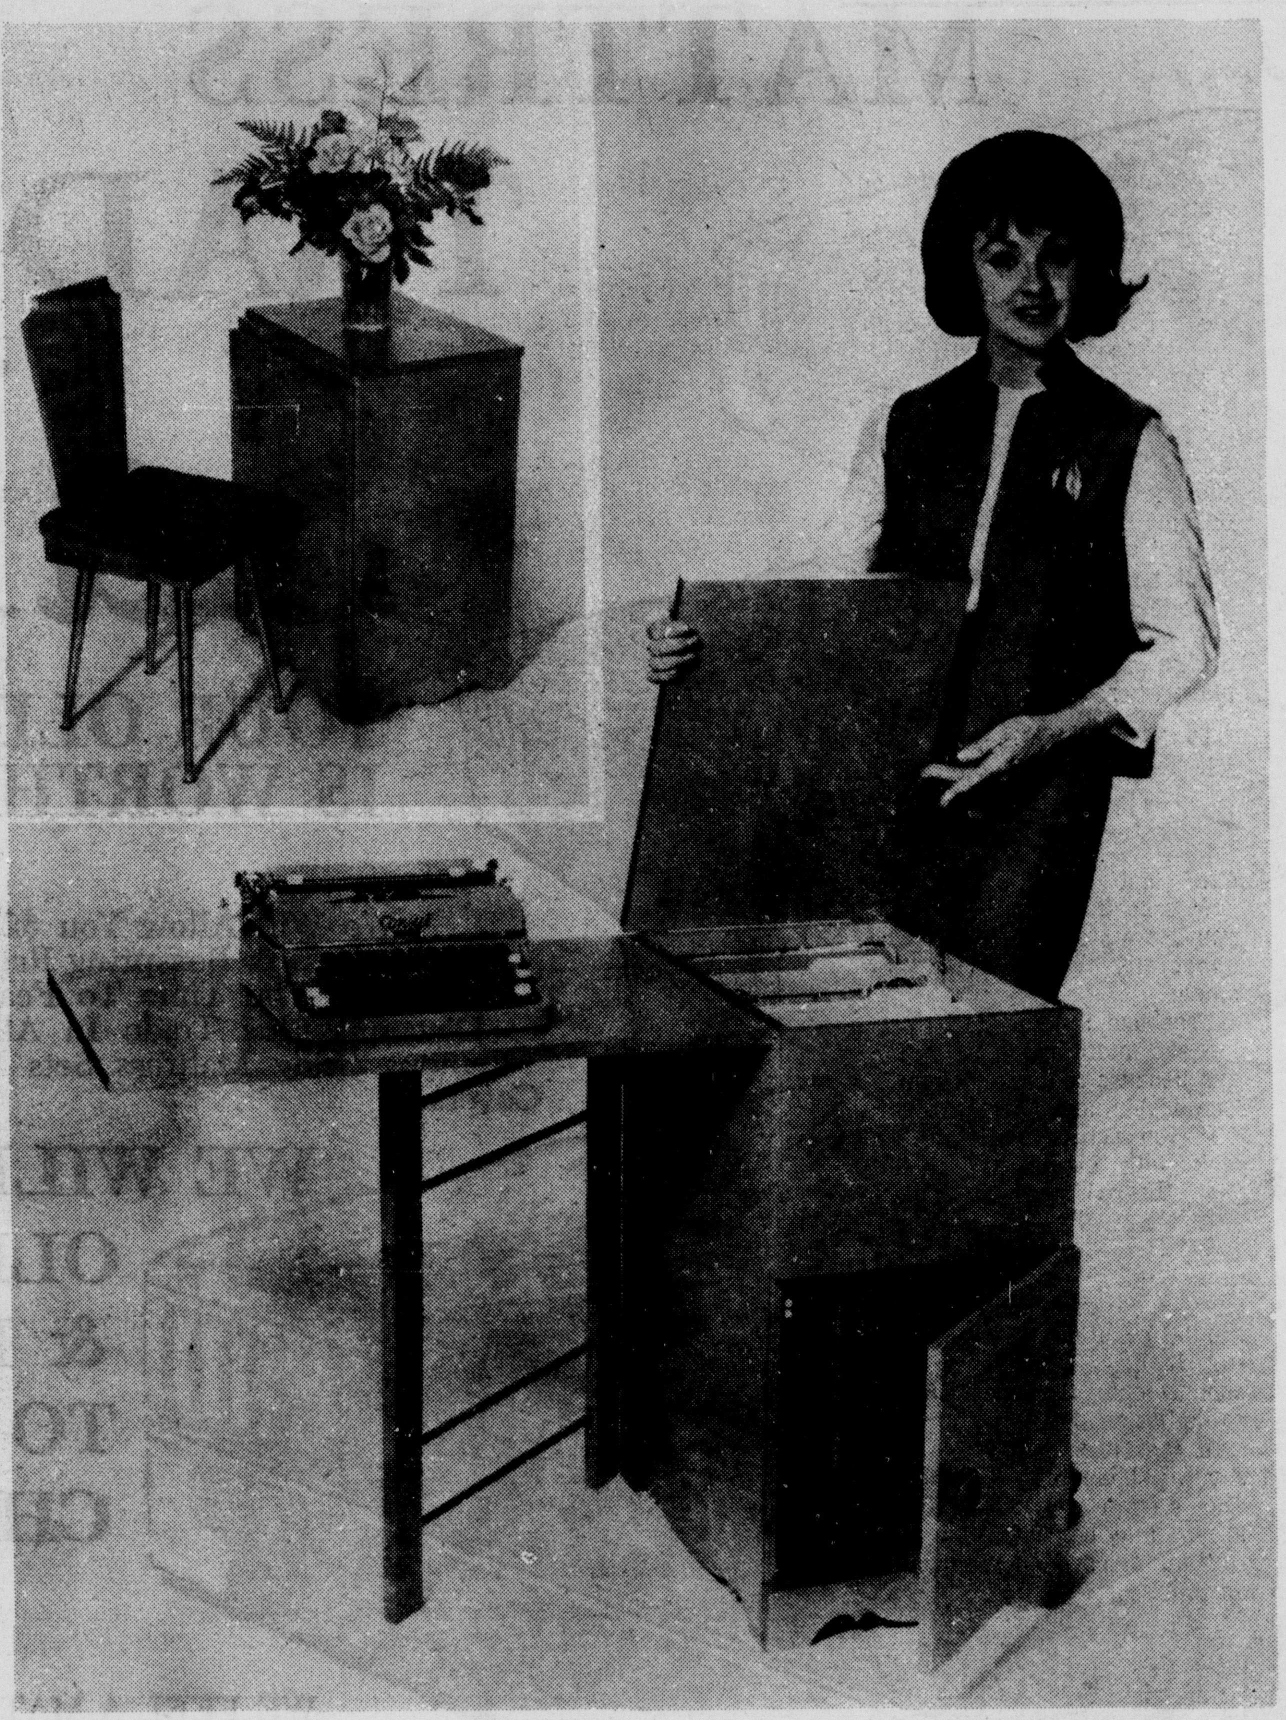
A HACKSAW blade sometimes will break — and there are at least a dozen reasons why it does so. The most common is that the tension on the blade was too tight or too loose. When you place the blade in the frame, tension is created by turning a wingnut. The nut should be turned clockwise until it is fairly tight. Giving it one extra turn to make it even tighter may create too much tension. And there won't be enough tension if the wingnut isn't reasonably tight.

If you begin cutting and the blade begins to bend, it means there isn't enough tension.

After you have used a hacksaw two or three times, you'll know automatically when the tension is correct.

(Patching plaster, concrete and brickwork, and fixing squeaky floors and stairs, are among the 35 projects discussed in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to Andy Lang, at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666)

Handyman's Pages



A PROBLEM in many an American home is where to keep the typewriter. To solve the problem, Steve Ellingson suggests the home handyman build this combination typewriter desk and end table. To start your project, send $1 to Steve Ellingson, Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, and ask for End Table-Desk Pattern 303. And while you are at it, include another 50 cents for Pattern 347 for the Princess Chair also shown in the photograph. The table-desk is a versatile piece of furniture. Lift its top and you have a standard-size file. The bottom door contains the typewriter when its not in use. With the drop-leaf down, the entire unit becomes a handsome end table. Home movie fans will find it the ideal place for their projector, film, slides and other supplies. Women will discover in it the perfect placement for their portable sewing machine. The patterns offer step-by-step instructions for the construction of both the table and the chair. Birch plywood was used for the table in the photo.

DAVID HEMMINGS is cast as a successful London fashion photographer who accidentally becomes involved in a bizarre murder, in the motion picture "Blow-Up," to be given its first television showing Thursday at 9 p.m. on Channels 5 and 10.

FLIP WILSON and guest Barbara McNair seem to be enjoying this skit on Flip's comedy show Thursday at 8 p.m. on Channels 3 and 4.

TELEVISION NOTES

By JACK GAVER

Sammy Davis Jr. has signed a long-term pact with NBC-TV, giving the network exclusive use of his talents in all major television appearances beginning with the 1973-74 season. He will be a frequent guest on the new "NBC Follies" series in the fall.

ABC'S "Make a Wish" children's series on Sunday forenoons will return for a third season next fall.

Jackie Gleason will be back with some one-hour specials on CBS next season. One show is definite, date not set, and the comedian hopes to do several others of varied types at irregular intervals.

Hollywood's Oscar Awards ceremonies will be seen for five years on the ABC network beginning in 1976. The network had the annual program for 10 years through 1970, then it was switched to NBC where it will continue through 1975.

Six one-hour dramas based on the Book of Exodus will be presented next season on the CBS network, with Burt Lancaster cast in the role of Moses. The title of the series is "The Lawgiver," and it will be filmed in Israel and other areas in the Middle East.

The annual coaches All-America Football Game will be telecast by ABC from Lubbock, Tex., at 8:30 p.m. Saturday, June 23. East and West seniors of the 1972 season play in the game.

Producer Norman Rosement is preparing for NBC-TV a special musical version of Charles Dickens' novel, "Great Expectations." Plans call for production in Europe with an internationally famous cast Mel Mandel and Norman Sachs will supply the songs.

"Barnaby Jones," Buddy Ebsen's new series as a private investigator, has been renewed by CBS-TV for the 1973-74 season.

Robert Stack — In Debt To TV

By ROBERT MUSEL

MONTE CARLO (UPI) — Robert Stack was never just a pretty face though it took nearly 20 years to prove it to Hollywood. Until an Academy Award nomination in 1958 there was always a tendency to think of him as the handsome former college athlete tapped to give Deanna Durbin her first screen kiss.

After that the actor emerged unmistakably from behind the blue eyes, even teeth and thick brown hair that he still flaunts today in the face of envious friends. In what he laughingly calls "jolly middle age" (52), he also can look back on one of the most successful television series of them all, "The Untouchables."

STACK FEELS HIS rewards from "The Untouchables" put him in television's debt, so he was interviewed in Monaco while serving as chairman of the jury at the 13th International Monte Carlo Television Festival.

"I blew some celebrity golf tour dates to get here", he said, "but I don't want to be one of those who turn their backs on TV if there isn't some commercial gain involved."

In between his duties as chairman, which involved some 50 hours of viewing programs from 26 countries, and a visit to the princely palace to see Princess Grace whom he knew before her marriage ("still stunning," he said,) Stack worked on the film and television projects that will mark his return to the big and small screens. He said it has taken him two years to recover from the abuse he gave his throat in season after season of television.

STACK HAS A nice line in candor. He said he had to learn 10 pages of script a night for The Untouchables and for a time it "screwed up" his home life. It was a tough show.

"We didn't have a girl with a blouse full of goodies," he said. "But we moved the project." He has no time for airy concepts of TV art. A show on commercial television is not a success in his eyes unless it "moves the product."

"You wouldn't get away with a show like 'The Untouchables' in the anti-violence atmosphere today", he said. "Every week we shot them, knifed them, found people hanging from meat hooks. But I don't think violence on the screen makes any converts. My son and daughter can watch any show they wish. The public want to see something happening."

HE THINKS THIS is the era of the character actor. "They're the stars today, not the beautiful people", he said.

He started to explain the new projects that will involve him as producer as well as actor and, perhaps, on occasion, as director but stopped. "I've just read a book called 'The Power of Silence,' " he smiled, "and I'm finally learning not to give my ideas away."

Stack, struggling with gallantry, admitted he has one great regret in his long career — that he appeared in the television version of Laura which also starred Princess Lee Radziwill, sister of Jacqueline Onassis.

"I sold out", he said. "I deserved what I got from the critics. Big money up front is usually for something you should not do."

Diana Riggs' New Series

"The Diana Rigg Show," a new half-hour comedy series featuring the international star, is being developed for the NBC Television Network's 1973-74 prime-time program schedule, by Lawrence R. White, Vice President, Programs, NBC-TV.

Miss Rigg, best known to American television audiences as Emma Peel in "The Avengers" adventure series, will portray an independent, fun-loving British dress designer who comes to America to make her mark in New York's garment center.

STEREO SCENE: Boy From Kentucky

By BRUCE MEYER

"I'm not concerned about how fast my horse can run," says Tom T. Hall. "I'm concerned about everybody recognizing it as a horse."

Ball appeared with his band at Carnegie Hall recently — one brief stop on his endless tour of one-night-stand concerts at state fairs and stock shows and nightclubs.

TOM T. IS from Olive Hill, Ky., and he describes himself as "an old boy who picks guitar and sings through his nose." It isn't far off as an analysis of his stage show. But he is also one of the best half-dozen songwriters in America, a storyteller and a rare, clear-sighted observer of humanity. He calls it as he sees it.

Tom T. Hall has never released an album that didn't contain at least one tune I disagreed with, though the honesty of the observations can't be denied. The same will go for just about anybody — except that they'll probably disagree with different tunes.

"A writer has an obligation to say for people what they can't say for themselves," he says. "I can go to a peace march or a military base, and find something interesting in both places."

Tom T. Hall's newest album is called "The Rhymer and Other Five and Dimers" (Mercury SRM 1-668), and it's no better and no worse than his previous seven — it's simply Tom T. Tall.

THERE ARE unsubtle put-downs of racism and "do-goodism" (defined as the attitude that makes it possible to form a committee on ecology in less time than it takes to pick up a beer can), and there are a couple of weary, sad "On the Road" tunes, and a little gem that opens the album called "Ravishing Ruby."

"The Rhymer" has a good cover, which is a welcome change from previous Tom T. albums, and the themes of the songs seem to be spreading out a little. But basically it's take-it-or-leave-it music, straightforward and plain and uniquely American.

It's the kind of music that makes a difference, and that's why you found Tom T. Hall in a rock 'n' roll column: Labels just aren't that important.
